Effort By Conservation Farmer Restores Farm Vitality

ATGLEN (Chester Co.) — Conservation farming know-how and lots of hard work helped John Peter Stees take an eroding, dilapidated beef farm in shambles and turn it into a strong and successful dairy operation.

Stees' work on the farm, in cooperation with the Chester Co. Conservation District during the past 24 years, garnered the dairy farmer the Conservation Farmer of the Year Award recently at the Chester Co. Crops Day.

Stees milks a herd of 50 registered Holsteins on a 106-acre (70 tillable) farm in West Fallowfield Township, where he lives with his wife Sally and two sons, Hutch, 14, and Clinton, 12.

Stees has managed the farm since 1965. He took grazing pastures that showed clear signs of erosion and "gullies that we could drive a little Ford tractor through," he said, and turned them into grassland waterways and contour strips.

First Maryland Farm Families In Hall Of Fame

SHARON B. SCHUSTER

BALTIMORE, MD. — Three Maryland farm families were inducted into the first ever Maryland Agriculture Hall of Fame on February 7 near Baltimore. Over eight hundred people attended the fifth annual Maryland Agriculture Dinner in honor of Governor William Donald Schaefer, members of the Maryland General Assembly, and the U.S. Congressional delegation. Sponsored by Maryland Agriculture Week, Inc., the purpose of the evening was "to celebrate the importance of Maryland agriculture, its people, and its products."

The first ever inductees into the Governor's Agriculture Hall of Fame represented various facets of the industry from dairy to sheep to grain operations. Maryland's Secretary of Agriculture, Wayne A. Cawley, Jr., introduced the recipients of certificates from the Governor, who said that "it's important to give credit to people who work hard. These farmers are symbolic of farmers who work so hard."

Y.D. Hance said he was "overwhelmed and humbled by receiving the honor." The Calvert County farmer was the first secretary of agriculture in the state. He also raised grain and sheep.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Young Farmers' Association (PYFA) honored farmers with the Outstanding Community Service and Outstanding Young Farmers awards at the 31st annual PYFA banquet here on Feb. 6.

The convention, held from February 5 through 7 at the Days Inn, also featured educational workshops and speakers, farm and Penn State tours, election of new officers and a variety of social activities.

The Outstanding Community Service Award went to Don and Cherrie Wenger of Manheim. Cherrie is the assistant director of Living Water Ministeries in Maintenance, a rehabilitation center for women. Don also helps at the Ministries, is a part time driver for Graybill's Dairy, assists with local FFA projects, and umpires community softball games.

Together the Wengers coordinate Family Fun Night activities at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. They milk 25 Brown Swiss cows and raise crops on 130 acres.

Winner of the Outstanding Young Farmer Award in the Under 30 category was John

Dairy Of Distinction Seeks Farms For 1991 Recognition

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

COVINGTON (Tioga Co.)—The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc., is ready to receive applications for 1991. This program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

State President Dan Baker, dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has received great acceptance in the past and officers look forward to a good response again this year. "There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in past years should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry as well as individual dairymen. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent in now to

"2852 alfalfa stands up to everything."

"I've been using 2852 for four years," says Clyde Kreider of Millersville, Pa., "and it takes dry weather and wet weather equally well.

"In fact, two years ago when we had a great deal of wet weather it stood right through it when other alfalfas were going down."

Big on Protein

Funk 2852 features good lower leaf stay-green for improved forage quality.

"It's a real good looking alfalfa with leafy, fine stems," adds Kreider. "Tests have been good on haylage, and the protein content is up there, too."

Bigger on Yields

A fast-starting alfalfa, 2852 produces big yields thanks to its excellent regrowth. In fact, Kreider's field yielded a record 8.8 tons in the 1988 Pa. Forage & Grassland Council trials.

"2852 will yield with anything out there," offers Kreider. "If we had taken a fifth cutting in 1988 it would have topped 10 tons."

Backed by CIBA-GEIGY

Best of all, 2852 is backed by CIBA-GEIGY research. That's why you can count on it for unmatched yields, outstanding disease resistance and superior forage quality.

Find out for yourself why 2852 can stand up to everything. Talk to your local Hoffman Seed sales representative today!

OPINION

During National FFA Week

Each year FFA Week is held during the week of George Washington's birthday to recognize his leadership and commitment to American agriculture. This year FFA members all over the country will promote FFA and agriculture education and the food and fiber industry this week from February 16 to 23.

FFA is a national organization of 387,042 members in 7,634 local chapters preparing for careers in the science, business and technology of agriculture. Local, state and national activities and award programs provide opportunities for students to apply knowledge and skills acquired through agricultural education. Agricultural education classes stress hands-on experience in diverse areas of agriculture.

It is because of this hands-on part of the FFA program that we believe students are prepared for life better than in any other part of the public school system. Not only do students interested in agriculture benefit from FFA. City students also learn under this year's theme: FFA—Leadership for a Growing Planet.

In Pennsylvania the largest FFA chapter is at Saul High School in the Philadelphia school system within the city limits. Their students give up personal time early in the morning and late in the evening to take care of their animal and horticulture projects. Because of the FFA influence, Saul has become the school of choice in the city's public school system and many more students apply for admission than can be accepted. For many of these inner city students, the way out of the ghetto is not through a big league baseball or an NBA basketball contract but through FFA.

Unfortunately, in some other school districts in the state, the FFA chapter and the agricultural education program do not receive the full support from the school administration and the school board. We believe these school leaders who are less than enthusiast for FFA and ag education should be given a tour of the Saul program. Let them talk to the students. Let them talk to the parents. Let them talk to the graduates, especially those graduates who have gone on to Penn State and other institutions of higher learning.

Let them do it during National FFA Week.

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Mend Pasture Fences and Remove Debris

Pastures can provide cattle a lot of good, nutritious forage, and it's a place for them to get fresh air, exercise and sunlight. Before too long, we will be turning our cattle out to pasture, but let's not turn them out too soon. It's best to let the sod develop and the ground firm up. Spend the time now to fix fences and pick up trash and debris before the grass grows too tall and before you're tied down with spring field work.

It might also be helpful to section off the pasture in order to make best use of the grass. For example, wet areas and flat areas may be fenced off from other areas. This will enable you to keep cows out of wet areas until the ground firms up, and could help prevent the development of foot problems. During the early spring flush of pasture growth, you could keep cattle out of the flat area; save it for hay, and feed it to cows later in the summer.

To Store Supplies Safely

Many farmers have purchased and accepted early deliveries of seeds, fertilizer and other supplies. Proper storage of these items is important. I have seen bags of fertilizer stored too close to a barn door, or to an open window; the same with farm seeds. Extra moisture on these materials, or under them on a damp floor, can cause problems. Also, it is very important to keep seeds away from chemical weed killers. These herbicides may reduce, or kill the germination of the seeds. Also, children, pets and livestock should not have access to stored seeds or farm chemicals. All of these materials become more expensive each year. It's only good management to store them carefully.

To Be Aware Of Alkaline Water For Pesticides

If your water is alkaline, especially if the pH is 8 or greater, you may have trouble getting good results from the pesticide spray material you are using on cropland. Water supplies in many areas have sufficient natural alkalinity to cause a "breakdown" of certain pesticides.

This means pest control may be somewhat less than desirable, or even non-existent because the ingredient will be rendered inactive before it even reaches the plant or pest. If the spray is allowed to stand several hours before spraying, as much as 50 percent or more of the active ingredient may be decomposed.

Pesticide specialists tell us that a pH in the range of 4 to 6 is recommended for most pesticide sprays. You can adjust spray solutions to this range by buffering agents. In general, the insecticides are affected more severely by alkaline water than fungicides or herbicides.

To Prepare For Dormant Sprays

Many types of trees are infested with various kinds of scale insects. These pests attach themselves to the bark and twigs and shrubs and suck the strength from the plant. One of the best treatments is to apply a dormant spray oil before the buds start to open. The date of the spray will vary with the weather. However, on many fruit trees and shrubbery this will be late February and early March. The spray should be applied before the buds open. In addition, a spray during May or June while the insect is in the crawler stage is strongly suggested; materials for this spray can be Imidan, Sevin or Malathion. Scale insects should be controlled -- the way is to use a dormant spray.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

PAUL ON MARRIAGE

February 17, 1991

Background Scripture: I Corinthians 7:1-40.

Devotional Reading: Genesis 2:18-24.

If you are going to read I Corinthians 7, the place to start is with verses 26, 29 and 31. In fact, it is absolutely essential. Here's why:

"I think that in view of the impending distress..." (26)

"... the appointed time has grown very short..." (29)

"For the form of this world is passing away" (31)

In order to understand what Paul is saying about marriage and other relationships in I Corinthians 7, we must first realize that Paul's opinions are based on his conviction that the second coming of Christ was imminent. Otherwise, I Corinthians 7 sounds like a Biblical denigration of marriage. Paul is not really concerned with either marriage or celibacy; what he is concerned with is the Parousia, the return of Christ and the Kingdom of God.

THE PAROUSIA DELAYED

Paul assumes that the Christians of Corinth are no less certain of Christ's imminent return, so he begins Chapter 7 with the assumption that what he is saying about sex and marriage will be understood to be an interim teaching -- what to do between now and the date when the Parousia begins. Then -- during that brief time of waiting -- and only then does this teaching apply: not before, not after. In 7:20, he says: "Everyone should remain in the state in which he was called" and again in 7:26, "In view of the impending distress it is well for a person to remain as he is. Are you bound to a wife? Do not seek to be free. Are you free from a wife? Do not seek marriage." Why: so that both married and unmarried may by optimally ready for the return of Christ.

Of course, Paul's expectation was in error. The Parousia did not come soon, or even in Paul's lifetime. In fact, it still hasn't arrived to this very day. So Paul's teaching about "stay as you are" is no more applicable to us than it was to the Corinthian Christians. Furthermore, Paul is very careful in I Corinthians 7 to say that his advice is not binding as Christian truth per se. "I say this by way of concession, not of command" (7:6). At another point he specifies, "...I say, not the Lord..." (7:12). And: "Now concerning the unmarried, I have no command of the Lord, but I give my opinion..." (7:25). Once more: "But in my judgment..." (7:40).

BETTER TO MARRY

Paul was wrong, not only about the Parousia, but, I believe, about the purpose and value of marriage. Genesis says, "It is not good that the man should be alone." Paul doesn't seem to agree. His view is that of a celibate bachelor. It is obvious that he thinks of marriage strictly as a means of sanctifying the sexual relationship: "For it is better to marry than to be aflame with passion" (7:9). I'm sorry that Paul seems not to know anything about the other blessings of marriage: friendship, companionship, mutual sharing and support.

Paul's purpose was not to lay down rigid rules, but to help people to be as well prepared as possible for the Parousia. Having said that married and unmarried should remain as they are, he says nevertheless, "But if you marry, you do not sin" (7:28). His advice to slaves is similar. "Were you a slave when called? Never mind" (7:21). But he modified this with: "If you can gain your freedom, avail yourself of the opportunity."

Paul's purpose then is pastoral: "I say this for your own benefit, not to lay any restraint upon you, but to promote good order and to secure your undivided devotion to the Lord" (7:35). Even if we don't accept his conclusions, we can appreciate his loving pastoral concern.

9341 Mid-Group III. 34 Relative Maturity. Extremely high-yielding variety with very good standability for its maturity. Very good shattering resistance and fast emergence; moderately bushy canopy. 9341 will be most responsive on highly productive soils. Moderate tolerance to Phytophthora root rot.

9391 Late Group III. 39 Relative Maturity. A widely adapted, extremely high-yielding variety. Multi-race resistance to Phytophthora root rot contributes to excellent performance on heavy, poorly-drained soils. Fast emergence with good standability; excellent shattering resistance.

9442 Mid-Group IV. 44 Relative Maturity. A winning combination of excellent yield performance and excellent standability. Very adaptable to different soil types and row spacings. Fast emergence and smaller-sized seed for improved seed quality. This moderately branching plant has strong shattering resistance.

Potato Grower, Feed Mill Share York Ag Awards

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A southern York county potato growing family and an area feed firm shared the spotlight recently, as winners of top agricultural honors presented in York County.

Thompson Potato Farms, Shrewsbury, was named recipient of the Family Farm award while Gordon Snyder, Snyder's Feed and Grain, Brodbecks, was presented with the Distinguished Service to Agriculture award. Presentations were made during the annual Agriculture Recognition Banquet held January 25 at Wisehaven Hall by the Extension Service and the York Area Chamber of Commerce.

Potato production gets top billing at the John Thompson family farm. Lew Thompson, John's father, grew potatoes for area dinner tables as early as 1918, according to crop records kept from that time. When York became part of the potato chip industry in the early 1930's, Thompson expanded to grow for that market as well.

John "Jack" Thompson and his wife Betty began operating the home farm at Hametown in 1952, growing corn, wheat, barley, cannery tomatoes and livestock in addition to potatoes. In 1964, they moved to their present location, expanding crop acreage as livestock was phased out.

About 250 acres of potatoes are grown today, along with extensive acreage of soybeans, corn and small grains. About 95-percent of the potatoes help supply the York chip industry, with the remainder sold fresh for table use.

Son John Jr. joined the family operation in 1975. He and his wife, Dorothy, along with Jack and Betty and two full-time men handle all the crop and marketing operations. Thompsons have maintained a roadside market for many years, retailing potatoes, homegrown sweet corn, tomatoes, cantaloupes and a variety of fresh produce.

Gordon Snyder followed a family tradition in 1946 when he took over Snyder's Feed and Grain in Codorus Township. His great-grandfather Emanual Heindel had a gristmill on the Brodbecks property from 1865 to 1890, when his grandfather Titus Snyder took control.

Today Snyder handles fertilizers, chemicals and commercial and custom-mixed livestock feeds. Customers also have access to forage testing, feed analyses and formula rations.

Although 69, Snyder has no imminent plans for retirement, though his store is the sole remaining commercial enterprise in Brodbecks. He was instrumental in starting the Codorus Township planning commission and served on it for 14 years.

Seven Century Farms were acknowledged during the awards program. New Century Farms are owned by Guy and David H. Allen, Spring Valley Farm, New Park; Paul and Doris Curran, Brogue R1; Norman M. and Truman A. Grim, Red Lion R3; W. "Fred" O. Rosemiller, Rosemiller Farm, Grantley Road, York. Also Norman and Mirium Bollinger, Laurence Drive, Hanover; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Posey Breneman, Breneman Farm, Airville R1; S. Fred and Kathryn Jordan, Maple Hill Farm, Stewartstown R1; and P. Cooper and Mary Boyd, Susquehanna Orchards, Delta R1.

Recognitions was also extended during the program to hosts of the 1990 Farm Visitation Tour. Taking part in the pre-Thanksgiving tour were Mr. and Mrs. Terry Helder, Wrightsville R1; Mr. and Mrs. Marlyn Brown, Felton R3; Mrs. Betty Daugherty and Sons, Brogue R1; Edward H.H. Garber, Airville R1; H.E. Heindel and Sons, Brogue R1; and Stephen and Anne E.C. Bahn, Brogue R1.

Dairymen Get Feed And Feeding Tips

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.)—"You don't make money when you feed a cow like a pig," said Dr. Larry Chase, assoc. professor, animal science, Cornell University. Dr. Chase was the speaker at the McCracken's Feed Mill dairyman's seminar. The discussion centered around feed management goals that included: 1. Maximize dry matter intake; 2. maintain adequate fiber and chewing; minimize the "shock" of sudden ration changes to the rumen and 4. feed both the bacteria and the cow.

Since 20 drops of rumen fluid contains 10 to 40 billion bacteria, researchers figure the 30 to 50 gallon capacity of the cow's digestive system may contain 817 trillion bacteria, give or take a few. "You thought you were feeding cows," Chase told his farm audience, "but you are a micro biologist feeding bacteria.

Chase demonstrated his remarks with an actual rumen that was preserved and coated with fiberglass.

The cows and the bacteria have a reciprocal benefit to each other according to Chase. The bacteria receive housing and heating, garbage removal, adequate nutrition and a natural environment. Since these "bugs" are so well cared for, they in turn provide for the cow, microbial protein, amino acid balance, synthesized B vitamins and fiber digestion.

"How does that bale of hay get to be milk," Chase asked. "The bacteria eat it up in the digestive process. Fifty to 80 percent of the absorbed protein is from the bacteria in the rumen. If we have the microbial protein at top efficiency, we have lower production costs."

In the process of eating feed and chewing cud, a cow has 40 to 60 thousand jaw movements per day. Chase said if the farmers didn't believe these figures given by researchers, they should go home and count for themselves. This humorous interchange between farmers and professor was made to make the point that a cow needs some ruffage in her feed to have the proper digestion. When the proper balance between ruffage and short feed is achieved, both milk production and butter fat test remains balanced and at higher levels.

Dairy County Agent, Glenn Shirk reminded the dairymen of the county dairy days to be held at the Farm and Home Center on February 26 and March 5. In addition, the heifer housing that was so popular has be scheduled to run again on March 6. More details are available from the Lancaster County extension office.

Dr. Larry Chase used a replica cow rumen to make points about feeds and feeding.

Dairy Of Distinction Seeks

apply for the award. Deadling for applications is April 15, 1991. Judging takes place in the month of May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. The states are divided into districts and a local committee oversees the program in each district. A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

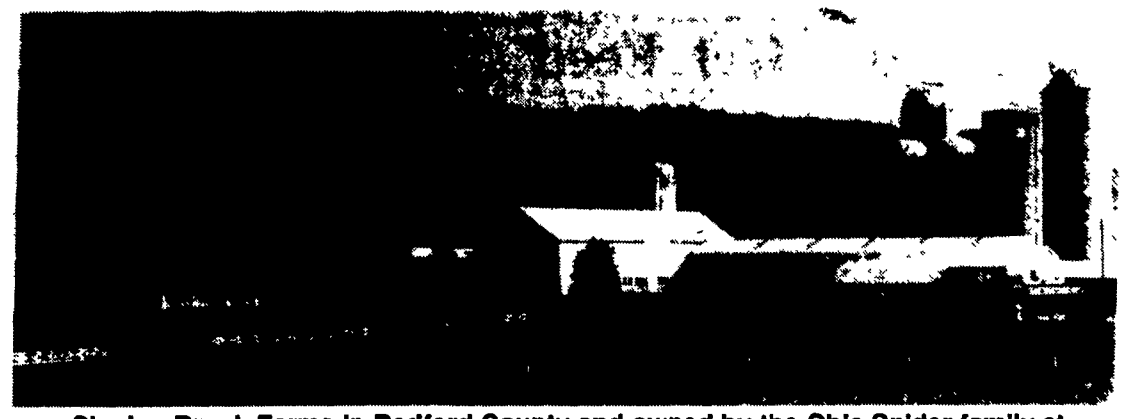
Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given by Lancaster Farmning to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

"It's time to apply for you and your farm to receive the coveted honor of Dairy of Distinction. This award is based on the concept that attractive farms enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encouraging public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include: clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas as well as manure management are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In New York, contact Evelyn Lightfoote, 3053 Depew Road, Stanley, N.Y. 14561. Phone: (716) 526-6654. In New Jersey, contact Angust Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867. Phone: 201) 735-4989. In Pennsylvania, contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, 1853 East Third St. Williamsport, PA 17701. Phone: (717) 323-2552.



Singing Brook Farms in Bedford County and owned by the Obie Snider family at Imler is an example of the farms that were designated Dairy of Distinction last year. Over the last four year, 363 farms in Pennsylvania have received the recognition.

Eastern Milk To Meet

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — For the second time in its 69-year history, Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative will hold its semi-annual Delegate Meeting outside of New York State, Eastern President Lewis Gardner announced.

It will be held March 12 at the Gennetti-Lycoming Hotel in Williamsport.

"While taking a hard look at where we want to be in the 21st century, and at how we can attract members, communicate with them and better serve them, it was only natural for the board to decide to hold the March Delegate Meeting in Pennsylvania again," Gardner said. "We have a heavy concentration of members in that state even though our membership spans an area from Vermont to Delaware."

Gardner noted that the Annual Meeting in October would still be held in Syracuse, N.Y., where the dairy co-op is headquartered.

In announcing the March Delegate Meeting, Gardner said the cooperative principle of farmers working together "is more important than ever in this year of plummeting milk prices and unstable market conditions."

The meeting is expected to attract about 250 delegates, officers and spouses from Eastern's 12 districts and 94 locals covering nine states.

Among the topics to be discussed:

-- Market conditions in the Northeast and Eastern's plans to improve milk prices for farmers.

-- Eastern's marketing campaign for the rest of the 1990s.

-- The realigning of districts to reflect new membership numbers.

-- A new spirit aimed at bringing the co-op into the 21st century.

drift into adjacent crops has become an increasing importance to growers. And at least one herbicide manufacturer is addressing the matter. BASF is offering Laddok® herbicide, which not only controls a broad spectrum of Raising corn was never an easy task. But raising it with the side effects caused by some herbicides makes it tougher than ever.

Fortunately, there's Laddok® herbicide. Laddok controls 28 different broadleaves, including velvetleaf, cocklebur and pigweed.

Laddok even helps you avoid problems other herbicides cause, like stalk brittleness, damage to brace roots and vapor drift injury to beans.

So if you're looking for a way to control broadleaves while managing atrazine and preventing unwanted side effects, try Laddok. And make growing a bumper crop your only real concern.

Computer Helps Brothers Find Bottom Line In Dairy Operation

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

PENRYN (Lancaster Co.) — There are perhaps few who know the bottom line of lower milk prices better than a pair of brothers trying to maintain a fourth generation dairy farm in northern Lancaster County.

While most dairymen have an idea of how far their milk check will go, few have as detailed a breakdown of farm profits and expenses as do Steve and Dale Hershey.

With their computer and software, the two have recently calculated and number crunched in an attempt to come up with a plan to keep the farm income stable.

And while the computer doesn't necessarily print out good news, it does show the two where they stand.

Keeping track of expenses and profits is nothing new for the Hersheys; they've been setting annual budgets and monthly goals for almost a decade.

And while the most recent set of calculations doesn't look good — any way they examine the numbers — they have formed a plan: make more milk, spend no more money.

As simple as that sounds, it isn't simple, according to the brothers.

There were many other options that had to be sifted through and without the speed and accuracy of the computer, they would have spent days, if not weeks, breaking down operational ideas to see if they would fly, at least on paper.

With the computer, different numbers can be entered and within seconds, the new numbers are calculated. The brothers can see what can work.

The use of the computer, and the decisions that result, may just well be what keeps these two in dairying.

"I don't see how I could get along without it," Dale said. "The other day I looked at 10 different possibilities (of operating the farm). I looked at several different milk prices.

"Once the formulas are set up, I can say, 'What if?' and it can recalculate in seconds. I have access to information over years," he said.

"When I look back to when I wrote things out in books, I know a computer is also much more accurate.

"I used to say I'd give up a tractor before I'd give up a computer. But now, trying to imagine farming without a computer is like trying to imagine farming without some sort of power to pull equipment."

The two milk an average of 50 all-registered Holsteins in a tie-stall barn three times a day. Most of the equipment is about 20- to 25-years-old, but holding up well.

The farm contains 135 acres, 90 of which are tillable. They rent additional acreage for a total of 200 acres tilled. The crops are corn, alfalfa, soybeans, barley and small grains. All crops are used to feed the herd. Sometimes there is some extra corn that can be sold.

Steve and Dale Hershey have been farming together for almost 10 years. They started working with their father and bought the place from him.

For a couple of years they led the county in rolling herd average milk production. Their operation has been held out by county extension agents of an example of how to do certain things well.

But the reality of the current milk price is that no one is doing well — some are just doing worse than others.

The Hershey operation is located in one of the last remaining "isolated" areas of Lancaster County. Several miles to the west lies Route 72. Several miles to the east is Route 322. Just north is the state turnpike. Except for the constant rumble of turnpike traffic, the area is relatively quiet.

A seemingly haven of days gone in southeastern Pennsylvania, the atmosphere belies the modern techniques and tools used by the Hersheys.

Steve handles the herd while Dale takes care of the crops and finances. The exact split of work has fallen into place over the years.

Every check written and every dollar brought in is recorded on the computer — it is filed according to budget catagory.

Every morning, for at least half an hour, while the children are getting ready for school, Dale sits down to review items in the computer.

With the aid of the electronic memory, he knows what needs to be done that day. He prioritizes a list of "must-be-done" and also adjusts anything else that may have happened during the last 24 hours to affect financial flow.

From the left, Dale and Steve Hershey stand by a tree planted by their great grandfather, in front of the family farm house the two share. Dairy prices have hurt every operation. They are hoping the use of their computer and careful control of farm expenses will see them through difficult times.

Dale Hershey works in his office managing the finances of the Hershey Brothers farm near Penryn. All expenses, household, crop and dairy production are included within files in the computer's memory.

If a piece of machinery needs repaired, he can pull up the cost of the piece when it was new and compare it to the cost for a rebuilt piece, or whatever is relevant.

The value of the computer is, according to Dale, to make quicker and better decisions. They are decisions based on accurate recollections of on-the-farm experiences and past decisions. He doesn't have to guess, or go with a gut-feeling.

He eliminates, as much as possible, waste of time and money.

Luck is always a part of success, but the two always attempt to eliminate their dependence on luck, as much as possible.

For example, every January Dale makes an annual budget, eliminating as many variables as possible. He is not looking for a balanced budget, he is looking for a budget that keeps the operation in the black.

According to Dale, with this year's milk price, a status quo operation would equal an end-of-year loss. It is unacceptable.

Therefore the operation needed to be examined harder than ever.

The two examined expanding their herd to milking about 75, puting in additional free-stall space and continuing to milk in the tie-stall section.

The brothers said that although expansion sounded like a good idea, once all the costs, interest loans, increased milk production, feed and overhead costs were balanced out against the increased income, the computer figures showed that the two would be working harder and still end up almost the same amount in the red.

They said they answer seems to lie in applying extreme caution in spending, while managing the herd closer for higher production and trying to milk a few more cows.

Dale said he is figuring his budget on a milk check based on $11.50 per hundred pounds of milk.

That's about half a dollar lower than county extension agents recently said they expect the price to level out at, but the Hersheys have to err on the side of financial safety — they have two families to support and it is not inconceivable that the price of milk could drop lower.

"I suppose most dairy farmers are in the same position — a tight budget, although there may be some variance with debt load," Dale said.

Steve does his own computations with the computer.

He said that back when they first bought the system, "Dale got a financial program and sat down and learned to use it. I got a spread sheet and learned to use it."

So now, immediately after every test by his representative of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA), Steve takes the information and adds it to his computer.

After keeping records for so long, Steve can show a number of breakdowns of his herd, and he can make decisions as to cull or not, feed more or not, he knows precisely what is going on with his herd. He also eliminates as much quess work as possible.

He also keeps information on breeding and can determine success with that, over a time.

In fact, based on his data and the recent financial data, he said he is planning to change some of his breeding strategies.

The herd has been practically closed for many years. Almost every cow can be traced back to a couple of good cow families and within his great grandfather's herd.

"In 11 years we bought two cows," Steve said.

The two have been lucky recently in the breeding program. "We always raise enough heifers to sell a few each year. In 1989 we have 37 heifer calves out of 50 cows," Steve said, adding how extremely high that replacement production was.

Adding some of those to the milking herd may help, but in order to get them on board with no extra capital expense, they have to maximize cow space efficiency in the 50 tie stall barn.

Pork Producers Hear Veterinarian Practitioners

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — A leading market researcher told hog producers Thursday morning that the key influences that will affect their business are world markets, production efficiency, and operating capital.

Dr. Rick Klein, Pfizer, Inc. was the opening speaker at the company seminar held for key swine service persons and their most valued customers in swine health.

Klein said the hog business would be profitable over the next several years — not as good as last year's exceptional profits — but he said we should see $5 to $8 profits per hundredweight. Kline called this "moderate profitability."

According to Kline, pork and beef sales continue to be level and poultry sales are on the rise. The "further processing" of poultry was credited for the increase in sales and, if the pork industry can find ways to further process their products, they will increase market share too.

Since the increase in dressed weights and the additional efficiency in pigs per litter will be enough to offset population growth, the new markets must come from exports. At present, 50 percent of U.S. pork exports go to Japan, which is good, according to Kline. But he said it puts our markets in a position that if Japan suddenly says no more U.S. pork may come in, that could kill the U.S. export market overnight and take $50 hogs down to $40 hogs in a very short time.

As for imports, they are larger than exports. Six percent of the pork consumed in the U.S. comes from Canada, and we have relinquished the canned ham market to Denmark.

Kline said we are in a world pork economy. A rule of thumb to judge future prices is that for every one percent increase in the breeding herd, we see a negative two percent reduction in the farm price of hogs.

In comparison to the poultry industry, Kline said the hog industry is much less efficient. In one of his studies, where the range of the most effecient producers to the least efficient producers was only 25 percent, in the hog industry that range is 300 percent. "We will see the inefficient producers go out of business and the remainder of the industry will consolidate," Kline said.

Even with the recent good hog prices, expansion has not been as rapid as in past cycles. Kline believes this is true because the financial community and the producers are very cautious. The lack of recapitalization is one reason why we have not seen this expansion. "Right now, the hog industry is at the lowest debt ratio to assets and to income that we have seen in many years. How we keep our debt ratios in the 1990s will determine profitability," said Kline.

About 100 hog producers attended the meeting, which featured a staff of expert veterinarian practitioners. The meeting was under the direction of Daniel Hughes, territory manager, animal health division, Pfizer, Inc.

43 to 46.75% protein soybeans, 29% protein hay, 10 to 11% or more protein corn, 250 to 300 bu. corn per acre. Bean yield up to 83 bu. per acre.

We have these 46.75% protein beans cleaned to sell for seed. High producing cows give high producing daughters. Likewise high protein beans produce high protein beans, obviously.

Our natural fertilizer contains over 100 minerals and trace elements, therefore producing very rich feed. With all the above mentioned protein and a full spectrum of minerals, you need not buy extra protein, and very little minerals, and home grown is better protein. And it also produces healthy cows and heifers, reducing your drug and vet bill. This is the answer to low milk prices. Now you do not have to cry the blues after all.

"Our customers have so many earthworms because of absence of toxins, and loose soil lets them raise big families which makes still more earthworms that give very much free fertilizer of the best kind of earth. Then you need to buy very little. And the crops and the animals become healthy without drugs. Your profit is your income minus your expense!

OUR FERTILIZER COMPANY OFFERS $12 PER BU. FOR WHITE SOYBEANS IF THEY PASS THE NON-TOXIC TEST.

- There is a big demand coming up for soy foods because it gives more nutrition per dollar and it is healthier than meat. Some factories need huge quantities and their demand is increasing because our organically grown beans make better quality food products. The Japs are putting up a large factory in Indiana which will also increase demand.

Why grow surplus corn at hardly any profit (the chemical way) when there is a big demand for $12 beans? However our company pays $3.00 per bu. for non toxic corn. Crops are usually toxic-free the first year when our wonderful nutri-carb is used early in the season. Order the seed beans early. The supply is limited.

Families In Hall Of Fame

Frederick County's Rodman Myers, started his dairy operation with just 30 cows. He now boasts an operation with 140 cows and is active in 4-H, FFA, the Grange and other organizations. "By working together, much can be achieved," said Myers. "We will continue to work for the betterment of Maryland agriculture."

Mildred Darcy of Prince Georges County, received the honor on behalf of her family and her late husband, Roland Darcy, who was active in land preservation, task forces, advisory boards, and more. Mildred Darcy said, "we are proud to serve you and will continue to do our best." She was the recipient of a certificate and a hug from the Governor.

The crowd enjoyed a buffet meal that featured all that Maryland's finest has to offer - succulent roast beef, lamb, ham, chicken, turkey, crab, vegetables, fruits, and more. Milk and butter were provided at each table, and a toast was made with the lifting of glasses filled with Maryland apple cider. Maryland wines were available at a wine tasting table throughout dinner.

Keynote speaker, Dick Foell, delivered a pep-rally type presentation based on the "Food Watch" program. He emphasized the importance of educating and informing consumers as to "where food comes from. Be an effective spokesman for agriculture, for people who don't understand agriculture," he said. He encouraged producers to "take the Food watch pledge, to be a responsible producer, and spread the word."

Governor Schaefer ended the evening by reading a proclamation which declared that March 17 through 23 would be Maryland Agriculture Week. He presented the proclamation to Master of Ceremonies for the evening, Earl "Buddy" Hance.

DOEBLER'S ALFALFAS

We put extra protection in every bag

by Bill Camerer

I like to spring seed alfalfa with a drill. But I know growers who swear by everything from broadcasting to fluid seeding.

Top growers do agree on one thing, though. You're only spinning your wheels if you don't seed high yielding varieties. Ones that resist disease and ride out our hard Eastern winters.

And no alfalfas do better than Doebler's Starmaster and Precedent. On all counts. Here's what we put in every bag:

Big Ton Potential. Precedent topped 1988-89 trials in New York. Starmaster placed first in two-year average of Virginia trials. And the two finished 6th and 8th in mammoth PA trials.

Winter hardiness for longer stands. Doebler's alfalfas get top rating. But Starmaster has slight edge.

Multiple disease resistance to slow thin out. Starmaster and Precedent resist Anthracnose, Bacterial Wilt, Fusarium Wilt, Phytophthora Root Rot and Verticillium Wilt. Precedent also resists new killer, Aphanomyces

Insect resistance. Starmaster shows moderate resistance to leaf hopper and pea aphid. Precedent shrugs off spotted alfalfa aphid.

Seed treatment with Apron to protect young plants from root rot in first critical days. Seed also treated with Dormal innoculant.

I'm Bill Camerer, Doebler's research director, double checking promising new alfalfas in our test plots at Jersey Shore, PA.

For Optimum Forage Crops, Maintain Soil Fertility

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A vital element to growing a successful forage crop is soil pH.

And keeping an eye on pH and maintaining optimum fertility and micronutrient levels in your forage soil are necessary to maintain a good stand, according to Dr. Doug Beegle, Penn State agronomist.

Beegle spoke to about 200 farmers at the Lancaster Co. Crops Day Tuesday.

"The key thing you have to look at before you get around to an established forage crop is to have certain minimum fertility levels in that soil," said Beegle.

Soil requirements

Minimums established by Penn State for a forage crop such as alfalfa include a soil pH of at least 6.5 before the ground is seeded; soil phosphate levels over 140 pounds per acre; potash levels over 230 pounds per acre; and adquate nitrogen levels.

Beegle said farmers should soil test the corn fields before they are rotated to forage crops.

"Most of the forage crops are very sensitive to soil pH," he said. "Alfalfa, the number one forage crop we grow, is particularly sensitive to pH. It's more sensitive than some of the other legumes and not quite as sensitive as grass."

In addition, nitrogen considerations to get good establishment and yield for alfalfa must be considered. Farmers should keep in mind that alfalfa needs an additional 50 pounds of nitrogen per extra ton of yield.

Maintain pH

Also, herbicides can be bound up with low pH (particularly triazine herbicides) and are not as effective when soil pH is low. By maintaining optimum pH, the herbicides can be more effective and less residue will remain.

Liming practices should be monitored to achieve the goals of good soil pH. Farmers should consider the following:

• Plan ahead on liming. Liming doesn't react overnight. "Even the finest lime you can buy, very, very fine, less than 100-mesh lime, will take 3-6 months to have a lot of effect," said Beegle. "Normal limestone will take even longer than that."

• If the soil test calls for a lot of lime — 4 tons or more per acre — split the application. Plow one half down and half on the remainder on the surface.

• In no-till situations, lime worked on the surface takes up to three years to reach below the surface two inches. "Lime moves extremely slowly," said Beegle. On a study at Penn State, a field with a pH of 5 took up to three years after liming to achieve a pH reaction below two inches of the soil surface — and that effect was small, said Beegle.

• Quality of lime is also a key factor. Not all limes are the same — they vary in neutralizing ability or calcium carbonate equivalent (CCE). If they are different, watch the rate.

• Fineness of the lime should also be considered. If the lime is bigger than the size of a typical grain of sugar or salt (about 20 mesh), then it will not be effective. Generally, 100-mesh lime is the finest and will work quickly.

• If you plan to no-till a field, work lime into the soil first. Once the surface and subsurface soil pH is optimum, it is easier to maintain the pH level.

• Too much nitrogen and lime can effect forage crops such as alfalfa. Alfalfa is "lazy," said Beegle, and if too much nitrogen is present, it won't form as many nodules.

Other considerations include whether farmers should fertilize when seeding. "What it boils down to is, what kind of conditions are you planting in?" said Beegle. "If you're planting in adverse conditions, low fertility soil, you haven't done the job ahead of establishment, or you have poor soil, wet soil, acid soil, or poor weather conditions . . . a starter may have some advantage."

When fertilizing crops, farmers should take the recommendations of the soil test seriously. The bulk of the fertilizer at establishment can be distributed three ways:

• If there is a large recommendation of nitrogen, split it up. Plow the bulk of it down and either band or broadcast the rest at planting.

• If only a small amount of nitrogen is recommended, band or broadcast it onto the surface.

• If there is no recommendation on the soil test for nitrogen, perhaps a starter fertilizer may be all you need. Place the starter fertilizer within one inch of the seed.

Inoculation critical

Inoculation is critical for the legumes so we have proper nutrition, he said. The inoculum is a living bacteria that helps in nitogen nutrition for the plant. "Treat it right," said Beegle. "Don't put it on the dashboard of the truck where the sun gets up to 100 degrees."

Beegle reminded farmers that forage crops are "big users of nutrients. We have to make sure we're replacing what they're talking off."

Typically, forage crops will remove 15-20 pounds of phosphate per ton and 45-60 pounds of potash every ton. If you multiply that amount by the yield goals, "you'll remove a tremendous amount of nutrients" that will have to be replaced, he said.

Farmers can consider plant analysis to get a more exact idea of what kind of nutrients are being removed from the soil at what amounts.

Another tool

"I think it's another tool in addition to soil testing that we ought to be using to monitor what's happening in our crops," he said.

It is also one way to get a reading on sulphur and micronutrient usage from the soil, for which a soil test cannot measure.

In the end, farmers must consider rotation and watch the whole crop cycle to plan ahead for keeping soil levels at an optimium.

"If that's all you're doing is growing corn and putting manure on, you're setting yourself up for some problems," he said.

Legislative issues

Bill Brubaker, Pennsylvania Agronomic Products (PAP), told farmers that they should become aware of what's happening in Pennsylvania legislative issues that could directly affect them.

He told farmers at Crops Day that they should be aware of those who are trying to legislate farming "who don't know the industry."

Brubaker mentioned several bills, including eight pesticide and two nutrient management bills, that are "ready to rear their heads."

Bill Brubaker, Pennsylvania Agronomic Products (PAP), told farmers that they should become aware of what's happening in Pennsylvania legislative issues that could directly affect them.

Three bills in particular could prove costly to farmers, including:

• One bill could require farmers to notify all those living within ½ mile of the boundary of the farm property about the intent to spray pesticides.

• One bill would require that fields to be sprayed with pesticides be posted 48 hours before spraying with an indicator sign and 48 hours after with a separate indicator sign.

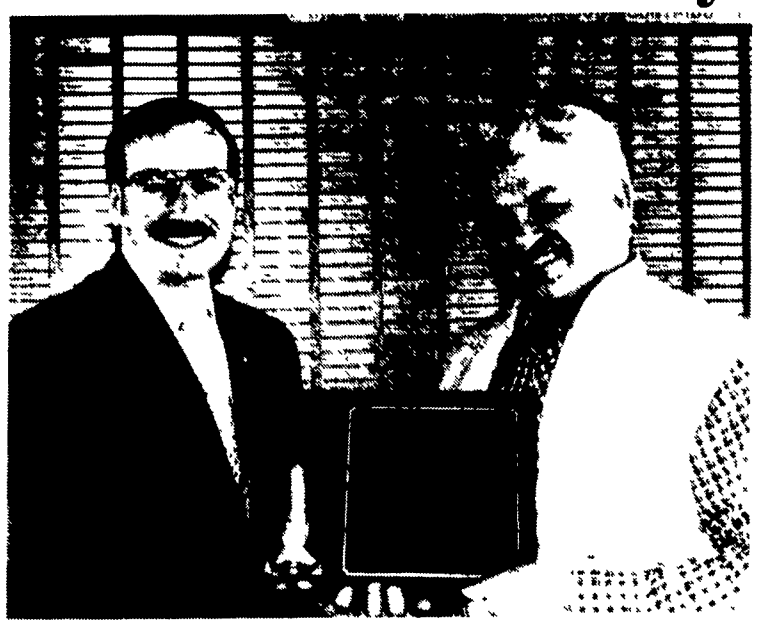
• One bill would allow anybody the right to say "no" to a custom pesticide applicator three times in any season.

Work with PAP

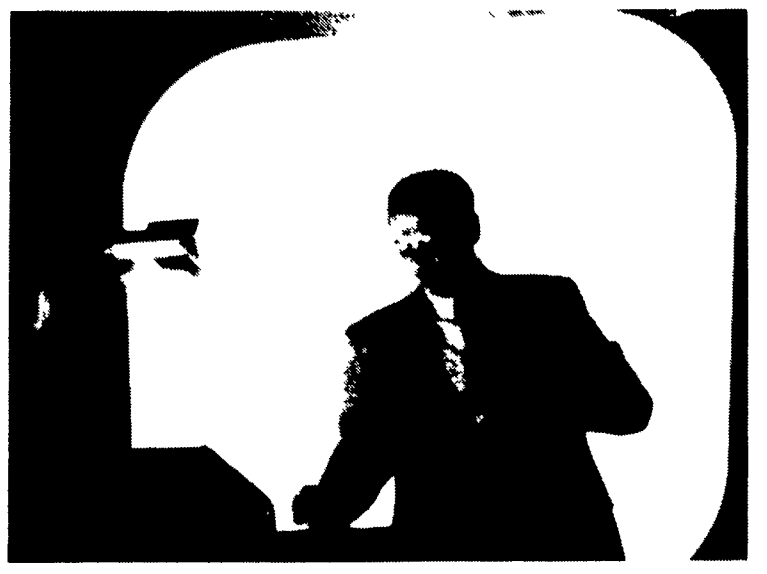
Brubaker said that farmers should work together with PAP (which represents two national groups, including the Fertilizer Institute and the National Ag Chemicals Group) to educate people about farming.

"The industry can be sensitive to the needs of people who are chemically sensitive and yet still be able to produce food," he said.

"We should teach them what it takes to produce food at 11 cents of their dollar," said Brubaker. "We should preach the lessons of agriculture to those who are making our laws."



Clarence Keener, right, was presented with the 1990 Pennsylvania Corn Club second place award for the state (more than 3 acre harvest size) from Tim Markovitz, Pioneer district sales representative, at the Lancaster Crops Day.



Maintaining optimum soil nutrient conditions and liming are key factors in producing a good forage crop, according to Dr. Doug Beegle, Penn State agronomist, on Tuesday at Lancaster Crops Day.

In addition, Clarence Keener, Manheim, was presented with the 1990 Pennsylvania Corn Club second place award for the state (more than 3 acre harvest size). His yield, which also placed first in the county, was 194.9 bushels per acre using Pioneer 3241 hybrid. Also, J. Phil Garber was honored for placing third in the state for more than 3 acre harvest size and second in the county. His yield was 188.6 bushels per acre using Cargill 7877 hybrid.

FFA Week Celebrated Feb. 16-23

ALEXANDRIA, VA. — FFA members all over the country will promote FFA, agricultural education and the food and fiber industry during National FFA Week, Feb. 16-23.

This year's theme is FFA—Leadership for a Growing Planet. During FFA Week and throughout the year, FFA chapters will pursue activities which show that they are leading the effort for a better environment. Planting trees, starting community recycling efforts and restoring mining areas are just a few of the initiatives planned by various chapters across the country.

The week also provides FFA members in thousands of chapters across the U.S., Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands the chance to create awareness of and support for agricultural education and the FFA. Public service announcements at the local, state and national levels will help spread the message.

Agricultural education classes stress hands-on experience in diverse areas of agriculture. FFA activities provide leadership development, career training and award incentives for young people.

Mark Timm, national FFA president from Fillmore, Ind., said FFA Week is an opportunity for members and communities to recognize achievements and activities available through FFA and agricultural education. This year's theme challenges FFA members to have a difference in their communities; to think globally but act locally.

"We're young people trying to strike a balance between progressive agriculture and a healthy environment," Timm said. "As FFA members and students in agriculture classes, we are learning to wisely manage our resources, and gaining the leadership skills necessary to prepare for the diverse and challenging careers in agriculture."

Each year FFA Week is held during the week of George Washington's birthday (traditional) to recognize his leadership and commitment to American agriculture. The National FFA Center is located on part of Washington's original Mt. Vernon estate near Alexandria, Va.

Consider Manufactured Feeds

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Numerous dairymen use a custom mixed dairy feed with ingredients bought at retail mill prices. Often these may result in mixtures that are more expensive than a comparable manufactured dairy feed.

Those who are in a very short cash flow situation should consider such a change if it will reduce feed costs.

In some instances, however, it may be necessary to continue with a custom mix to meet nutrient specifications needed under special circumstances.

Make certain that prices for a commercial concentrate are obtained on a feed that will adequately balance the forage ration being used. Savings possible in some cases may approach $35 per cow yearly compared to feeding a custom mix.

Farm Feed Costs

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Corn, No. 2y - 2.55 BU. 4.56 CWT.
Wheat, No. 2 - 2.64 BU. 4.41 CWT.
Barley, No. 3 - 2.02 BU. 4.32 CWT.
Oats, No. 2 - 1.45 BU. 4.52 CWT.
Soybeans, No. 1 - 5.48 BU. 9.15 CWT.
New Ear Corn - 62.43 BU. 3.12 CWT.
Alfalfa Hay - 100.00 BU. 5.00 CWT.
Mixed Hay - 87.00 BU. 4.35 CWT.
Timothy Hay - 83.00 BU. 4.15 CWT.

Good Feeding Still Justified

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Price relationships for concentrates, forage and milk, even at anticipated net prices of $11 for milk, indicate the need to feed concentrates at levels as narrow as 1:2½ to 1:3, in many situations.

The ration should be a well-balanced one to make good use of feed and to ensure good performance.

However, dairymen with a serious cash flow problem due to substantial debts, rising non-feed costs and lower milk prices may need to at least temporarily use a high forage, lower concentrate ration that is well balanced.

This may be done with a moderate sacrifice in milk production if forages are of good quality to enable increased intake and provide reasonable amounts of energy.

How Does Your Herd Compare?

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — This data is pulled from Pennsylvania DHIA's mainframe computer each week. It is a one-week summary representing approximately one-fourth of the herds on test, as they are tested monthly.

These data are valuable from a business management standpoint and can be used for comparing your operations to the averages from almost 1,400 herds across the state.

This man would prefer that you didn't plant Jacques alfalfas

He has a profitable little sideline selling hay to dairy farmers and beef producers whose alfalfa stands didn't produce enough to get them through the winter.

But he doesn't get many calls from farmers who grow Chief, Elevation or Multi-plier from Jacques. Because they produce more of their own high-quality alfalfa.

One reason, of course, is the genetic yield potential of Jacques alfalfa varieties Elevation, for example, has one of the highest four-year yield averages among all varieties tested by the Universities of Minnesota and Wisconsin

But another major factor is their unequaled disease resistance. Multi-plier earned 24 out of a possible 25 points under the University of Wisconsin disease resistance rating system And no variety even begins to compare to Chief for its level of resistance to Phytophthora and bacterial wilt, the two most damaging alfalfa diseases.

That means Jacques alfalfas keep producing extra tons of alfalfa year after year.

Computer Helps Brothers

Steve Hershey follows a breeding chart kept in the barn. He also maintains lactation production curves on each cow, and rankings of other production factors on each cow so that he knows exactly how each is performing. Recently he culled a cow that had been near the bottom of several charts. Without the information, he may have kept her on, draining the overall efficiency of the herd.

If there is anything of a silver lining to the pressure put on the Hersheys by the lower milk price it is that they are forced to scrutinize their practices.

"It forces you to look closely at some pre-conceived notions," Steve said.

"As much as I would like to say to the industry that staying 50 cows would be enough, going to 60 and keeping costs where they are may be the only way," he said.

"It may take buying cows to fill out the herd, and if it means breaking some pre-conceived notions about having a 100 percent homebred herd, so be it."

Steve said the pressure also has caused him to rethink his breeding program slightly.

"Milk makes money. In the past several years I've used a formula of using evenly balanced bulls. I may change that to go with higher production."

There are some other avenues, also. The current herd rolling average is 22,300 pounds of milk, 796 pounds butterfat and 693 pounds of protein. It was higher, up to 24,500.

"We're on our way back up. We had a feed problem," that Steve said is corrected.

One aspect of managing the herd is health management. Steve said he has "lost very few cows over the years. We've lost one cow due to being down during the past three to four years. Even while they're down, we milk them and feed them," he said.

Steve said such care while a cow is feeling bad helps them to recover and gain their place back in the herd. He said sometime they've had a cow down for days before it would come around. He said that others should probably pamper ill cows a little more.

"There's an industry wide tendency to forget they (sick animals) exist," he said. "They need extra care when they're down."

With a masters degree in agricultural economics and rural sociology with a minor in anthropology, Dale started out in partnership with his father, went back to school to complete his degree, worked in extension in Clarion County for awhile, then returned to the farm to go into partnership with Steve.

Both well-educated in farming, they have specialized. "We try to run the farm as a business."

With the low milk prices however, it would seem that Dale could leave the farm, or if it became financially dangerous to keep it, for the brothers to sell the farm.

However, those aren't really options, according to the brothers.

"If it were a run-down farm that we bought, tried to make work for five years and couldn't make it go, then no one would complain if we sold it. But it's been in the family for four generations. We will try everything we can to keep it," Steve said.

Dale said he also intends to continue with farming because of his nature.

"I discovered that, while I like this, working in the office, I need hands-on. I can't be in an office all day."

The use of a computer, monthly expense reports compared to projected budget allowances, micro and macro management, just may allow the two to continue in dairying, despite flucuating milk prices.

"We have to be flexible," Dale said.

State Young Farmers Hold Convention

Hauck of Mifflinburg. John's emphasis on conservation as a member of the Crops Improvement Association resulted in a corn yield of 110 bushels/acre. He also uses an intensive pasture rotation system for his 45 milking Holsteins and 35 Holstein steers. Farming in partnership with his uncle, John uses the PYFA farm business analysis program. He had been an active FFA member in school.

In the Over 30 Outstanding Young Farmer division, the winners were Jim and Barbara Brant of Stonecreek Acres Farm, Berlin. Their 50 head of Holsteins average 20,700M 765F. Their 125-acre farm, which was designated a Dairy of Distinction in 1989, features conservation practices, including a manure pit, put in under a long-term agreement with the Soil Conservation Service.

Regional winners for Outstanding Community Service Award were: 1) Ron and Holly Weaner, Gettysburg, dairy farmers who are active church and school board members; 2) Sterling and Audrey Crone, Mifflinburg, who have a 120-acre Christmas tree farm and help with church, Boy Scout and Lions Club activities; and 3) Tom and Shirley Krall, Lebanon, dairy farmers who help with milk promotion and host school tours, visiting German farmers and "Fresh Air" children. Shirley participated in the Farm-City Exchange program.

For the Outstanding Farmer Under 30 Award, regional winners were; 1) David and Janice Stoner, Lancaster County, whose 75 registered Holsteins average 19,000M 4.2%F. They are active in church and community groups; 2) Jody and Leah Wiles, Gettysburg, who milk 300 Holsteins and raise 700 acres of crops, including timothy hay for mulching mushrooms; 3) Jamie Mitchell, Berlin, who milks 46 cows and raises potatoes to sell at a roadside stand; and 4) Dennis and Kim Fidler, Schuylkill Haven, who milk 62 Holsteins and raise specialty and feed crops on 780 acres.

Regional Outstanding Young Farmer Over 30 winners include: 1) David and Miriam Groff, who operate a farrowing and finishing hog operation in Lancaster County; 2) Terry and Shirley Womer, Middleburg, who milk 32 registered Holsteins and raise crops on 110 acres; 3) Jeff and Linda Grove, Shippensburg, who milk their 125 cows in a carousel parlor; and 4) Paul Maulfair, Fredericksburg, who milks 70 head of Holsteins and Ayrshires and installed a sod waterway to drain water from a nearby housing development.

Winner of the Spokesperson for Agriculture Award was Dennis Spangler, Mifflinburg, who gave a speech about pesticides. Dennis will compete in the national contest at the YFA convention in Mobile, AL, in December.

Newly elected officers for PYFA are: Larry Wilkinson, president; Duane Kling, president elect; Henry Sanders, past president; Henry Zerby, secretary; Jeff Rohrer, treasurer; Tom Krall, public relations director; Dale Herr, Region II v.p.; Tim Wetzel, Region III v.p.; Wesley Heckman, Region IV v.p.; Paul Kemerer, Region V v.p.; and Jim Berry, Region VII, v.p.

On Thursday several tours were scheduled that included the College of Agriculture, Penn State Sports Complex and three farms.

Sycamore Farms located west of State College in Pennsylvania Furnace, consists of six farms with 600 tillable acres. Roy Campbell and family raise all their own feed for their farrow to finish hog operation. They currently farrow 120 sows and market about 1,700 fat hogs annually. A new 36'x180' farrowing/nursery building, expected to produce 4,600 pigs annually will be shown. In addition to the hog operation the farm also raises 35 acres of potatoes sold for table stock.

Harner Farm was founded in the mid 1940s by Paul and Emily Harner and is now operated by their sons, Dan and Tom. The farm consists of 100 acres with the primary crop being apples with an increased emphasis on produce such as sweet corn, cantaloupes,

Run down

"The place was pretty well run down," said Stees. "The lawn was covered with, you name it, refrigerators, trash, all sorts of garbage. I built a pond, cleaned up around the place, knocked out the fence rows, and buried all the trash."

For the next five years, Stees worked steadily on improving the property, including replacing the floor in the house (using silo wood), planting pine trees as buffer zones and windbreaks, and repairing the barn.

"When I first came into the barn, I was really amazed," he said. "I knew I had to do something, because the barn was under four feet of manure and you couldn't tell where the stanchions were."

The concrete stalls were in near shambles, which Stees quickly worked to clean and rebuild. Every year, according to Stees, he was involved in a new, large project that aimed to take care of the problems and rebuild the farm.

Work on soil

But it was the work on the land that first took the conservation farmer's attention.

"The first thing we did was put in the grassland waterways and contour strips,' he said. From the day be began with the district in 1967, he has been working to repair the land under their auspices.

Stees said that some of the worst soil had a pH of 4.2. The best soil had a pH of 5.0. In the first year of planting crops, the farmer said he harvested 42 bushels of corn per acre. In the drought year of 1988, Stees said the harvest was better than the first year — and now, Stees regularly harvests about 140-150 bushels of corn per acre.

Stees keeps a "running track record" of improving the soil conditions and the property.

Major improvement

"I don't think there's been a year when I didn't put some type of major, major improvement in the property," he said. "From grassland waterways to a diversion to a building. This year I will be putting in a buffer zone of pine trees."

In addition, he recently installed a manure holding tank, which converts manure into a slurry. He uses spreading calibrations to apply the right amount of manure to the soil. The farmer also conducts regular soil and manure tests to ensure the soil is receiving the correct nutrients.

In the beginning, it was difficult to farm, because Stees had no money and took a long time in obtaining the equipment and building the herd. For the first five years, he worked as a herdsman at the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center, taking what free time he had to repair the farm. In 1969, he married, and shortly after moved permanently into the farm.

Stees started out with some inexpensive calves, which he wasn't happy about, since they couldn't produce and he couldn't breed them. After he sold them, he bought 10 registered cows. One of the cows provided the foundation of the herd, birthing seven heifers in a 12-year span.

Milks 50

Stees milks 50 head of registered Holsteins with 30 replacement heifers and calves. He's raising 15 heifers this year. He grows most of his own feed, but he purchases 25-30 tons of hay per year.

The dairy operation is a comfort stall with a milking pipeline. A member of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) since 1977, Stees thinks that the "bottom line" rules in his management decisions.

"I'm not a person that pushes high production," he said. "I'm more concerned about feed costs and the bottom line. That's my baby. A lot of people demand the production and high milk and they want records and everything else. I'd rather have the cows work for me, not me work for the cows."

Recently, his son Clinton worked on erosion control as part of a 4th grade science project. The project won first place in the school and second in the county and pinpointed a Parkesburg development that was causing erosion problems. The developer was subsequently fined for causing erosion problems at the development site.

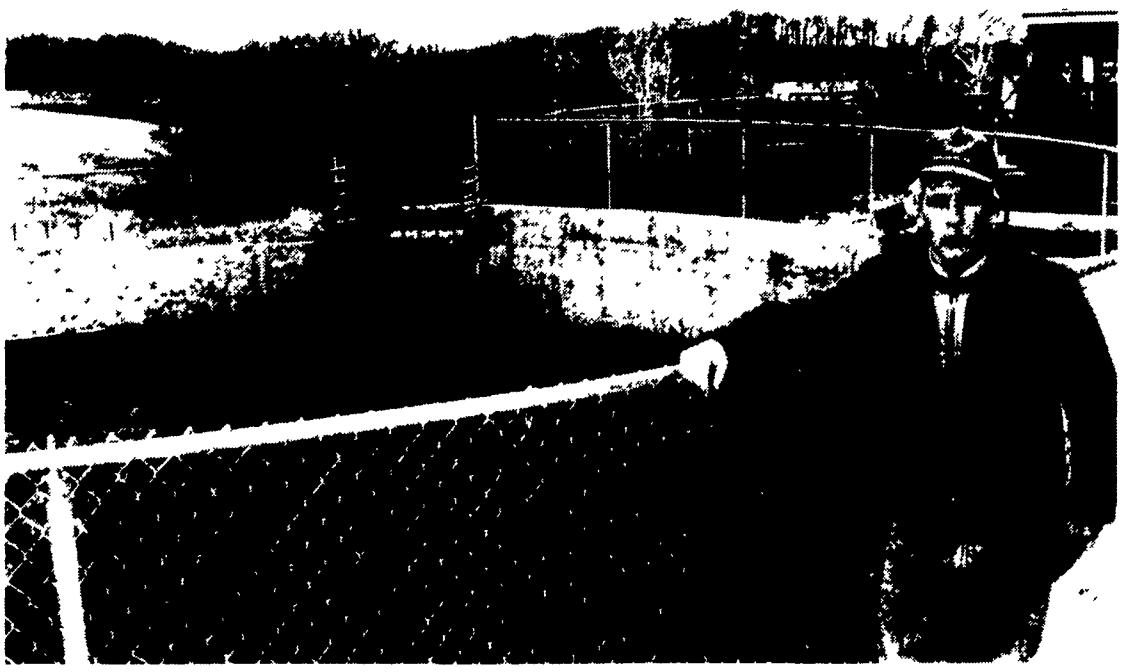
Effort By Conservation Farmer



This recently constructed manure holding pit helps John Peter Stees manage nutrients on his dairy farm.

Stees stands with his wife, Sally, overlooking the pond he constructed on the farm.

Idea of erosion

"He came up with the idea of erosion (control) on his own," said Sally. "Nobody coached him. He stood up and talked about the idea of erosion, because his dad was a farmer and he was concerned about this."

Stees said that "anything you read is about how farmers are putting stuff in the Chesapeake Bay.

But you never hear anything about the developer, and the stuff he gets away with."

But being recognized as Farmer of the Year brings a sense of pride to the Chester Co. dairyman.

"I still feed the real award to me is knowing that I took a marginal piece of land and made it into something," said Stees. "That makes me feel, hey, I did do something, I made a difference on this property. I'm not seeking the awards. I'm not that type of person. I'm going to do what's best for the property and what's best for the family.

"I think the greatest enjoyment is seeing the improvements that we make every year," he said. "And it's just a feeling of our independence — it's fantastic!"

Breezy-Farms is owned and operated by the John H. Kocher family. Currently they are milking 200 registered Holsteins in a new blue diamond double 10 parlor with automatic take-offs. Heifers are raised in a modernized heifer barn which has drawn a lot of interest since its completion. John and Margie grow all their own feed on the 600-acre farm.

Viking Ship® Calcium Nitrate
15.5-0-0-19Ca
The fertilizer to start with
...the fertilizer to stay with GROWTH
Nitrate nitrogen is the fast-acting, controllable N-source for fruit trees. Unlike ammonium nitrogen (NH_4), nitrate-N affords optimum nutrition timing for rapid growth and early production. Calcium Nitrate supplies 14.5% nitrate nitrogen.
QUALITY
Calcium availability, at adequate levels, is essential to early and sustained production of high-quality tree fruit. Young trees, as well as mature, producing orchards never outgrow their need for calcium.
Specifically, root vigor, reduced fruit disorders, optimum color and size and storage quality of fruit are directly related to adequate calcium levels. With Calcium Nitrate as your orchard fertilizer, trees and soil receive 19% water-soluble calcium.
YIELD
Heavy production of high-quality tree fruit has been achieved—for more than 40 years—by growers using Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate fertilizer.
Use Calcium Nitrate in your fertilizer program. You will be pleased by the predictable response—the growth, quality and yield improvement possible with Calcium Nitrate's combination of essential orchard nutrients. For the life of your trees...Calcium Nitrate...the fertilizer to start with, the fertilizer to stay with!
As with any fertilizer application, consult your extension office or other advisory service for recommended practice that meets local crop and soil conditions.

Lancaster, Lebanon Dairy Days Announced

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)— Several dairy programs have been scheduled by extension agents working in Lancaster and Lebanon counties.

There are two Lancaster County dairy days, to be held Feb. 26 and March 5 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

On Feb. 27 a dairy day program is to be held in Lebanon County at the Prescott Fire Hall.

The Lebanon program and the first Lancaster program are nearly identical. The theme is "Putting the Pieces Together for Production Efficiency in the 90s."

The program is designed to help dairymen cope with low milk prices and to strengthen their competitive position for the 90s. In addition to production efficiency, speakers will also address concerns related to animal welfare, lung health of farm workers, managing farm finances in times of cyclic milk prices, and look at trends in milk production and milk marketing.

Feb. 26 and 27 Program

On Feb. 26 and 27 Dr. Paul Chandler will discuss "Feeding and Managing Dairy Herds in Times of Low Milk Prices." Dr. Chandler is a dairy consultant, whose business is based in Dresden, Tenn.

Dr. Bruce Beachnau, technical services veterinarian for the Upjohn Company, Kalamazoo, Mich., will focus on "Dairy Reproduction and Udder Health," and on recent findings in these two areas of herd management.

Many dairymen are concerned about the productivity and longevity of their first calf heifers. Dr. Chandler and Dr. Beachnau will join Dr. Carl Brown and Jeff Zechman in a panel discussion on "Managing First Calf Heifers." Dr. Brown is a nutritionist with F.M. Brown's Sons Inc., in Birdsboro. Jeff Zechman is a dairy consultant for Gehman's Feeds, Denver.

Those in attendance will also have the opportunity to meet Dr. Stanley Curtis, head of Penn State's Dairy and Animal Science Department. Dr. Curtis is well known for his expertise in animal welfare, a topic of interest to farmers and to the public. He will address the topic of animal welfare as it relates to good animal husbandry.

Closely related to animal welfare and herd profits is cow comfort. This topic will be discussed on Feb. 26 by Dan McFarland, multi-county extension agent with agricultural engineering responsibilities in southcentral Pennsylvania.

The Lebanon County program on Feb. 27 also includes presentations on "Dairy Outlook" by Larry Yager, and on "Farm Nutrient Management" by Leon Ressler.

Yager is a multi-county extension marketing agent in Adams County and Leon Ressler is a multi-county nutrient management agent in Lancaster County.

Day Two:

Forage quality and efficiency of nutrient utilization by dairy cattle are important to herd profits. On the second day of the Lancaster County dairy day presentation, on March 5, Dr. Limin Kung, University of Delaware, is to inform dairymen about the use of silage inoculants, additives and preservatives. He will also update dairymen about feeding probiotics, a practice that can help improve the absorption and utilization of feed nutrients by dairy cattle.

Two dairy producers, David Dum and Robert Wenger, along with a Hamilton Bank representative, and Extension Agent Glenn Shirk, will share some thoughts about how to cope with lower milk prices.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

He's perfect. And it was love at first sight.

Dark, soulful eyes. Soft, silky hair. A warm and loving personality. Always ready to go anywhere with me. And waiting to greet me every morning with a big kiss.

No, no, no. Not The Farmer. The dog, friends, Our dog.

Though part of the family less than a year, Solomon has solidly wedged himself into all our hearts. Of the half-dozen or so dogs we've loved as part of the family over the years, this one has proved to be exceptionally intelligent, well-behaved, and playful.

That first night, though we instantly fell for his outgoing affection and how "pretty" he was, we weren't so sure he'd adapt. He spent the entire evening running around so frantically "marking territory" that he developed an infection. And promptly disappeared the next morning when we let him out, trotting nonchalantly back a couple of hours later.

After a few mornings of the same, we discovered he was busy paying his respects to the neighborhood lady dogs. A phone call promptly set up a visit to a local neutering clinic to end those excursions.

An assistant there sniffed at my description of the patient as a miniature Collie, and haultily corrected me that there is no such dog. They are Shelties. But larger than most purebred Shelties, Solomon's more a mid-size than a compact model.

Larger now, too, than when he arrived. In recent weeks, Solomon has begun to fill out more through the middle. This may in part have something to do with his stealing the barn cats' milk every chance he gets, while concurrently chasing them from his food dish.

Accustomed to being something of a house-dog for his first four years, he has adjusted well to his new career as a farm dog. Despite his long, thick hair, with full white chest and white feet, Solomon has always kept himself extremely clean. Only if the dairy barn's center alley has clean, fresh sawdust will he lay down there while we milk. He'll pick his way around wet or dirty spots, carefully planting his feet at only the driest places.

Unless he can help chase cattle.

An inbred instinct to help herd cattle overcomes his usual distaste for dirt. Every evening as we finish milking, The Farmer switches groups of heifers let in to the feed bunk area. Solomon knows switch-time almost to the minute, waiting around near the barn's back door 'til he gets the word. Oblivious to the barnyard "residue" around the bunk area, he prances around helping.

While he's often in and out of the house with us, four paws liberally coated with wet barnyard "residue" bar him from traipsing across the kitchen floor. Plus, he likes to sneak onto the living room couch if he thinks someone isn't looking, a no-no in our house -- clean or dirty-footed.

If he isn't admitted to the house shortly after the lights come on in the morning, he scratches his toenails against the aluminum storm door -- a grating, unmistakable racket that is his effective method of knocking.

Ever playful, Solomon thrives on "fetching." Tennis balls, Frisbees, kindling, rolled up newspapers -- he'll bring it all back and stand, tail thrashing, begging for another turn. A blown-up balloon sends him into a frenzy from which he has no rest until he's pounced on and burst it with a bang. Balloons are the only toys which surpass the old, faded soccer ball. I kick and he either carries or nudges it back with nose and paws. Solomon Soccer I call it. The Farmer calls it "spending quality time with the 'kid'."

We wanted a dog that would bark, alerting us to visitors. Solomon barks... at guineas, chickens, geese, motorcycles, cats, and most vigorously at wary UPS deliverymen. He takes his job very seriously, barking twice as hard if he thinks someone is even slightly intimidated by him.

So he chases cats, intimidates delivery people, has dirty feet, sneaks on the couch, and is prone to fleas. Okay, so he's not perfect.

But he's close enough.

Checking Chickens For Salmonella

WAYNE (Wayne Co.) — Farmers and USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service are working together to control the spread of Salmonella enteritidis from fresh, unbroken shell eggs.

Breeding flocks - the chickens that produce the chickens that lay the eggs (you buy) - are being tested to make sure they are Salmonella free. Research has proven a hen with Salmonella can pass the bacteria into their eggs.

This mandatory program seeks to control Salmonella spread, but it will probably be quite sometime before shell eggs can be certified Salmonella free.

Until that time there are several things consumers can do to protect themselves while still enjoying the flavor and nutrition of real eggs.

- Eggs are perishable food and should be handled and stored carefully.

- Store eggs in the refrigerator (40 degrees F). They should not be left out more than two hours. This is also true for hard-cooked eggs.

- Cook eggs thoroughly to (160 degrees F) to prevent the growth of bacteria: Any products containing eggs should also be cooked thoroughly before eating. This includes cake and cookie batters, ice cream mixes containing eggs and egg nogs.

- Some grocery stores are offering pasturized eggs. These eggs are safe to use in egg nogs and ice cream mixes without cooking.

If you have questions about egg safety or would like additional information please contact Debra Bryant, PSU Cooperative Extension Agent, at (717) 253-5970 ext. 239.

Farewell To Soil Conservationist

by Mary Laeger-Haggemeister
Dauphin Co. Correspondent

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — After eight years of service as a soil conservationist in Dauphin County, Burell Whitworth walked through the doors for the last time on January 18. He is heading to Somerset County where he will take on a supervisory role as district conservationist.

A Mississippi native, Whitworth graduated from Alcorn State University with a B.S degree in agronomy. Since moving to Pennsylvania he has lived in Erie, Franklin, Lebanon and Dauphin counties. In all locations he worked with Soil Conservation Service providing technical assistance to landowners on soil and water related problems. Specifically, Burell addressed issues of soil erosion, crop rotation, and nutrient management.

Burell Whitworth will miss the friendly people in Dauphin County.

When asked what he enjoyed about Dauphin County, Burell never hesitated to say, "The people, they were definitely good to work with!" He added, "Although Dauphin County houses Harrisburg and the sprawling suburban areas, there is a good deal of agriculture in Dauphin County and fishing holes! The variety of agricultural enterprises has made it an intriguing place to live."

Co-workers agreed that Burell's sense of humor will be greatly missed and that it will benefit him no matter where he lives and works.

Count Fat, Not Calories

NEWARK, De. — Losing weight is a popular New Year's resolution. And counting calories is a tradition for many dieters. However, recent research indicates that there may be a better way.

"Counting fat grams rather than calories may prove to be a more efficient way to lose body fat," says Dr. Sue Snider, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension nutrition specialist.

A study of middle-aged overweight men found that regardless of their calorie intake, the more fat they ate, the greater the amount of fat on their bodies. Snider notes that since 1900, the calorie intake per person in the United States has steadily declined, while the percentage of calories from fat has skyrocketed. At the same time, the average weight per person has increased.

"Researchers are finding more evidience that suggests calories in the form of fat convert more easily to body fat than do calories in the form of carbohydrates," Snider says. "One reason is that fats require fewer calories to break down and store than carbohydrates do. Only 3 percent of fat calories are used in this manner, while it takes 23 percent of carbohydrate calories to store it as fat."

In addition, fat is a very calorie-dense food by weight, Snider notes. While carbohydrates and protein each supply approximately 4 calories per gram, fat supplies 9 calories per gram. But elminiating fat is not the answer. The specialist says people need fat in their diets to supply essential fatty acids and to serve as a carrier for the fat-soluble vitamins A, D, E and K. In addition, fat adds to the aroma, texture and flavor of foods, while contributing to a feeling of fullness.

Snider says that ideally no more than 30 percent of calories in a maintenance diet should come from fat. Given a 2,000-calorie-per-day diet, no more than 600 calories (2,000 x.30) should come from fat. Since fat supplies approximately 9 calories per gram, 67 grams (600/9) of fat per day would be the limit.

It is difficult to restrict a diet to less than 20 percent fat and still have it be palatable. In addition, Snider says, it's difficult to get all the necessary fat-soluble vitamins when a diet is restricted beyond this level. Charts listing the breakdown of foods by grams of fat, protein and carbohydrates are readily available at bookstores or any place where calorie-counting guides are usually found.

Recording Artist Cyndi Garber Describes Herself As Farm Wife, Mother

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — When Cyndi Garber performs on stage, she tells the audience, "I'm a wife and a mom who loves to sing."

And when this farm wife sings a blend of contemporary sacred music, she communicates what music critics call a very warm personality with good stage presence. Her flexible and agile voice ranges from alto and to high soprano.

Cyndi said that her life as wife, mom, and singer blend together. In fact, while she packed eggs in the family's chicken operation, she wrote one of the five original songs now released on tape.

Recently, Cyndi was asked to sing on a tape with such well-known persons as Evangelist Billy Graham, and solists Sandi Patti and Twila Paris. On it, Cyndi sang "I Love To Tell The Story." Forty thousand copies of that tape were distributed to troops in Saudi Arabia.

With the war in the Middle East, Cyndi said that at many of her concerts, the audience participates in her rendition of "God Bless the USA." Often, the audience stand to their feet and shed tears.

Although Cyndi did not grow up on the farm, she said it was the next best thing. Her parents, former Amish, had horses, sheep and a few other animals at their Rawlinsville home.

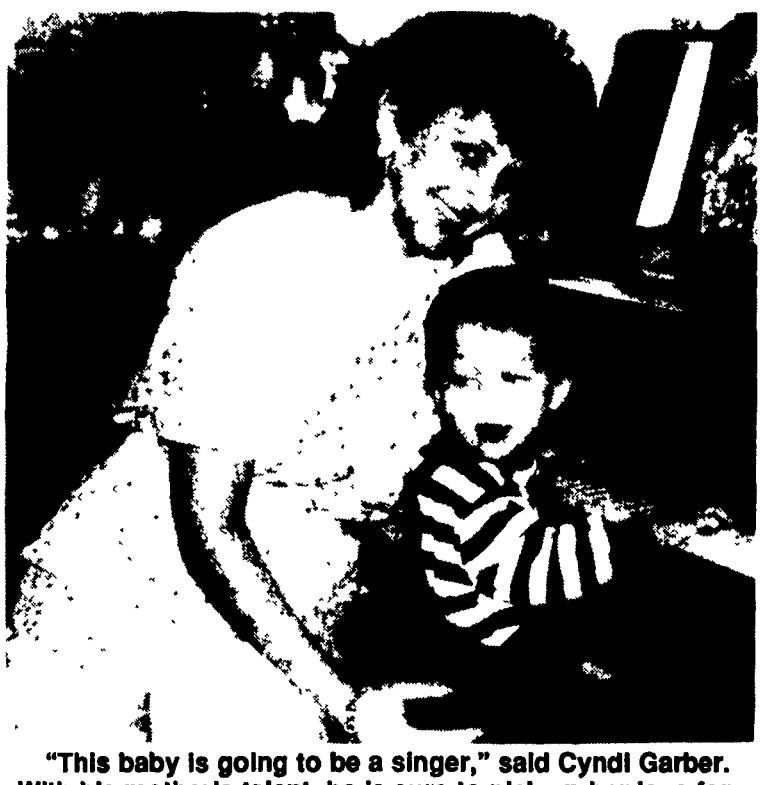
"I can't remember a time when I did not sing," Cyndi said, "but I can't say that professional singing was part of my plans."

In junior high school, she was asked to sing at churches. After that, appearances at banquets, weddings, and special functions became part of her life.

"I always felt comfortable in front of a crowd," Cyndi said.

She credits her success in part to her participation in county, district, and state chorus at Solanco High School and to playing the lead in the King and I and played in the Sound of Music. After graduation, she played Leisa in the Sound of Music at the Fulton Opera House.

Cyndi draws a firm line between performing and her own singing. She said, "I do not perform. I consider my singing a ministry. I share from the heart and from the home, and people can identify with me."



"This baby is going to be a singer," said Cyndi Garber. With his mother's talent, he is sure to pick up her love for singing.

The summer after high school graduation, Cyndi traveled to India with a singing team. Later, she attended Word Of Life Bible Institute for one year and toured with a singing group.

After her year at the Institute, Cyndi married Phil Garber.

Phil, his dad, James Garber, and brother Roger do partnership farming on 1,000 acres on their Mount Joy farms. They have 125,000 layers; 125,000 pullets, 150 steers, 600 hogs, several grain trucks for Garber Farms, Inc. Trucking, and three combines for custom combining.

The Garbers also have an on-farm feed mill in which they make about 200 tons of feed a week. Roger is in charge of the feed mill, chickens, and the book work.

Phil oversees the field work and the custom combining. Phil said all the corn, soybeans, and barley they grow on the 1,000 acres are used for their own livestock.

Despite the large farm operation, Phil runs the sound for his wife's concerts, which average six every month.

"I couldn't do it if my father and my brother didn't pick up my load. They get a lot of behind the scenes work for which they don't get credit," Phil said.

"Farming is in my blood. I can't think of a better life," Phil said. "But I do like to run the sound for Cyndi. It's a nice switch from farm work. I really can't say which job I like best."

The Garbers have three sons, Ryan, 9; Rodney, 7; and Scott, 18 months. Although the boys sing around the house, they do not like to be on stage.

Cyndi has a lot of natural singing ability, but she has worked hard in recent years to develop her voice. She takes voice lessons weekly and is supposed to set aside time each day for vocal exercises and for singing practice, but Cyndi said, "There just isn't time for me to stop everything and concentrate on my music. It is quite easy for me to sing while I'm working around the house. I can sing for one and a half hours and really get lost in it."

Cyndi sings with an ensemble of six ladies from her church, but regrets that lack of time prevents her from singing in the choir.

Most of the Garbers' itinerary is near home, but sometimes she does travel to New York and the New England area. They have a 28-year-old friend who cares for the children during the singing engagements.

Cyndi takes an active interest in her children's schools. For three years, she has been homeroom mother. This past year, she started a chapter of Moms In Touch, an international group designed for mothers to meet weekly to pray for their children, the schools and the faculty.

Before the birth of the baby, Cyndi packed eggs on a regular basis. Like many farm families, accidents happen. Last year, Rodney's hand was caught in an egg roller and required three surgeries. On the eve of his second surgery, Cyndi went into labor with their third child. After all three returned home, Rodney needed to be kept as still as possible so the skin graft would take effect. Then Cyndi had to take him to therapy every day for three weeks.

"I love being a wife and mother," Cyndi said. I know the hectic schedules that families have. I think that is why so many people

I Love What I Do

As a mother at home, I love what I do.
Even though it would be hard to explain it to you.

To get ahead of my day, I should be up at dawn,
But when the alarm rings, I roll over and yawn.

It's breakfast for school kids, and brush your teeth please,
Oh here comes the bus, your pants have holes in the knees.

I rush to have my quiet time, but I hear the baby cry.
The phone rings, the prayer chain, "I'm so sorry," I sigh.

I've started the washing, dishes to do,
What will I make for lunch? Must go — beef stew.

Is it that time already? Car pooling is a treat.
They all pile in, now there's mud on the seat.

May I have a friend over to play for a while?
Oh sure, what's one more, I say with a smile.

It's a great way to share Jesus with others, I know.
With His love in our lives, I trust it will show.

The baby is fed, bathed, dressed and down for his nap.
Lunch is over, need to start supper, it seems to overlap.

It's homework, drum lessons, and chores as a rule.

It's mealtime again, dishes, baths, devotions, and prayers.
They are all tucked in and free from all cares.

Now for some adult conversation just my husband and me,
But when I crawled into bed, I was too tired, you see.

My mind wandered back to what went on all that day.
I smiled as I remembered it went something this way...

Mom, I can't find my shoes, will you come play with me?
It's a little bit hectic to take care of three.

Honey, is lunch ready? as he came through the door.
It's even more crazy to take care of four.

I walked past the mirror, I looked like a dive.
It's next to impossible to take care of five.

But wait, a small voice reminded me, isn't that odd?
There's nothing impossible with our Almighty God.

Since her "birth" in 1921, Betty Crocker has shared many delicious cake mixes and cake recipes with three generations of American families.

In 1933, a thirteen-egg angel food cake was introduced. Holiday promotions in the '30s featured special recipes for the Sweetheart Cake, Roses in the Snow Cake and the Easter Bunny Cake.

The one-step method for mixing dry and liquid ingredients cut mixing time in half in 1943. During World War II, Betty helped consumers economize with recipes for the thrifty fruit cake and "economy" cakes.

In 1947, the first cake mixes were introduced to help busy mothers of the postwar era. GingerCake mix and Party Layer cake mix were popular for several years.

The Chiffon Cake was the cake discovery of the century. It contained a mystery ingredient that was new to cake making in 1948: salad or cooking oil. The Answer Cake was introduced in 1954. It consisted of a cake mix, a frosting mix and a baking pan.

Today, Betty Crocker is responding to consumers' concern about dietary fat. New SuperMoist Light cake mixes and Creamy Deluxe Light frostings are 94% fat free and have two-thirds less fat than the originals.

Celebrate the birthday of Betty Crocker with Minty Cream-filled cake. Created with frozen whipped topping and SuperMoist Light devil's food cake mix, it has all the flavor without all the fat. Now you can have your great-tasting cake and eat it, too.

Minty Cream-Filled Cake

1 package Betty Crocker SuperMoist Light devil's food cake mix
1 container (8 ounces) frozen whipped topping, thawed
10 hard peppermint candies, crushed
1 teaspoon peppermint extract
4-5 drops red food color, if desired

Heat oven to 350¢. Grease and flour tube pan, 10x4 inches. Prepare cake mix as directed on package. Pour batter into pan. Bake 45 to 50 minutes or until top springs back when touched in center. Cool 10 minutes. Invert onto wire rack or heatproof serving plate; remove pan. Cool cake completely.

Slice off top of cake about ¾ inch down; reserve top. Make cuts down into cake ¾ inch from outer edge and ¾ inch from edge of hole, leaving substantial "walls" on each side. Remove cake within cuts, using spoon or curved knife, being careful to leave a base of cake 1 inch thick.

Mix remaining ingredients thoroughly. Spoon half of the mixture into cake cavity; press firmly. Replace top of cake; press gently. Frost side and top of cake with remaining peppermint mixture. Refrigerate any remaining cake. 12 to 16 servings.

ANSWER — Marian Mosemann of Lehighton requested a fudge without sugar. Thanks to Betty Light, Lebanon, for sending one.

Sugar-Free Fudge

In a medium mixing bowl, cream until fluffy:
⅓ cup margarine
3 tablespoons evaporated skim milk
Dash salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
Add and stir in the following:
¼ cup cocoa
Sugar substitute for ¼ cup granulated white sugar
½ cup dry skim milk
½ cup cornstarch

Work dough with hands for 2 to 3 minutes after mixing. Divide dough in half. Form 2 8-inch logs. Wrap in plastic wrap. Refrigerate until firm before cutting into ¼-inch slices. Makes 64 slices.

ANSWER — Myah Tielman, Lehighton, requested a recipe for a round loaf of rye bread similar to that which had been sold by Fritzinger's Bakery, Walnutport. I'm not sure if this is the recipe that she wanted, but here is one for rye bread.

RYE BREAD

2½ cups rye flour
2½ cups white flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon caraway seeds, optional
1 package dry yeast
1 cup milk
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon margarine
¼ cup corn meal
1 egg white
2 tablespoons water

Combine flours in a large bowl, thoroughly mix 1⅔ cups flour mixture, sugar, salt, caraway seeds, and undissolved active dry yeast.

Combine milk, ¾ cup water, honey, and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm. Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1 cup flour mixture or enough flour mixture to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough flour mixture to make a soft dough. (If necessary, add additional white flour to obtain desired dough).

Turn dough out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide in half; form each piece into a smooth ball. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. Flatten each piece slightly. Roll lightly on board to form tapered ends. Sprinkle 2 greased baking sheets with corn meal. Place breads on baking sheets. Combine egg white and 2 tablespoons water; brush breads. Let rise, uncovered, in warm place, free from draft, 35 minutes.

Bake in 400 degree oven for 25 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

QUICK POTATO TIPS

Chop Sticks: Microwave baking potatoes just until tender. Cut into thin lengthwise wedges. Arrange on greased baking sheet. Brush with mixture of melted butter, soy sauce, minced garlic, and hot pepper sauce. Bake in hot oven until lightly browned, 15 to 20 minutes.

Half-Baked Spuds: Halve medium potatoes lengthwise, brush cut surfaces with butter and lemon juice, then dip into a mixture of grated Parmesan cheese and pepper. Place cut sides down on well-greased baking sheet. Bake in 375 degree oven 25 to 30 minutes until potatoes are tender and bottoms are crusty.

Potatoes Ole: Mix leftover or instant mashed potatoes with canned diced green chiles, sliced green onions and shredded Cheddar cheese. Form into patties and coat with cornmeal. Saute until crusty in a small amount of oil in a non-stick skillet.

Potatoes Romanoff: Microwave baking potatoes just until tender. Split and squeeze gently to fluff. Top with steamed broccoli flowerets and dollop with a mixture of sour cream and onion soup mix.

Tomato Potatoes: Microwave baking potatoes just until tender, cool slightly. Slice three-fourths of the way through at half-inch intervals. Insert small, thin tomato slices between potato slices. Drizzle with prepared vinaigrette and sprinkle with sliced green onions. Serve warm.

Potato Florentine: Combine 6 ounces spinach and 4 ounces white sauce in sauce pan. Heat thoroughly. Spread over hot, baked potato, and shape gently to form a flat surface. Put butter in potato. Add creamed spinach. Top with 2 ounces grated Swiss cheese. Serves 1.

Potato Italiano: Use your favorite pizza sauce recipe. Layer the pepperoni, sliced mushrooms and black olives on potato. Top with mozzarella cheese.

Recording Artist Cyndi Garber

Despite her fame, Cyndi Garber, a solist and recording artist, said that she is first of all a wife and mother.

identify with me when I'm on stage — I speak their language."

When Cyndi attended a national Christian artist's music seminar, she was thrilled to place in competition. She said, "I'm only one of a bunch of singers. There are so many talented singers, but I hope to make a difference. My husband and I always pray before we give a concert that those who come will leave a little bit differently than when they came. We hope to encourage them."

Balancing life's duty isn't easy for Cyndi. She said, "I spend hours on ministry things such as phone calls and the books. To cope, she said, "I do the next thing that needs to be done, and don't think about everything that needs to be done tomorrow."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The other day the mailman brought a large brown envelope addressed to me. In big, bold black letters on the front, it declared that my name was selected as a prize winner in their $100,000.00 Grand Prize Sweepstakes. I intended to throw it away without even opening it — but I didn't.

Inside was a Spring 1991 garden catalog with flowers and more flowers. So I leafed through it and saw several new kinds that I would like to try. Whether I order some or not has not been decided. But flowers are one of my weak points as a lot of people seem to know.

My house has 70 house plants on the first floor windowsills and some 50 on bedroom windowsills. They get watered every week or oftener as I enjoy seeing them grow. Only four kinds have flowers and the others are foliage plants. The geranium has the reddest flowers you ever saw, the begonias are pink, the impatiens red and white and the African violets a deep purple.

Recently when I entertained, some guests brought a bouquet of fresh flowers, none of which I could name immediately as they were quite unusual. I also received a gardenia plant and a pink poinsettia plant. I have several books on the care of such flowers and so I hunted up the instructions. One needs lots of light and a lot of water while another should be kept rather dry. Plants are somewhat like people and have different needs that must be met in order for them to be happy and grow to maturity.

This year I planted a small cherry tomato plant in a plastic pot and put it on a sill in our bedroom. At this writing it is three feet tall and still climbing. It has bloomed several times but I'm not sure if it will have any tomatoes. A few years ago a reader wrote to me and said that I should brush the flowers with a bunny tail to pollinate them. Maybe I'll try that.

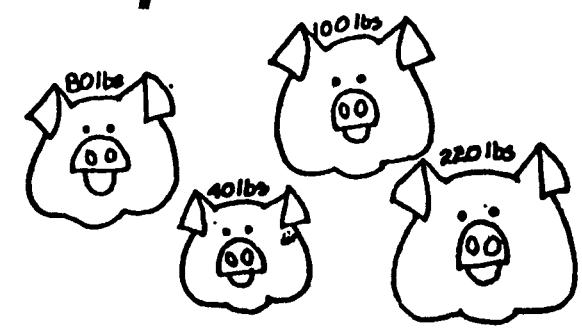
Snack Apple Tips

- A cored apple filled with peanut butter or chicken salad makes a great "walking" lunch.
- Freeze individual serving boxes of apple juice and put in a lunch bag to keep other food cool. The apple juice will thaw by lunch time.
- Substitute apple slices for jelly on peanut butter sandwiches.
- Mix fresh apple chunks or applesauce into hot oatmeal.
- Let your kids "dip" apple slices into peanut butter.
- Freeze apple juice for a naturally sweet juice pop.
- Freeze applesauce then whip it up in a blender for a spoon-em-up "slushie."
- Mix apple chunks into a favorite high-fiber breakfast cereal. The apple chunks add a sweet crunch and extra fiber.
- Don't forget apples at a salad bar. They're great tossed in both fruit and green salads.
- For a quick and easy lunch, layer apple slices in a cheese sandwich made with low-fat cheese, then toast it in the oven.
- Serve chicken salad on apple slices. Or mix chunks of apple into the salad for a colorful, flavorful crunch.
- For a quick, low-calorie dessert, microwave a cored apple in a little apple cider until tender.
- Apple slices, low-fat cheese and whole wheat crackers make a delicious snack or appetizer.

A Pig Grows Up

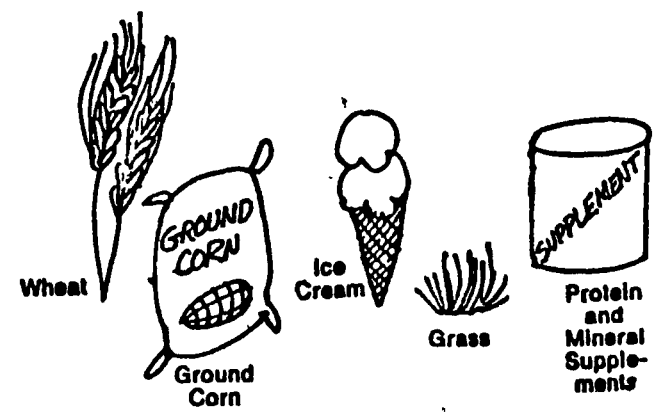
A pig is weaned (begins to eat other than from its mother) at approximately 4 to 7 weeks. After it is weaned; it is called a feeder pig.



DIRECTIONS

Find and draw a circle around the pig that is just the right weight for market.

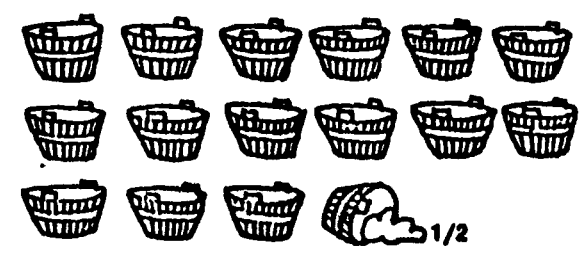
A pig eats ground corn, protein and mineral supplements. A farmer must be sure the pigs have water available at all times.



Circle the items the pig must have in its diet to make it the right market weight.

To reach a market weight of 220 pounds takes about 6 months.

To reach market weight, the pig must eat how many bushels of feed? COUNT THEM.



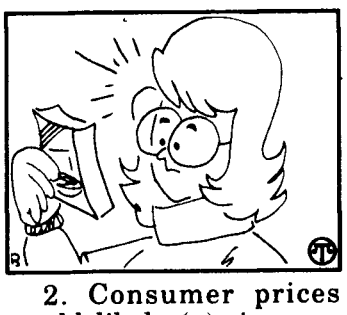
This equals approximately 870 pounds of feed — 750 pounds of corn and how many pounds of protein and mineral supplements?
(Subtract the two figures to find that answer).

To reach market weight of 220 pounds takes about how many months?

QUICK QUIZ

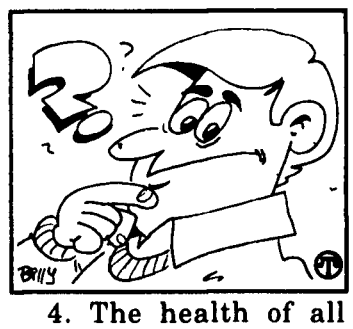
1. If American farmers stopped using crop protection chemicals, studies show, food production would (a) rise sharply (b) stay the same (c) fall dramatically?

MANY KINDS OF APPLES ARE GROWN IN PENNSYLVANIA.



2. Consumer prices would likely (a) rise rapidly (b) stay the same (c) fall slightly if farmers stopped using crop protection chemicals?

3. Even without the food grown with the help of crop protection chemicals, the U.S. would still be a leader in the global agricultural market. (a) True (b) False?



4. The health of all Americans would improve if farmers stopped using crop protection chemicals. (a) True (b) False?

ANSWERS

1. (c) A recent study by an independent economics firm found there would be dramatic losses in food production if crop protection chemicals use was suspended. 2. (a) The study also predicted rapid increases in consumer prices 3. (b) The U.S. could be eliminated as a global competitor in agriculture markets but for crop protection chemicals. 4 (b) Because diets might tend to be poorer, health risks would increase, and agriculture would put greater pressure on the environment, risking our health and safety far into the future. Farm Credit Bankers Have Long Been Recognized For Achievements In The Field.

Farm Credit bankers possess their share of prestigious achievement awards. But more often than not, the awards they're most proud of are the ones they've earned in, say, conservation, dairy, or veterinary science.

Not many bankers can say that.

That's because most Farm Credit loan officers were born and raised on farms. They grew up active in 4-H and FFA. Many even got their college degrees from ag schools.

What's more, every one of our loan officers goes through the toughest ag lending training program in America.

And because our loan officers understand farming as well as financing, they're not only smarter. They're faster. In fact, they have the power of loan approval equal to most bank presidents.

So stop by soon and talk with your nearby Farm Credit loan officer. Because whenever you need some extra help in your field, you'll want to work with the banker most accomplished in his.

Beef Industry Releases Brochure

CHICAGO, Il. — "There's good news about beef. Through the combined efforts of ranchers, farmers, packers and retailers, leaner cattle are being brought to market and more closely trimmed beef cuts are being sold at the retail meat counter." That's the message consumer will receive in the new checkoff-funded "Facts About Beef" brochure just released by the Beef Industry Council.

This updated, 24-page brochure provides the latest nutritional facts on beef and tells consumers that beef is a significant source of many nutrients that are essential to good health. The brochure includes facts from the new "Dietary Guidelines for Americans," released by the USDA and the Department of Health and Human Services. These guidelines promote the importance of eating a balanced and varied diet. Results from the National Market Basket Survey, which finds that beef sold at retail has 27 percent less trimmable fat than previously documented in "USDA Agriculture Handbook 8-13," are also provided.

Discussions about beef inspection and quality grading, selection and labeling, meat storage, food safety, and beef cookery round out the list of topics discussed in the brochure.

Through consumer information programs, more than one million copies of the brochure will be offered free to consumers through a variety of distribution sources, including food editors, trade show exhibits, educational seminars, public relations efforts and state beef council offices.

"Facts About Beef" is a checkoff-funded consumer information program funded by the Beef Board and managed on behalf of beef producers and importers by the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board, a federation of 44 state beef councils that works to build demand for beef.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

When you think of soybeans, do you think of luscious strawberry pie and healthy crunchy granola?

February is Soybean Month in my home state of Minnesota. Even if it isn't in your state, I thought you'd like today's delicious and nutritious recipes.

Many food products are made with soybean oil. Soybean oil is low in saturated fat and has a unique balance of Omega-3 and Omega-6 fats, which tend to have a favorable effect on serum cholesterol (which is thought to reduce the risk of coronary heart disease).

But what, you ask, does strawberry pie have to do with soybeans? Notice that Frosty Strawberry Pie calls for a food not commonly found in pie. Soybean oil mayonnaise is in both the crust and in the filling. It adds a wonderful tang and helps make this an elegant-looking and supertasting pie. Besides, it's fun to serve because no one can guess what magic ingredient it contains!

Soybean oil is used in 90 percent of prepared salad dressings, so you shouldn't have trouble finding soybean oil mayonnaise for Frosty Strawberry Pie. Right now, you'll have to read the label to make sure, but the American Soybean Association's new Soy-Mark (upright, thin yellow leaves against a round-cornered green square) soon will be on foods made with soy oil.

As for finding a salad or cooking oil made from soybeans to use in Soybean Nuts and Soybean Granola, again, you won't have much trouble. About 80 percent of salad and vegetable oils are made with soy oil. But read the label to make sure.

Soybean Nuts add extra crunch and protein to Soybean Granola. I was always curious about making those trendy Soybean Nuts, which are so expensive to buy in health food stores. I knew they were more nutritious than many other snacks, and I knew how good they tasted. But when I had lots of free soybeans around to experiment with, I only made soybean nuts twice. I deep-fat-fried them — my least favorite cooking method — so I never made them again. Now that I live in a large city, I had to go out and pay 99 cents a pound to do my experimenting. And, now that I've found how easy they are to make, I'll be making them again.

I found that microwave toasting the pre-soaked soybeans worked fine, but only if making a small amount at a time. The microwave floor gets very hot during cooking, so it's wise to let the oven cool a bit before making additional batches. I've included directions below, but the most efficient and easiest way of "roasting" is in your conventional oven.

Soybean Nuts

Rinse and drain soybeans (1 cup raw soybeans expands to about 2½ cups after soaking). Soak overnight, using 3 cups cold water for each cup of soybeans. If you're in a hurry, use the fast-soak method: Bring soybeans and water to a boil; boil 2 minutes and let stand 1 to 2 hours.

Drain soybeans; dry thoroughly by wrapping them in a towel. "Roast" them with either of the following methods. Be careful not to overcook. They continue browning after both baking and microwaving. After cooking, sprinkle soybeans with salt or other seasonings, if desired. Spread on paper towels to drain and cool. Store tightly covered in a cool place.

Conventional oven: This method is easiest for a large amount. Stir together soaked soybeans and 1 teaspoon soybean oil (for each cup of soaked soybeans) on a large cookie sheet. Bake at 350° F 50 to 60 minutes, stirring after each 15 minutes, or until soybeans are light golden brown.

Microwave oven: "Roast" no more than 2 cups at a time. Stop and let your microwave cool before cooking additional batches. For 2 cups of soaked soybeans: Combine soybeans with 1 teaspoon soybean oil in a microwavable and heat-proof glass 9- or 10-inch pie plate. Microwave (High), uncovered, 10 to 12 minutes, stirring after each 2 minutes, or until soybeans look slightly browned.

Soybean Granola

4 cups uncooked oatmeal (not instant)
1 cup wheat germ
1 cup roasted soybeans (see above)
1 cup sliced almonds or other nuts
1 cup sunflower nuts
½ cup wheat-bran cereal
¾ cup honey
6 tablespoons soybean oil
½ teaspoon salt (optional)
2 teaspoons vanilla

Combine oatmeal, wheat germ, soybean nuts, almonds, sunflower nuts and wheat-bran cereal in a microwavable 9x13- or 8x12-inch dish; set aside.

Place honey, soybean oil and salt, if used, in a microwavable 4-cup measure. Microwave (High) 1½ to 2½ minutes. Mixture should boil for about 30 seconds. Stir in vanilla.

Pour over dry ingredients in dish; mix until well moistened. Microwave (High) 8 to 10 minutes or until mixture is steaming and slightly toasted, stirring well after each 2 minutes. Watch carefully toward end of cooking so it doesn't burn. Pour onto large cookie sheet and cool completely, stirring several times. Granola will become crisp as it cools. Store in airtight container in refrigerator. Makes 8 cups.

Hint: Stir at times indicated, or granola will burn in spots, especially toward end of cooking. To stir, move outside edges of mixture to center and center parts to outside edges.

Each ½ -cup serving: 311 calories, 11g protein, 17g fat, 33g carbohydrate, 19mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.

Frosty Strawberry Pie

1¼ cups cinnamon graham cracker crumbs (about 8 whole crackers, finely crushed)
¼ cup low-calorie soybean oil mayonnaise
½ cup low-calorie soybean oil mayonnaise
2 tablespoons slightly thawed frozen lemonade concentrate
1 package (10 ounces) frozen strawberries with sugar, thawed
1 pint (2 cups) regular or lower-calorie vanilla ice cream

Mix crumbs and ¼ cup low-calorie soybean oil mayonnaise until well combined. Pat mixture evenly into bottom and sides of a microwavable 9-inch pie plate. Microwave (High) 1½ to 2½ minutes, rotating plate once. When done, crust will feel firm in most spots. Chill well before filling.

Using electric mixer, beat together ½ cup low-calorie soybean oil mayonnaise and lemonade concentrate until smooth. Add strawberries and beat until strawberries are crushed and no white specks of mayonnaise remain. Add ice cream and beat just until combined. Pour into cool crust and freeze until firm. Makes on 9-inch pie (6 to 8 servings).

Hint: To partially thaw strawberries, remove strawberries to a microwavable dish. Microwave (High) 1 minute; break apart with a fork. If ice cream is very hard, microwave 2 cups for about 30 seconds or until slightly softened, but not melted.

Each serving — ⅛ of pie, made with regular ice cream: 253 calories, 3g protein, 11g fat, 73g carbohydrate, 265mg sodium, 13mg cholesterol.

Hint: To make crust the easy way, use your food processor. Place broken-up crackers in dry work bowl fitted with knife blade. Process with on-off pulses until fine crumbs form. Add mayonnaise and process with on-off pulses until well-mixed.

Guide Aims To Increase Veal Sales

A cutting and merchandising brochure has been developed by the Veal Committee of the Beef Industry Council (BIC) to provide retail meat cutters with new ideas to increase veal sales.

The flip chart brochure, "Veal Variations: New Cutting and Merchandising Ideas," is designed to help retailers offer customers a wider selection of veal cuts. It shows there's an alternative to the $9 per pound cut. Half the cuts in the brochure can be merchandised for under $5 per pound.

The back page of the brochure contains basic veal information retailers can pass on to their customers, including nutritional facts, refrigerator and freezer storage guidelines and cooking tips.

Parker Takes 4-H Programs To Juvenile Offenders

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — There's a lot of pecking going on at Barnes Hall, and it isn't the kids causing the rumpus at the detention center for juvenile offenders.

It's chicks. Chicks that have just hatched and are adopted by the kids in the program.

If newly hatched chicks are handled by a human being after birth, the chick becomes attached to that person and will follow him or her around.

Zoann Parker, 4-H extension agent, and Ed Heston, director of Barnes Hall, talk about the success of the 4-H programs for juvenile offenders. Now that Parker has pioneered the work, other counties plan to try it.

"Don't think we are just hatching chicks to entertain the kids," Ed Heston, director of Barnes Hall, said. "The real intent is to nomalize a child environment here, to provide a wholesome activity that helps develop feelings in children toward another being."

Zoann Parker, Lancaster 4-H Extension agent who directs the embryology project, said, "The project teaches kids life science, that life is fragile and that they (kids) can let a caring imprint on the chicks."

Idcally, that message will be translated into human relationships and kids will learn to care for others and realize the value of human caring.

Kids identify their chosen chick by marking the egg before it is hatched in an incubator.

"It takes hours to get out of the shell," a 14-year-old remarked. "The chicks click, click at the shell, rest, and then click, click again."

Another remarked, "The chicks look ugly, nasty and soaky wet when first born. They just lay there until they dry."

After the chick is fully hatched and dried off, the kids mark the chicks with magic markers. One spotted a green Mohawk, another red spots.

They hold the chicks and let them crawl over them. They are allowed to take them to their bedrooms for three hours each day.

The kids are intrigued that their adopted chick will follow their fingers. They like to race them against each other.

"The chicks are just like dogs — they vie for territory," one kid remarked. "They peck at each other."

Another said, "But they aren't as smart as dogs. Chicks are mighty stupid. If you hold them in your hand, they'll walk right off it. You got to watch them all the time."

But Amy, a teenager with a three-month-old baby, countered. "Chicks don't take nearly as much work as a baby."

The downside of the embryology project is that the kids must give up the chicks within a week of the hatching.

The kids complain loudly. They beg to keep the chicks. Some try to hide them, but Parker is insistent.

"Chickens don't make good pets," Parker tells the kids. "I have a very good farm where I take the chickens and they are raised to lay eggs."

One kid said, "Promise you'll bring them back so that we can see how much they've grown."

The 4-H program also offers clubs in shop, foods and nutritions, rent event, and careers. About 17 kids are involved in 4-H programs at Barnes Hall.

Heston said that Barnes Hall is the first detention center to offer 4-H programs to the kids. He and the staff are thrilled with the enthusiasm that the kids show toward the 4-H program and the rapport that has developed between Parker and the kids.

"I never ask what these kids have done to be committed to Barnes Hall," Parker said. "I treat them with respect and as children who would be members in any of my other community clubs."

The kids are from 13 to 18 years old, very trainable, and intelligent. It's obvious that the kids respond well to Parker's personality.

"She's so enthusiastic and bubbly," a 17-year-old said. "At first, I was just sitting on my bed and I didn't really want to become involved, but Zoann came sailing into my room and said, 'Come on, let's find out how you can get a job when you get out of this place.'"

The 17-year-old continued, "I didn't really want to get involved but because Zoann was so enthusiastic, I thought I might as well go along with it."

And the teenager is glad she did. Through the classes Zoann conducted on careers, the teen defined her career goals, prepared a resume and cover letter, and participated in a mock interview with Parker.

"The kids at Barnes Hall actually seem to have a more realistic view on jobs they are capable of doing than those in other community clubs," Parker said. "They ask good questions and seem to have a better grasp on employment opportunities."

Parker said that her main goal is to help get the kids employed so that we can get them out of the cycle (returning to the detention center for repeat offenses)."

Ryan, for example, not his real name, said that he has training in drafting and was glad that Zoann taught him how to respond for a better interview. "She told us lines to say for certain questions on the applications," he said.

Daryl, who wants to be a DJ, said, "I learned that during interviews, I should always keep a smile and give a nice handshake."

Parker has been going about 10 days a month to the facility since August. She said, "Anyone with a talent can teach these kids. We are dying to add more programs, but people are afraid to teach at Barnes Hall. It's so rewarding if they would only try it."

Christine Sheesley Values Princess Experience

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — New York State Dairy Princess, Christine Sheesley, will complete the longest reign in history as she passes on the crown of dairy promotion to the next history as she passes on the crown of dairy promotion to the next state dairy princess. Sheesley will complete her 18-month reign on February 19, at the Sheraton Inn in Liverpool.

Reflecting on her term as a representative for the dairy industry, Sheesley reminisces on a positive experience. She has gained public relations skills that will benefit her for a lifetime. She said, "Being dairy princess has been a wonderful opportunity to grow into a better person. I have gained self-confidence and improved my public speaking ability."

Traveling over 10,000 miles to appear at more than 70 events, Sheesley said the dairy princess program is important because "the public needs to be aware that there is no substitute for milk and dairy products."

To the next state dairy princess and all of the county dairy princesses, Sheesley advises, "Don't underestimate what you can do because the opportunities to promote dairy products are endless. Just take advantage of them."

Sheesley resides in Canton, St. Lawrence County, with her parents, Tracy and Carol Sheesley. A 1990 graduate of Hugh C. Williams High School, Sheesley is currently studying dairy science at SUNY Morrisville.

The purpose of the New York State Dairy Princess program is to promote milk and dairy products to consumers and create better relations between urban and rural people. Not only does this benefit the dairy industry, but the dairy princess program provides a unique educational experience to those who participate.

IFYE Representative Thrilled With Japan Culture

Mary Laeger-Hagemeister
Dauphin Co. Correspondent

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Her eyes sparkle, a large grin encompasses her face, and her voice portrays excitement. Sharing her five and one-half months adventures in Japan, Margee Wolff practically takes her listeners on the excursion all over again.

Those excusrions began last June when Margee left for Japan representing Dauphin County in the International Four-H Youth Exchange (IFYE). The program was set up to help Margee learn what she had set as goals for herself. Hosting her was the Labo International Exchange Foundation. The primary mission of Labo is education. It is similar to the American 4-H program using volunteers called tutors and members belonging to a neighborhood Labo club called a Labo Party. The emphasis at Labo is on teaching foreign languages to children, English being the most popular.

As part of her experience, Margee attended Labo Camp. Her role was to help with the various programs such as games, outdoor hikes, and other special events.

Since Margee was able to somewhat tailor-make her own learning experiences, she built her stay around her personal goal of learning business management styles and how employees are treated. These opportunities included teaching English at a high school for one week, working at a newspaper for two weeks and two weeks at advertising agencies. One of the most exciting experiences was with a cultural agency. The objectives of this agency include helping people to learn about and understand the Japanese and American cultures.

In addition to learning about businesses, Margee also wanted to gain a deeper appreciation for the Japanese culture. In order to do this, she spent 3½ weeks traveling.

She visited shrines, temples, and castles. On the advice of one of her host mothers, she purchased a temple book. When she visited the various temples and shrines, the priests stamped a page with that particular temple's mark and autographed the book. Margee proudly shared that she was able to completely fill her book with stamps from 48 temples and shrines.

"I found out later how valuable that is to the Japanese! In America, it's worth a fortune to Japanese immigrants!"

Her tours took her mostly through the southern part of the country. The agriculture industry is comprised of a few dairy farms and many rice farms, all in the northern portion of the country.

Cultural Differences

"My very favorite activity was the festivals - they are very traditional Japanese!" The community gathers together several times throughout the year - similar to our county fairs for a variety of activities. Men from various sections of the community take turns carrying the portable shrine called a mikoshi in parades. Children are also equipped with tiny shrines and the women do special dances on platforms. All this is to entertain the gods.

To help Margee feel more at home, one of her host families decided to have their own little party for Halloween. Since that is foreign to their culture, they learned as much about the American custom as they could, then they invited friends and neighbors for a Halloween party. "They even had a pumpkin to decorate!" The only costume was Margee in a kimono, but it was a real sharing of traditions.

One of the biggest cultural differences is the concept of religion. It is believed that 80 percent of the population is Shinto and 70 percent Buddist, many incorporate both beliefs in their lives, with only 2 percent belonging to the Christian faith. Shinto belief, the traditional Japanese religion, has no bible or written rules, their beliefs are based on nature. Weddings are performed in the Shinto religion.

Buddist faith was brought to Japan from China. Japanese people use this form of religion for their funerals. In larger homes there are Buddist altars, which are a tribute to the ancestors and the dead. Pictures of dead relatives are placed on the altar as well as food on special holidays.

"I have learned to appreciate how much our society and culture is based on Christian values and beliefs!" Wolff said.

The Japanese culture commands a greater respect for the elderly than is typically found in America. Wolff said, "There is beginning to be more of a generation gap since the younger population is becoming more like the Americans and the older population is still traditional Japanese."

Educational System

When asked what's the biggest difference in the educational system, Margee laughs "everyone wears slippers!" The schools all require uniforms as well. "Children are not encouraged to be individuals - they're taught to conform to the group!"

She added, "There does seem to be a greater respect for authority." Children are very quiet, even shy, during classes, they do become talkative during breaks, but know that they have to be attentive in the classroom.

In addition, the school year is also longer. Not only do the children attend classes in the summer, but they also go to school 5½ days a week.

Education is highly stressed for everyone. Even though the Japanese culture demands that women stop their careers once married, it is still important for girls to get a good education.

Emphasis is also directed toward sports. Students pick one sport in gym class and play that all through school. They don't learn a variety of activities, instead they focus on perfecting one sport.

On the positive side of the educational differences are no school dropouts, 99 percent literacy rate, no drug problems as of yet, and teen pregnancy is no a big problem.

"It's not that it doesn't happen but abortion is very acceptable," Wolff said.

Japanese Business

Since Margee's goal was to experience Japanese business she did spend considerable time in various business settings. "One of the biggest differences is that none of the offices have dividers between co-workers. The belief is that if there are walls, employees will not work as a team."

The team concept is very important. Work groups are the norm with the manager in the same room. The higher a person is in seniority the closer they sit to the manager.

There are not a lot of women in business. It is believed to be unacceptable for women to work after they are married, so even if there are employed women, they are very rarely in high systems. This concept is slowly changing.

One option for women is to work for Labo. That is seen as acceptable and is helping women to contribute their knowledge as well as gain success, however, it is not very profitable.

Food

Of course every society has their own traditional foods. In addition to western fast foods such as Wendy's, McDonald's, Pizza Hut, and Kentucky Fried Chicken, there are special dining pleasures for Japanese food. At Japanese restaurants there are displays of food featured in windows that are on the menu so customers know exactly what they are ordering.

"Japanese food is very different - very pretty - it is delicately placed on the plate." Women take great pride in their cooking skills.

Wolff said, "In order to be accepted I had to learn to use chopsticks. The Japanese watched very carefully to see if I was able to eat with chopsticks." Margee found the wooden chopsticks to be the easiest to use.

Japanese diet consists of a lot of plain rice, fish with the heads on, and sushi - "I really learned to like it." Although willing to try anything, there was one food - nattoo, which is fermented beans, that Margee claims "I just couldn't stomach that!"

A unique tidbit is that there is very little milk in the Japanese diet. It was introduced after World War II, and since then, people have started growing taller.

Japan and Beyond

"When I first thought about going to Japan, it seemed really scarey - now I can't believe I ever doubted going."

Wolff's future plans include pursuing a career in either public relations or a communications job as well as furthering her education. Long range goals involve returning to Japan to live and work for a couple years.

She said, "My trip to Japan was more of a career move rather than just a trip."

All are invited to hear Wolff share her experiences on Monday, February 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resource Center, Peter's Mountain Road, Dauphin, PA 17018.

Margee Wolff proudly displays all the stamps from her temple book- a priceless treasure.

York Farm Woman Gets National Award

York Co. Correspondent

MANCHESTER (York Co.) — When she "stumbled" into a meeting more than 15 years ago, Ethel Gross could not have imagined how the encounter would change her life.

"I just happened to open the door and stumbled into the American Agri-Women meeting," recalls the northern York County farm woman. She was attending the 1975 Farm Women's Forum in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, when Ethel came upon the meeting of the fledgling AAW.

"I thought it was a terrific idea, of farm women from across the country getting together to do things for their collective good," she says.

American Agri-Women has since spread to encompass members and affiliates in a non-profit, non-partisan, national coalition of farm, ranch and agri-business organizations.

In November, Ethel Gross was named a recipient of AAW's LEAVEN award, the organization's only official award, and bestowed on only a small number of honorees since the groups' founding. The plaque's engraved tribute reads: "A kind and gentle woman, her encouragement and support have nurtured members to strive for new goals in agriculture."

LEAVEN is an acronymn for six attributes recognized in the awards recipients - Loyalty, Enthusiasm, Anticipatory, Valiant, Effectiveness, and Nuturing. A description of the award likens the recipients to the leavening in bread, where "only a small amount permeates and elevates all it comes in contact with."

Though she protests that others are more deserving. Ethel's name was submitted for the award by members of Penn's Agri-Women, Pennsylvania's affiliate of AAW. She helped organize PAW, serving as president for five years, and assisted with both the 1980 and 1988 national AAW conventions hosted in Pennsylvania by the state affiliate. Ethel has served on various national committees, including her present appointments to the nominating and timber issues committees.

Ethel has attended all but one AAW convention and especially treasures the friendships she has made with women from across the country.

"The conventions are enjoyable because they always have plenty of good speakers, basically agriculture, and the chance to visit personally with so many women from other states," she smiles, quickly naming women from California, Oregon, Illinois, Ohio and Texas.

When Ethel missed the 1989 convention in South Dakota, she received a "miss you" card signed by about 100 attendees, at least half of them personal acquaintances. Some 200 to 300 members regularly attend the conventions, which include special farm tours for husbands accompanying their wives.

Since it's organization, AAW has been instrumental in working with issues and legislation that affect farmers in all parts of the country. Committees reflect the diversity of AAW, from the major commodity interests such as livestock, grains and dairy to ag chemicals, farm labor, energy and estate taxes.

"AAW helps point out the things happening in agriculture," Ethel cites as a major reason for her involvement. "It helps us see the issues we'll have to deal with in the future. We've especially been informed on problems that started primarily on the West Coast - animal rights and labor for instance - and gives us a 'heads up' to what we can expect in emerging issues."

The Gross family, including husband Harold, son Steve's family, and grandson Steve, Jr., and his wife, raise cattle, hogs, and field crops just outside the borough of Manchester. A family operation of more than a century, grandson Steve, says Ethel, is at least the seventh generation on the farm.

Ethel grew up on a Kralltown area farm, the oldest of 11 children, "all of whom still enjoy getting together and being with one another," she adds with pride. Her childhood years during the Depression included helping with field work and milking the family's cows. At 17, she began doing domestic work for area families.

When she was 24, Ethel entered nurses training at the La Junta, Colorado, Mennonite Hospital. At the end of the three-year course, she returned home to begin nursing at the West Side Hospital, later taking a position at York Hospital. It was there, as head nurse on her floor, that she met Harold Gross, a widower with five sons.

"He was only there for a weekend; if I'd been off that weekend I'd never have met him," she grins. Two years later, a sixth son was born.

Community service has always been important to the Gross family, and Ethel has been active with various agriculture and church organizations. Over the years she has worked closely with the Society of Farm Women, York Hospital Fete and Christ Lutheran Church in Manchester, where she has taught Sunday School for many years. She is on the board and has served several terms as treasurer of the York Christian Women's Club.

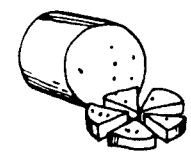
Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 11

Farm Women Group 11 Berks County held the January meeting at the home of Rose Hibshman.

Martha Klahr of Group 2 and past county president was invited to install the officers for '91. After installation and a business meeting, some members pasted and assembled activity books and schedules for the coming year. Others stenciled and painted seven dozen small band boxes. There will be used at the Pennsylvania Spring Rally of Farm Women, which will be held in Berks Co. this year. Each box will be filled with assorted flower seeds and used as table favors for each woman present.



York Society 26

York County Farm Women #26 met at Etters Bonanza Restaurant on January 15.

The delegates to the State Convention in Harrisburg gave reports on the convention and banquet.

The annual Christmas party in December was held at the home of Ruth Kann.

The next meeting will be held February 12, at Etters Bonanza Restaurant. Newberry Township Police Officer Richard Coonradt will speak on "Safety For Senior Citizens."

New Refrigerator Models Offer Many Options

Refrigerators have finally come into their own as a fashionable part of the kitchen. Gone are the days when color choices were limited to white, almond or black. Today's options include customized wood, stainless steel, glass, acrylic, and leather-look panels to coordinate with virtually any kitchen decor. When it comes time to remodel or redecorate, there is no need to replace a still serviceable refrigerator because new panels can be purchased to complement the new surroundings.

High-tech developments include computerized models with energy-saver buttons, temperature displays and settings, plus a monitoring system that lights up to indicate when the door is ajar, when the temperature is unsafe and when the condenser coils need to be cleaned. Built-in refrigerators that align with the kitchen cabinets are now available. Under-the-counter refrigerators provide handy storage for sodas, wine or frequently used items.

Easy care features are high on consumers' shopping lists, according to a recent survey. Although it adds $50 to $100 to the cost, most consumers consider the frost-free option a labor-saving essential. Glass shelves are much easier to clean than wire ones and prevent spills from dripping through to the shelves below. Adjustable drawer bins produce easier access, while humidity controlled crisper drawers keep fruits and vegetables fresh longer. Ice makers and on-the-door water and ice dispensers are handy features particularly appreciated by thirsty families.

While traditional models with refrigerator on the bottom and freezer on the top are generally less expensive to buy and operate, space and family needs may make other models more desirable. Bottom freezers offer the same size unit with a slightly larger freezer capacity. Side-by-sides have a narrower door swing making them more space efficient, but they may have a larger exterior than comparable top-freezer units. Many consumers, especially those with children, prefer side-by-sides so everything is easily accessible. In addition to these larger sizes, several manufacturers are marketing new, smaller sizes. Both include features such as deep storage doors to hold a gallon of milk and slide-out and adjustable shelves, bins and baskets.

Ag Ed Students Complete Building

Students in the Twin Valley Agricultural Science curriculum have completed construction of a small building to house animals raised as part of the agricultural education program at Twin Valley High School.

Begun last school year as part of a mini-grant from the school district, students designed and constructed an 8-foot by 12-foot building which has been located outside the agricultural shop. Construction included the traditional carpentry skills as well as insulating and wiring the building.

While rabbits, chickens, and quail have been a part of the educational program at Twin Valley for several years, the animals have been raised in the agricultural shop, presenting obvious problems. The new building provides a separate convenient facility where the animals are not bothered by normal shop activities and the students are not bothered by the odor and dust of the animals.

Agricultural students raise the chickens from chicks each fall, with both broilers and laying breeds being started. The broilers are raised to mature weights and then slaughtered by the students. Growth rates and feed conversions are calculated.

The laying breed chickens are kept through the end of the school year, so students can actually see the hens lay eggs. Again, feed conversions are calculated.

Students experience the details of small animal care. Some of these animals are also bred, with offspring being sold to students for projects. These animals are also loaned to elementary teachers for use in their classrooms and are taken to Tel-Hai for pet therapy.

According to Twin Valley agricultural science teacher Ronald Frederick, many students have trouble relating classroom theory to actual practice. Activities such as building construction and caring for the animals on a daily basis provide students with the opportunity to practice what has been preached in the classroom and shop.

FFA Week Kicks Off!

The week of February 16 through 23 is National FFA week. The Grassland FFA Chapter is sponsoring a donkey basketball game on Friday, Feb. 22 at the Garden Spot High School Gym as part of National FFA Week.

The game starts at 7:30 p.m. and will pit members of the local Grassland FFA Chapter against members of the faculty from throughout the Eastern Lancaster County School District.

The proceeds for the event will go toward the ELCEA scholarship fund as well as FFA activities. This event is held only once in two years at G.S. (it takes that long to have teachers forget their old wounds).

Tickets are $4 in advance for students in high school through adult and $5 at the door. It will cost children K-8th grade $3 in advance and $4 at the door. Senior Citizens (60 years and over) pay the same price as children. Children under 6 years of age get in free. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Grassland FFA Chapter at Garden Spot High School.

For further information, contact Garden Spot High School at (717) 354-4031.

Nneeet... that's the thing to look for during the Grassland FFA donkey basketball game on Fri., Feb. 22 at Garden Spot High School.

Schools Test Low-Fat Patty

CHICAGO, IL — Checkoff-funded research to develop low-fat ground beef production technologies has led the Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to announce the special purchase of 237,600 pounds of patties for use in the National School Lunch Program. This pilot purchase of low-fat ground beef is designed to find a low-fat ground beef patty with acceptable flavor, tenderness, juiciness and texture.

Daniel D. Haley, administrator of AMS, said five companies submitted a total of 13 technical proposals accompanied by patty samples in response to USDA's solicitation. Of the 13 proposals, six different types of low-fat ground beef patties from three firms were found acceptable; offers for four samples were accepted by AMS. Those proposals were submitted by Becker Foods, Milwaukee, WI; Webb Technical Group, Raleigh, N.C.; and L&H Packing Company, San Antonio, TX. Among the acceptable samples, the product developed by Webb Technical Group, and the product submitted by Becker Foods, developed at Auburn University, were direct results of research funded by the national beef checkoff.

The selected patties will be shipped to specified school sites between Feb. 15-28. Following an evaluation, a decision will be made on additional purchases of low-fat ground beef patties for the 1991-92 school year.

"Research to develop low-fat ground beef technology is a perfect example of the checkoff at work," says Meat Board Chairman Leon Locke. "The results of this research can now benefit many people, like the nation's school children, and ultimately the producers who fund the national checkoff."

Low-fat ground beef research is a checkoff-funded program managed on behalf of the beef industry by the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board.

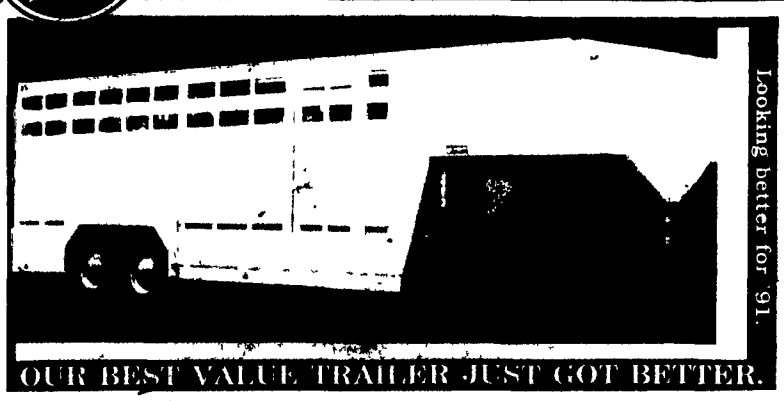
WRANGLER



OUR BEST VALUE TRAILER JUST GOT BETTER.

The new Wrangler. More aerodynamic. Better looking. And the strongest Wrangler yet. With top-quality components and rugged construction, this Wrangler is the best trailer value you can find.

- LIGHTWEIGHT- Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE- Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY- Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

Two To Represent PJHA At National Convention

READING (Berks Co.) — The Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association recently recognized five outstanding individuals as finalists in the Senior Division of the Distinguished Junior Member Contest.

The five finalists completed a scrapbook listing their accomplishments in Holstein activities, school work, community involvement, leadership and their ideas of the future in Agriculture and the Holstein industry.

Each finalist was also interviewed by a panel of judges, who then combined their scrapbook achievements and interview scores to select two winners.

The finalists were Bridgette Boyer, York; John Foster III, Petersburg; Terri Packard, Troy; Duane Stoltzfus, Morgantown; and Dwight Stoltzfus, Morgantown.

The winners were Terri Packard, daughter of Richard and Marilyn Packard and John Foster III, son of John Foster Jr. and Vera Foster.

These two young people will represent Pennsylvania in the National Distinguished Junior Member Contest to be held in June at the National Holstein convention in Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

Montgomery Co. Sponsors No-Till Workshop

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.)— The Montgomery County Conservation District is geared up and ready to assist area crop producers through the 1991 no-till program.

The Montgomery County Conservation District is providing a hands-on workshop to be conducted at the 4-H Center, Route 113, in Creamery on April 10, 1991, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. The purpose of this session is to acquaint the area crop producers with the up-to-date no-till equipment utilized by the county sponsored no-till program.

Dealer representatives will be on hand to demonstrate field calibration and adjustment of the equipment as applicable to the various field conditions in the county.

Tim Fritz of cooperative extension will be participating in the half-day session to field questions on weed control and genral agricultural concerns. David Tindall of the USDA Soil Conservation Service will also be on hand to discuss the management of crop residues.

The Montgomery County Conservation District will have available two John Deere no-till corn planters at 30" and 38" row spacing, and one Vermeer no-till drill 7" spacing for the 1991 crop production year.

Any individual planning to participate in the 1991 no-till program is encouraged to attend the training session. The cost of renting the no-till equipment is as follows:

- Grain Drill (1) - 10 feet wide - 7" row spacing for $10/acre.
- Comp lanters (2) - 4 row-30" spacing and 4 row-38" spacing each for $10/acre.

The program not only encourages the use of the no-till system, but also provides the users with a hands-on experience with the latest refinements on the modern equipment.

There is no registration fee for the training session. For additional information on the program, contact Don Fitzpatrick at the district office, (215) 489-4506.

The one spreader for the two spreader farm

Spread liquids, semi-solids, solids, pen-packed, even frozen manure. A Gehl Scavenger® II manure spreader does the work of two spreaders for the price of one. It's built for efficiency, with a heavy-duty square-tube auger that works harder than conventional round augers. The auger powers up and down hydraulically to prevent bridging and cut through winter freeze-ups. Variflo front, right-hand discharge gives you complete application control. Stop by for a demonstration today!

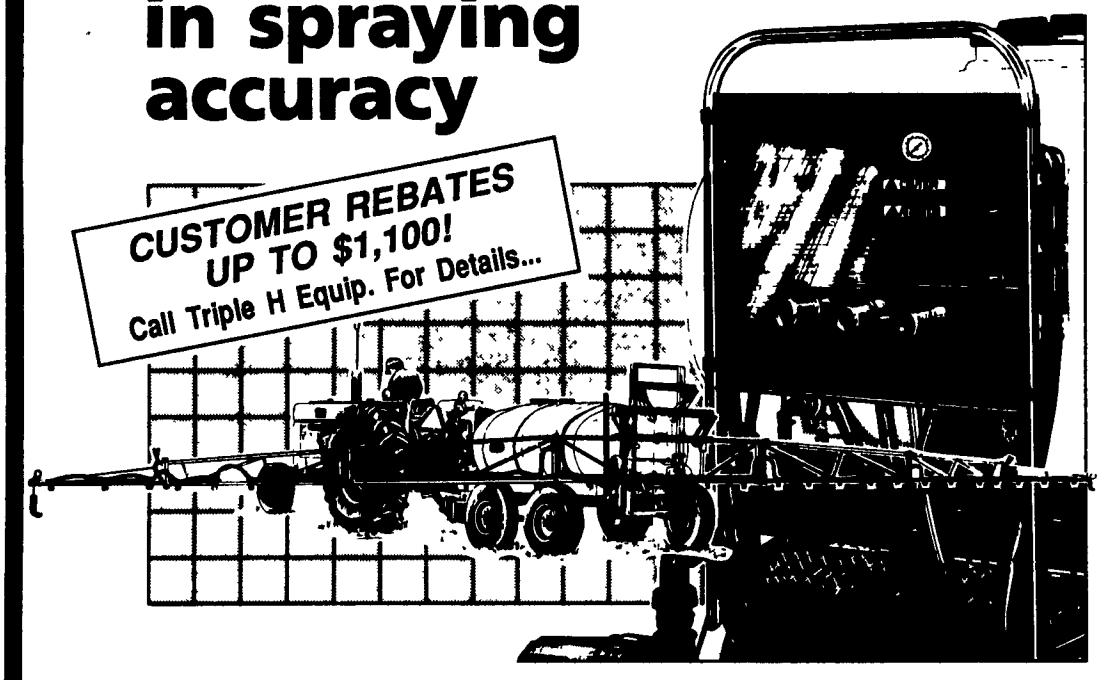
Breakthrough in spraying accuracy



Wasting chemical and yield on hills and headlands is a thing of the past with Vicon's new flow proportioning and boom compensation system. Application rate remains constant even when ground speed varies or individual boom sections are shut off. That means better coverage with lower input costs.

It is available on all Vicon trailer sprayers with tank capacities up to 785 U.S. gal. (3000 litres) and automatic stabilizing booms from 28' to 62'. There's also a choice of hydraulic or manual folding booms and a range of accessories that make crop spraying less of a chore.

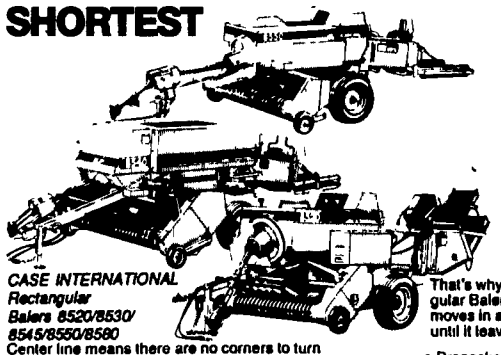
Corn Fodder Baling Takes A Tough Baler, That's Why A Case IH Baler Shoud Be Your Next Baler!

A STRAIGHT LINE IS STILL SHORTEST



CASE INTERNATIONAL Rectangular Balers 8520/8530/ 8545/8550/8580

Center line means there are no corners to turn to get crop into the bale chamber as with conventional balers Nutritious leaves go into the bale, not on the ground And with the baler directly behind the tractor, it's easy to transport through narrow bridges and gates

Case IH Rectangular Balers also give you
- Wide, low profile pickups collect full, heavy windrows with leaf saving gentleness because the crop is not lifted as high to get it into the baler

We Have Models 8520-8530 & 8545 In Stock For Your Tough Baling needs - Call Or Stop In & See Binkley & Hurst Soon!

Produce tighter, more uniform bales—on schedule.

That's why all five 8500 Series Case IH Rectangular Balers give you center line design Your hay moves in a straight line from the time it's picked up until it leaves the baler as a tight, uniform bale

- Prepacker chamber compresses hay into uniform flakes
- Flake size, density and bale size are more uniform
- High-speed, short stroke plunger to pack bales tighter
- Hydraulic density control (optional on 8545, standard on 8550/8580) to regulate chamber pressure for tighter, square-shouldered bales for easier stacking.

Bale Your Corn Fodder & Hay Crops With The Best New In-Line Case IH Baler. In Stock-Ready For The Horses. Model 8520 Requires Less Power Than Most Conventional Balers. Try One Now!

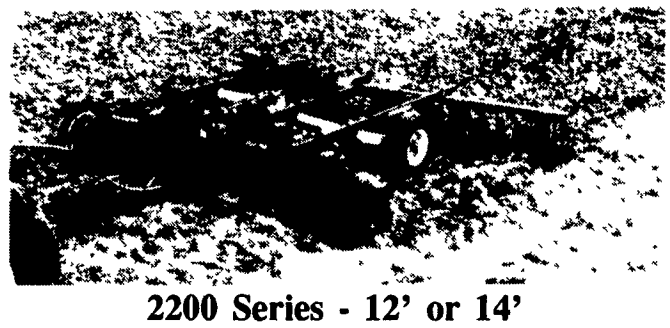
disc harrows save you money

...WHEN YOU BUY ONE
...WHEN YOU USE ONE
...WHEN YOU TRADE ONE

BEFORE YOU BUY A NEW DISC HARROW THIS FALL CHECK THREE THINGS:

1) PRICE per POUND

Krause Rockflex discs cost less per pound than most discs available today. Whether you are looking for a 12' or a 30' disc, compare price per pound.



2200 Series - 12' or 14'
Medium Duty Disc Harrow

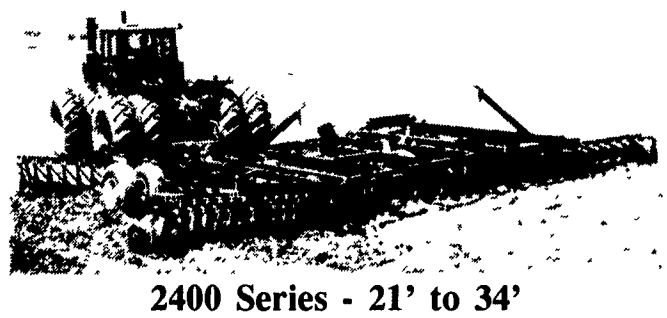
2) PARTS AVAILABILITY & PRICE...

Krause Rockflex disc parts are in stock at HOOBER'S when you need them. With over 100 units being sold per year, you know that when you buy a new disc from us, we will have your parts when you need them. AND AT PRICES LESS THAN THE COMPETITION.

4900 Series 18' to 33'
Medium Duty Disc Harrow

3) TRADE VALUE IS THE HIGHEST...

When you go to sales this Summer to watch a KRAUSE disc sell, you'll find out that there is no machine that maintains its value better than a KRAUSE ROCKFLEX DISC. They always bring top dollar.



2400 Series - 21' to 34'
Heavy Duty Disc Harrow

Why are KRAUSE Rockflex discs such a great value? It's simple!!!

They WORK, AND WORK, AND WORK, AND WORK, AND WORK...

With this concentrate feeding system LESS MEANS MORE

Dairymen report a 7-8% increase in milk yield with 5% less concentrate input with the new VA 500.

Each cow's ration is fed automatically according to her individual lactation curve. Feeding for production means high producing cows get more. Every cow pays her way. The whole herd can be housed together and you don't need complicated computer support systems for operation.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Introductory Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 ry - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit

Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and carles a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.

* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00

We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets.

NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

When planning your forage programs this year, remember that your main objective is to "store the plant and remove it from storage in as good condition as possible." THE UPRIGHT SILO HAS NEVER BEEN EQUALLED IN ITS ABILITY TO DO THIS!!

As herds become larger and labor is becoming more costly and scarce, there is more need to cut time requirements for all parts of the operation. The silo, or a combination of silos can be a key in reducing time spent harvesting, storing, and feeding your herd. "A properly managed upright silo is one of the best investments that a dairy farmer can make." Your best choice is a POURED CONCRETE SOLLENBERGER SILO...

Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

S & S Silo Service Has 10 Years Experience With Shotcrete Relining

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?
PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Rep. Says U.S. Keeps Pressing For Open Trade

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The Bush Administration will continue to press for a multinational trade agreement that can ultimately boost the world's economy by four trillion dollars, U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills said recently.

But, Ambassador Hills told the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC), if General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) "Uruguay Round" negotiations fail to produce an agreement, the United States would continue to pursue a trade policy leading to more open markets.

NCFC, representing farmer-owner cooperatives throughout the United States, has long advocated opening overseas markets to U.S. farm exports and creation of a "level playing field" in the world agricultural trading system.

Hills said the future of the Uruguay Round depends on "greater policical will by those who bought the negotiations to an end in Brussels," an allusion to European Community (EC) negotiators who refused other countries' efforts to make specific commitments to reform agricultural trade.

The United States has not backed down on its insistence that the EC and other countries agree to make specific commitments to reducing agricultural export subsidies, increasing access to their own markets, and reducing the trade-distorting effects of interntal farm price and production support programs, Hills said.

However, she said, if the EC is willing to negotiate specific commitments in those three areas, "the United States is prepared to negotiate the size of the reductions and their timetables." She said the implementation of such an agreement could be "a gradual operation over time."

Should negotiations fail, she said, the U.S. would continue bilateral market-opening agreements with trading partners worldwide, continue a hemispheric trade initiative that envisions free trade "from the northern tip of Alaska to the southern tip of Argentina," and continue to vigorously enforce U.S. trade law.

"Top on that list," Hills said, "is quick resolution of the pork trade dispute with the EC." The U.S. has begun action which could lead to retaliation against an EC decision to stop importing U.S. pork products on the basis that U.S. slaughter plants do not meet EC inspection criteria.

Also on the administrations' priority list, she said, is negotiation of a free trade agreement with Mexico that would "increase the access of 82 million consumers to U.S. products, including agricultural products. Mexico is already a major customer for our agricultural exports, but this would make it even bigger."

FIRE SAFETY TIPS

John H. Schwartz
Multi-County
Poultry Agent

Fire is a constant threat to poultry operations. The combination of dust, electricity, heaters, and rodents make poultry houses very vulnerable to fires.

Dust is the chief culprit in poultry house fires. Dust ignites readily and causes rapid flame spread.

To reduce the risk of fires, use flame retardant construction materials and fire walls to retain the fire to a limited area. Install water sprinkler systems and locate fire extinguishers in strategic locations. Fires may be minimized through good management.

Some specific things you should do to prevent fires include:

- Once a month, inspect all your poultry houses for fire safety violations and take corrective measures.
- Invite your local fire company to visit your farm so they may become familiar with building locations and develop fire fighting strategies.
- Inspect all wiring, electric motors, and panel boxes for exposed wires, broken insulation, and improper grounding.
- Check for gas and fuel oil leaks.
- Keep all types of heating devices clean and in good condition.
- Thoroughly clean the brooder burners and controls after the completion of each brood.
- Inspect flexible gas hoses for wear and replace these hoses when necessary.
- Inspect the safety chains and cables used in hanging the brooders after each brood to determine that they are properly connected and in good condition.
- Strictly enforce the NO SMOKING rule inside poultry houses and around other hazardous areas where flammable and combustible materials are stored.
- Install a lightning protection system and inspect it periodically.
- Select and provide proper fire extinguishers for the type of material in areas where the fire extinguisher is placed.
- Fire extinguishers should be serviced, maintained, and tagged at intervals not to exceed one year.
- Locate or develop a dependable source of water.
- Keep all areas of the farm clean and do not allow waste material to accumulate.

In addition, you should do a fire insurance audit for your farm. Set up an appointment with your insurance agent to discuss the type of fire insurance protection you have.

Items to cover include:

- What type of deductible you have.
- Cleanup costs covered.
- Fire fighting expenses covered.
- How is replacement cost of building and equipment determined?
- Do you need business interruption insurance to provide an income while you are replacing fire damaged property?
- What fire safety practices could be implemented to reduce your insurance premium?
- What type of fires will your fire insurance not cover?
- In case of a fire, what procedures should you follow to make sure your claim is properly handled? The notification process, pictures to be taken, securing estimates, and things to do and not to do before the insurance representative inspects the property should be considered.

Fires are something we do not plan for. Even with the best insurance coverage, there will be economic and emotional loses to the farmer.

Fire safety is not a glamorous activity and offers no immediate rewards. However, by starting a fire safety program on your farm today, you will be preventing many problems and frustrations in the future.

Research, Ed Center Celebrates Golden Anniversary

NEWARK, Del. — The University of Delaware Research and Education Center in Georgetown, Del., is gearing up to celebrate its 50th anniversary.

The land for the center, which was called the Substation until 1985, was purchased on Aug. 30, 1941, to build a branch of the Agricultural Experiment Station in southern Delaware.

The anniversary will be celebrated on Wednesday, Aug. 14, during the 1991 Farm and Home Field Day. According to Dr. Donald Crossan, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences, the theme, "50 Years of Progress," reflects the ongoing support that the center has provided to Delaware's agricultural community.

"This location of the Experiment Station has grown into a significant center for agricultural research that affects the entire state," Crossan said. "The anniversary is an excellent occassion to acknowledge the significant contribution that the Research and Education Center makes to Delaware agriculture."

George Chaloupka, director of the Research and Education Center, is seeking information about the early years of the center. He is especially interested in the early activities of the diagnostic laboratory, and in early crops and poultry research. Chaloupka can be reached at (302) 856-7303.

The Computer-Trak 150, right, monitors up to 12 rows and warns operators when seed flow slows or stops. Quick reaction to seed flow problems is enhanced by a new oscillating audible alarm. The Computer-Trak 250 monitor replaces the 200 and 300 models and is compatible with existing wiring harnesses. The 250 can monitor up to 24 rows.

Monitors Boost Planting Accuracy

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has introduced two electronic seed monitors with new features that boost planting accuracy and productivity.

The latest advances in agricultural electronics design make the monitors more durable and dependable and easy to maintain.

The Computer-Trak 150 monitors up to 12 rows and warns operators when seed flow slows or stops. Quick reaction to seed flow problems is enhanced by a new oscillating audible alarm. If a problem develops in any row unit, a pleasant but effective tone sounds and a corresponding row lamp lights up on the monitor console.

Tuning-dial sensitivity control on the 150 permits operators to adjust the monitor for best performance with either low- or high-rate planting populations. The monitor is compatible with existing Computer-Trak wiring harnesses.

The Computer-Trak 250 monitor replaces the 200 and 300 models and is compatible with existing wiring harnesses. The 250 can monitor up to 24 rows.

A new, larger liquid crystal display on the 250 provides information on radar distance measurements, seed population, seed spacing, area covered, and planter ground speed. The monitor's self-diagnostic feature checks the continuity of all sensor circuits upon power-up and provides an "up and ready" display.

Nonvolatile memory allows the 250 to retain operator-supplied instructions and planting data while shut down overnight and when disconnected from the tractor electrical system. Built-in protection shields the 250 from reverse and excessive voltage.

Operators can program the 250 to adjust for skip rows and to disconnect the alarm feature from intentionally blocked outside rows. Operators also can select the upper and lower population limits at which a warning sounds. As on the 150, the 250 alarm is a more pleasant but effective oscillating tone.

To complement the new monitors, John Deere has introduced a new row-unit seed sensor. The new sensor's increased tolerance to field dust improves performance and durability.

The Case International Model 8480 improved features make the baler easier to operate and maintain.

Round Baler Improves On Fixed-Chamber Design

RACINE, Wis. — The new Case International 8480 fixed-chamber round baler produces bales with a dense, water-resistant outer shell and breathable, uniform-curing inner core.

The new model, which produces 6-foot-diameter, 5-foot-wide bales, is a durable, easy to operate and easy to maintain, and replaces the current Model 3650.

"Improved function, features, and simplicity of the chamber design are the real keys to this new fixed-chamber model," said Dave Hess, Case International hay and forage product manager. "We've made improvements in response to the requests we've received from customers plus our own field text experiences."

During bale startup, the crop moves directly from the open throat into the fixed-volume, bale-forming chamber, eliminating the need to weave on the windrow. The 11-inch-wide, endless bale-forming belts last significantly longer than spliced belts.

The 8480 model provides 93 percent belt coverage across the bale width to minimize leaf loss. This fixed-chamber model is especially well suited for baling straw or other short, slick crops.

In addition, the distance from pickup to forming belts has been shortened for smoother drop flow, while the pickup drive has been simplified. The pickup is now chain-driven off the front forming roll and is protected by an overrunning clutch.

"Solid construction, dependability, and high productivity have been engineered into the new machine through numerous improvements in design," said Hess.

Crop is picked up cleanly with the new, wide, four-bar pickup which has 44 pairs of high-tensile-strength tines.

Two gauge wheels on the pickup are standard. The main drive uses a sealed O-ring type chain that provides longer life than standard roller chains. The baler has a 540 rpm, constant-velocity driveline which can be changed to 1,000 rpm by reversing the gearbox.

Dual, electrically controlled twine arms reduce wrapping time. Tying speed or twine spacing can easily be adjusted from the tractor seat.

The Model 8480 requires a tractor of at least 70 and preferably 90 PTO horsepower, a single remote hydraulic valve and a 12-volt electrical system. Options available include:

- Trip gate allowing operator to eject bales without backing up.
- Crop retainer to prevent short or fine crops from backfeeding.
- Amber warning lights.
- 31x13.5 - 15" 8-ply high flotation tires.
- Fire extinguisher.

The Model 8480 is now available as part of the full line of Case International hay and forage products.

Keystone Promotes Hemperly

ANNVILLE (Lebanon Co.)— Georgia Hemperly, a native of Cleona, Lebanon County, was recently promoted to loan officer at Keystone Farm Credit, ACA, according to Annville branch manager James Grosh.

After graduation from Cedar Crest High School, Hemperly earned an associate degree in paralegalism from the Central Pennsylvania Business School, Summerdale, in 1977.

Prior to joining Farm Credit in September 1979, Hemperly worked as a paralegal for a law firm in Annville and for an abstract company in Lebanon. Her career with Farm Credit began as a legal assistant; from there, she progressed to office assistant, senior office assistant, and to consumer loan officer, a position she had held since January 1989. As a consumer loan officer, Hemperly worked with part-time farmers and country home owners. As a loan officer, she is diversifying into farm loans.

Hemperly, along with fellow Annville loan officer Greg Snyder, organized the Lebanon-Dauphin Council of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives (formerly Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives, or PAFC). The primary goal of the council is to educate youth and young farm couples on the value and function of cooperatives in the free enterprise business system.

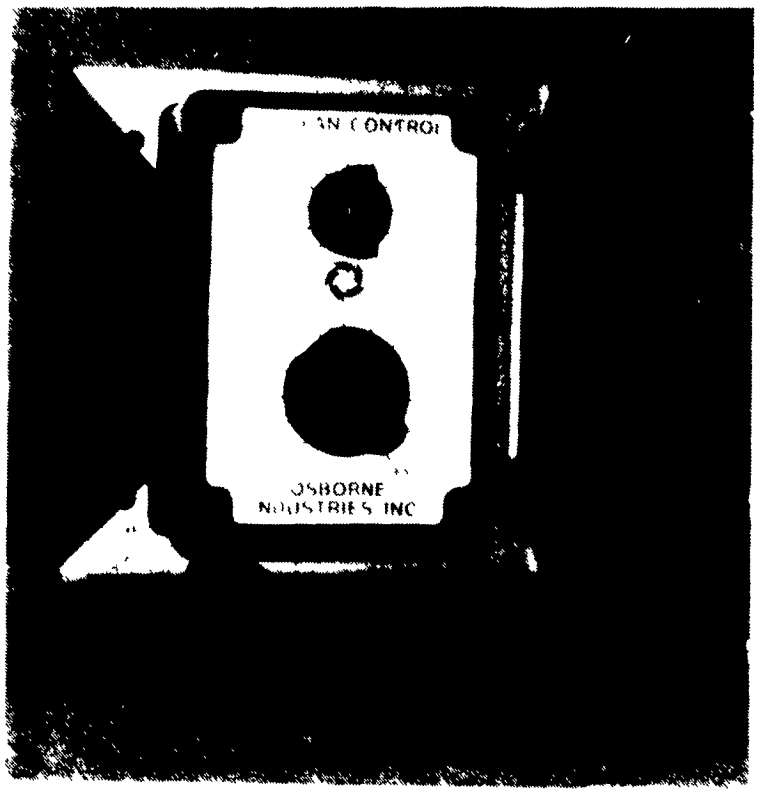
Osborne Offers Single-Room Vent Control



The model AV-9 single-room variable speed ventilation control features a convenient temperature set knob and a handy "odor knob" with which the operator can adjust minimum fan speed to match building air conditions.

OSBORNE, Kan. — The model AV-9 is a new single-room variable speed ventilation control offered by Osborne Industries, Inc. The economical AV-9 features a convenient temperature set knob and a handy "odor knob" with which the operator can adjust minimum fan speed to match building air conditions.

The temperature set knob allows the operator to choose the desired barn temperature. It automatically increases the fan speed to provide more cooling ventilation to counter an increase in barn temperature.

Fans reach full speed when temperature rises 5 degrees F above the set point. The handy "odor knob" sets the minimum fan speed in the winter and can be adjusted as needed to maintain good air quality with minimum heat loss throughout the winter months.

The AV-9 control can be installed for either a 115 or 230 Vac without changing any internal connections. Good radio interference shielding as well as voltage surge arrestors are used in the design. The AV-9 control can also be easily installed in any fan power system on a standard 4x4 junction box. The water-resistant control is backed by Osborne's reliable one-year service warranty.

For more information, contact an Osborne dealer or the customer service department, Osborne Industries, Inc., P.O. Box 388, Osborne, KS 67473, (800) 255-0316.

Ag Forum Features Timely Topics

DOVER, Del.— Delaware Technical and Community College in Georgetown and the Delaware Department of Agriculture will host "Ag Forum '91: Issues Affecting Today's Agriculture' on Wednesday, March 6, from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Delaware Tech's Southern Campus in Georgetown.

Farmers from Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore are invited to attend a day-long series of seminars focusing on six of the most timely topics in agriculture -- farmland preservation, wetland regulation, aquaculture, manure management, sorghum production, and pesticide safety.

As Delaware agriculturists and legislators struggle to design a plan to preserve this state's prime farmland, forum organizers believed it would benefit area farmers to hear how other states have launched successful farmland preservation efforts.

Participating are Robert Wagner, director, Northeast regional office, American Farmland Trust; Ted Haas, Cecil County Director, Maryland Extension System; and Tom Daniels, director, Agricultural Preserve Board, Lancaster County.

G. Wallace Caulk, director of the Delaware Farmers Home Administration and past mast of the state Grange, will kick off the session with a review of preservation efforts in Delaware.

Proposed state wetland regulations are of great concern to most Delaware farmers. Dave Saveikis, Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, will discuss pending legislative initiatives, and Dick Hassel of the Army Corps of Engineers will highlight provisions in federal regulatory wetland programs.

In addition, participants will learn the difference in wetland types, the value of wetlands to the environment, and which wetlands are priorities for protection.

Five representatives from the University of Maryland will provide information to help budding aquaculturists in Delaware. Topics include an overview of the aquaculture industry today and tomorrow, determining whether you have the necessary resources to start a fish farm, basics in pond cultures, and meeting market demand.

Also slated are updates on sorghum production, composting and manure management, and pesticide safety. Two recertification credits will be awarded to certified pesticide applicators who attend both sessions on pesticide safety.

The $10 registration fee includes continental breakfast and a fried chicken lunch buffet. Commercial trade show exhibits will be on display in the gymnasium.

Pre-registration deadline is March 1. Persons may register on the day of the event, but the $10 fee will not include lunch.

To register, contact Debbie David, Office of Continuing Education, (302) 856-5400, ext. 227, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. For program information, contact the Delaware Department of Agriculture Information Office at (800) 282-8685 (Delaware only) or (302) 739-4811.

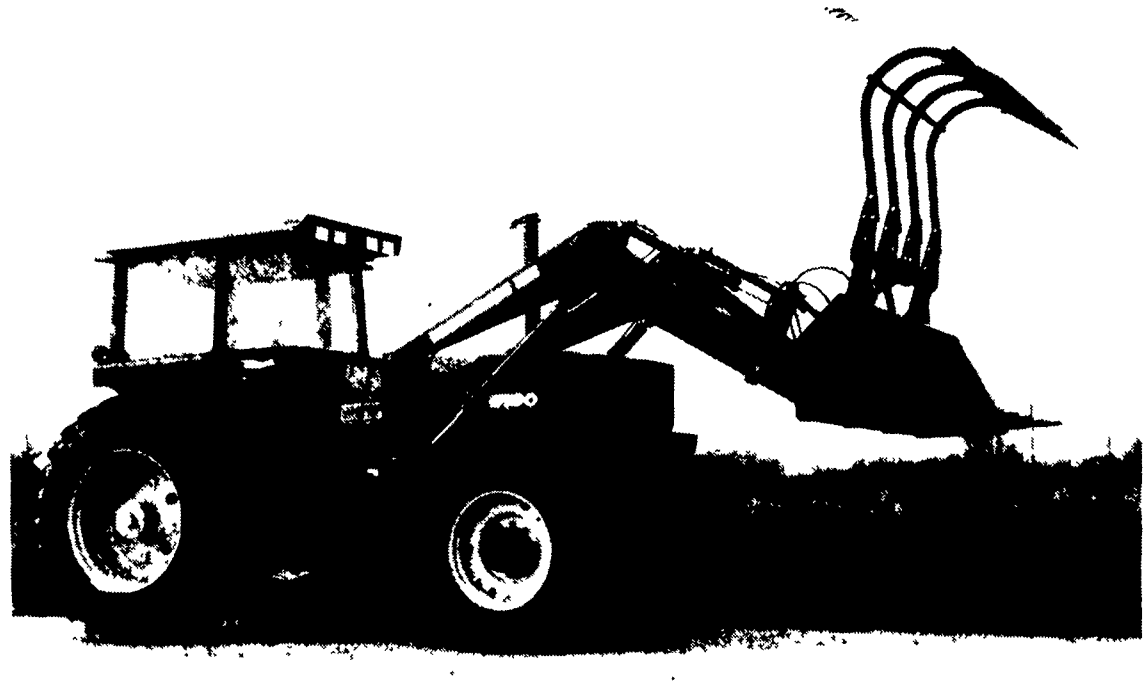
Loader Lifts 3,600 Pounds

NORCROSS, Ga. — Deutz-Allis Corporation has introduced a new 476 detachable loader for use with its 9150 and 9130 two-wheel drive or all-wheel drive tractors. The loader is available with an optional round bale grapple for pit or field and round bale handling.

With a breakout capacity of 5,600 pounds, the 476 loader can lift 3,600 pounds to its full height of 12.5 feet in 4.8 seconds or carry a load of 4,700 pounds at three feet off the ground. Its reach at full height is 40.5 inches and it has a dump time of 3.2 seconds and a rollback time of 2.8 seconds.

The 476 is a "quick-on" loader, which means that it can be attached to the tractor quickly and easily without tools. All pivot points are locked to prevent rotation and relubeable to keep friction and wear to a minimum.



The new Deutz-Allis 476 detachable loader with optional round blade grapple can be used with either the Deutz-Allis 9130 or 9150 two-wheel drive or all-wheel drive tractor.

MSD AGVET Launches IVOMEC Pour-On

DALLAS, Texas— MSD AGVET, a division of Merck & Co., Inc., further expanded its ivermectin product line with the launch of IVOMEC® (ivermectin) pour-on for cattle, a topical parasiticide to control external and internal parasites.

In addition to controlling a broad range of gastrointestinal nematodes (including the inhibited L4 stage of Ostertagia ostertagi), lungworms and cattle grubs, the product effectively controls biting and sucking lice, which can cause extreme discomfort in animals and reduce herd prformance, especially in winter.

Furthermore, the newest ivermectin product for cattle also has a claim for 28-day control of adult horn flies, a troublesome summertime pest. IVOMEC pour-on controls 24 kinds of external and internal parasites in cattle.

"We see IVOMEC pour-on as a real breakthrough -- one that will make control of external and internal parasites even more convenient for cattlemen," said Rodney Goodall, cattle products manager at MSD AGVET. IVOMEC pour-on is now available through veterinarians and authorized animal health product resellers.

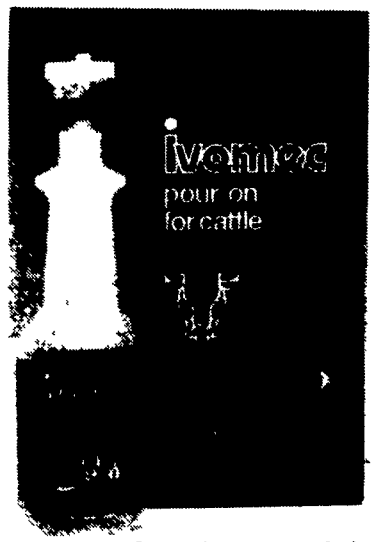
The product, which recently received approval from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, was officially introduced at a news conference at the Texas Research and Extension Center in Dallas. The event was held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the National Cattlemen's Association.

Although IVOMEC pour-on is likely to be used by many segments of the cattle industry, MSD AGVET expects it to be popular in cow/calf, farmer/feeder, and stocker operations, where lack of cattle handling facilities can make injections or drenches difficult to administer. The convenience of IVOMEC pour-on is also expected to be popular with dairymen treating replacement heifers before they reach breeding age.

But IVOMEC pour-on is not necessarily the best choice for every cattle operation. Unlike its sister products, IVOMEC pour-on does not completely eliminate psoroptic mange mites, which are primarily observed in large commercial feedlots. Where psoroptic mange is an economic problem, the company recommends using either IVOMEC-F Injection or IVOMEC 1% Injection.

Initially, IVOMEC pour-on will be packaged in 250-ml and 1-liter polyehtylene bottles, each equipped with a MAGICAP™, a squeeze-measure-pour delivery system developed by Merck that allows fast and convenient dosing. Both sizes will be packed in brown and white cartons bearing the familiar IVOMEC logo, accompanied by a free-falling golden drop to indicate the pour-on formulation.

IVOMEC pour-on is applied to cattle along the backline, from the withers to the tailhead. The product is absorbed through the skin, and once applied, its efficacy is unaffected by sunlight, temperature, grooming, hair coat length, or color. Ivermectin then enters the bloodstream and circulates throughout the body, killing internal parasites. IVOMEC pour-on also controls external parasites, including adult horn flies (for up to 28 days) and biting and sucking lice. Peak blood levels are obtained within 72-120 hours.



IVOMEC® (ivermectin) pour-on for cattle, is a topical parasiticide to control external and internal parasites.

According to MSD AGVET, there are a few precautions that should be taken to ensure maximum product absorption. For example, the company does not recommend treating animals with wet hair coats, nor should treatments be given if rain is expected to wet cattle within six hours after application.

Furthermore, because the product is absorbed through the skin, IVOMEC pour-on should not be administered to areas of the skin with scabs or lesions -- or any area covered by mud or manure. Since the product contains isopropyl alcohol, which is flammable, IVOMEC pour-on should be used in a well ventilated area, away from heat sources, sparks or an open flame.

Research trials with IVOMEC pour-on have demonstrated a safety margin of up to 10 times the recommended dosage level of 1 ml per 22 pounds of bodyweight. A 48-day withdrawal period is required in cattle raised for human consumption. Because a withdrawal time in milk has not been established, IVOMEC pour-on should not be used in female dairy cattle of breeding age.

For more information, write to MSD AGVET, P.O. Box 2000, WBF-465, Rahway, NJ 07065-0912.

Californians Look At Pennsylvania Food Distribution

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— Pennsylvania's system for distributing federal surplus food to schools, food banks and other recipients may serve as a model for a similar system being developed in California.

A delegation from the California Food Distribution Unit visited the commonwealth this week to assess the Pennsylvania system, which utilizes commercial distributors to deliver food commodities to 2,400 recipient agencies.

"our system cuts storage and transportation costs and lets local agencies put more of their resources where they are needed," said Barry Shutt, director of the Bureau of Government Donated Food in the state Department of Agriculture. "Products move more efficiently, and there is a reduced risk of spoilage."

Shutt escorted Maria Balakshin, California Department of Education; Les Forte, Western Region of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA); and Phil Cohen, Washington Office of USDA, on a tour of Weis Food Service Inc., Sunbury. The company is the distributor for a five-county area in central Pennsylvania.

"Many states have been reluctant to convert to a commercially based system, but our experience has been positive," Shutt said.

Since 1988, the USDA has encouraged states to adopt a distribution system similar to Pennsylvania's. Last May, a delegation from the Texas Food Distribution Unit visited the Commonwealth to look at the Pennsylvania system.

Via Satellite, Penn State Will Deliver Crop Seminar

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's College of Agriculture will venture into satellite technology in an effort to help farmers and other agribusinesses manage their crops more efficiently and maximize profits.

On March 5, the college's agronomy department will produce a first-of-its-kind crop production seminar to be delivered by satellite. The event will be televised live beginning at 9:30 a.m. in at least three locations: Hershey Medical Center, Pennsylvania College of Technology in Williamsport, and Penn State- Hazleton. The program also will be distributed nationally through the AG*SAT educational satellite network, and may be downlinked at other Penn State commonwealth campuses.

Among topics to be covered are soil properties and fertility, corn and forage management, and crop pest control. Organizers say pesticide recertification credits are available for those attending.

Such seminars are traditionally conducted in person by Penn State county extension agents and faculty members. Dr. Al Turgeon, head of the agronomy department, said satellite seminars are intended to supplement the traditional crop meetings rather than replace them.

"With satellite delivery, we can involve a larger group of resource people and incorporate video footage, slides, and other visual techniques to illustrate examples," said Turgeon. "We feel the result will be an enriched educational offering for our clientele."

The seminar will consist of three one-hour programs, each featuring 40 minutes of presentations by Penn State specialists and a 20-minute question-and-answer session. The audience will be able to interact with faculty and staff at University Park via telephone.

The seminar's registration fee of $10 includes lunch and refreshments. The deadline for registering is February 26. Those not registering in advance will be admitted the day of the event as space permits.

For more information or to register, contact the coordinator of the nearest seminar location: Norm Conrad (Williamsport), (717) 524-8721; Paul Craig (Hershey), (717) 921-8803; or Donna Grey (Hazleton), (717) 825-1701.

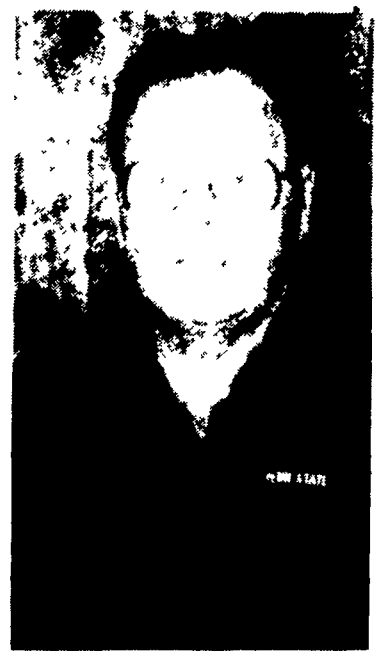
ICI Americas Honors Hoffman

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.— Lynn Hoffman, senior research associate at Penn State University, recently received a No-Till Tiger Award for his pioneering research into no-till farming in the Northeast.

Representatives of ICI Americas Inc., a leading manufacturer of agricultural chemicals, and the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) presented the award to Hoffman on February 5 at NACD's annual convention in Atlanta. Hoffman's wife, Pepper, accompanied him on the trip.

"Lynn's research was the foundation for making no-till work in the Northeast," said Dick Foell, manager of industrial relations for ICI Americas Inc. "The work he has done on better planting and fertilizer use in no-till farming has made it possible for farmers across the Northeast to cut down on erosion and keep putting food on the consumer's table."

Hoffman grew up on vegetable, sheep, and dairy farms near Irwin. He earned a bachelor's degree in agricultural education and a master's degree in farm management from Penn State University.



Lynn Hoffman, senior research associate at Penn State and manager of Penn State's Agronomy Research Farm, received a "No-Till Tiger" Award in Atlanta on February 5.

After completing his graduate work, Hoffman stayed on with Penn State. In addition to being manager of the Agronomy Research Farm, Hoffman is also currently a senior research associate and faculty member in agronomy.

Hoffman's interest in no-till began when a close friend, the late Dr. Bill McClellan, told him about no-till work he had seen in the South. When McClellan joined the faculty at Penn State in 1970, the two scientists began research to adapt no-till to the Northeast.

"We tried to help dairy and livestock producers spend less time in the fields and more time managing their animals," said Hoffman.

Hoffman and McClellan had to start from the beginning with no-till, working with equipment manufacturers to develop planters that could do the job in heavy crop residue.

They then began to study the best ways to fertilize no-till fields, and gathered data on just how much moistuire and soil farmers could save by growing crops without tillage.

Once they gained momentum, Hoffman and McClellan took no-till drills out to Pennsylvania farms to introduce growers to the idea. Hoffman continues to direct a program in which county agents take no-till drills throughout the state to show growers how to make no-till work.

"My research and demonstration efforts are aimed at maximizing the profitable aspects of no-till," Hoffman said. "My goal is to help growers who haven't accepted the practice or who are having a hard time making it profitable."

Today, Hoffman is studying the most profitable placement of inputs around the crop root zone, the impact tillage systems have on movement of pesticides and fertilizer, and how to get the best possible weed control in no-till fields.

"No-till development was a coordinated effort between researchers, agricultural chemical companies, and equipment manufacturers," Hoffman said. "It was the most farmer-driven research I've ever done, and the cooperation from all facets of the industry made it readily adaptable."

1991 World Pork Expo Set For Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa— It's coming -- in just over four months, that mouthwatering pork barbecue will be back.

World Pork Expo, featuring The Great Pork BarbeQlossal™ and the world's largest pork-specific Trade Show, will be in full swing May 31, June 1-2 at the Iowa State Fairgrounds in Des Moines.

World Pork Expo is a broad-based educational event designed to help producers become more efficient operators and to better under stand the new technology being introduced daily into the pork industry.

In addition, Expo is a place where producers can see results of the research, promotion and consumer information programs they fund through the pork checkoff.

The event is also an excellent opportunity to show consumers new pork products, inform them of pork's lean nutrition profile and tell them about pork industry production practices.

"A lot of work goes into making Expo the premier pork industry show in the world," said Gary Slater, manager of World Pork Expo. "Producers would have to travel to several shows a year to see and learn as much as they do at Expo."

New to the 1991 Expo will be a historical swine exhibit sponsored by MSD AGVET. The exhibit will demonstrate how the pork industry has changed from a seasonal (summer farrow, winter market) operation to a year around business in just 60 years. Exhibit displays will focus on genetics, nutrition, swine health, equipment, marketing and producer organizations.

International visitors attending Expo this year can begin their exposition experience on May 30 by taking one of two pork industry tours being offered for the first time this year.

During Expo, international and U.S. producers will have a chance to exchange production ideas at the "Crossroads of the World," which is the International Pavilion sponsored by the Upjohn Company.

The Trade Show, open all three days of Expo, is again expected to have approximately 500 companies exhibiting everything from hog equipment to feed to record keeping services and more.

A full three-day schedule of producer seminars is again being planned. Likely topics include farm safety, insurance coverage, employer/employee relations, artificial insemination and swine health.

The Great Pork BarbeQlossal is shaping up as a lively barbecue competition between backyard barbecuers, individuals and teams. The Big Grill, comparable in length to a football field, again promises to be a filling experience as pork producers serve up deliciously tender pork barbecue.

Other activities will include a Non-Patented Inventions and Gadgets Contest, hog shows and sales, live entertainment and opportunities for attendees to win valuable prizes.

World Pork Expo is sponsored by the National Pork Producers Council in association with the National Pork Board.

In fact, one of every five tractors now sold in the Western World is an M-F. Which makes Massey-Ferguson the Western World's largest tractor manufacturer.

One of the big reasons for this popularity is the great value of the 50-90 PTO hp line of M-F 300 Series tractors.

They all give you the torque, economy and reliability of world-famous Perkins diesel engines and all the advantages of advanced Ferguson system hydraulics. Plus you get the practical features you want, like hydrostatic steering as standard equipment.

Massey-Ferguson engineers put a lot of time and effort into designing these tractors to save more of your time and effort. They're incredibly easy to operate and maintain. And they have one of the best reliability records of any tractor ever made.

Better ask your M-F dealer soon to show you why an M-F 300 Series tractor can be the best value for your hard-earned investment.

Practical choices.

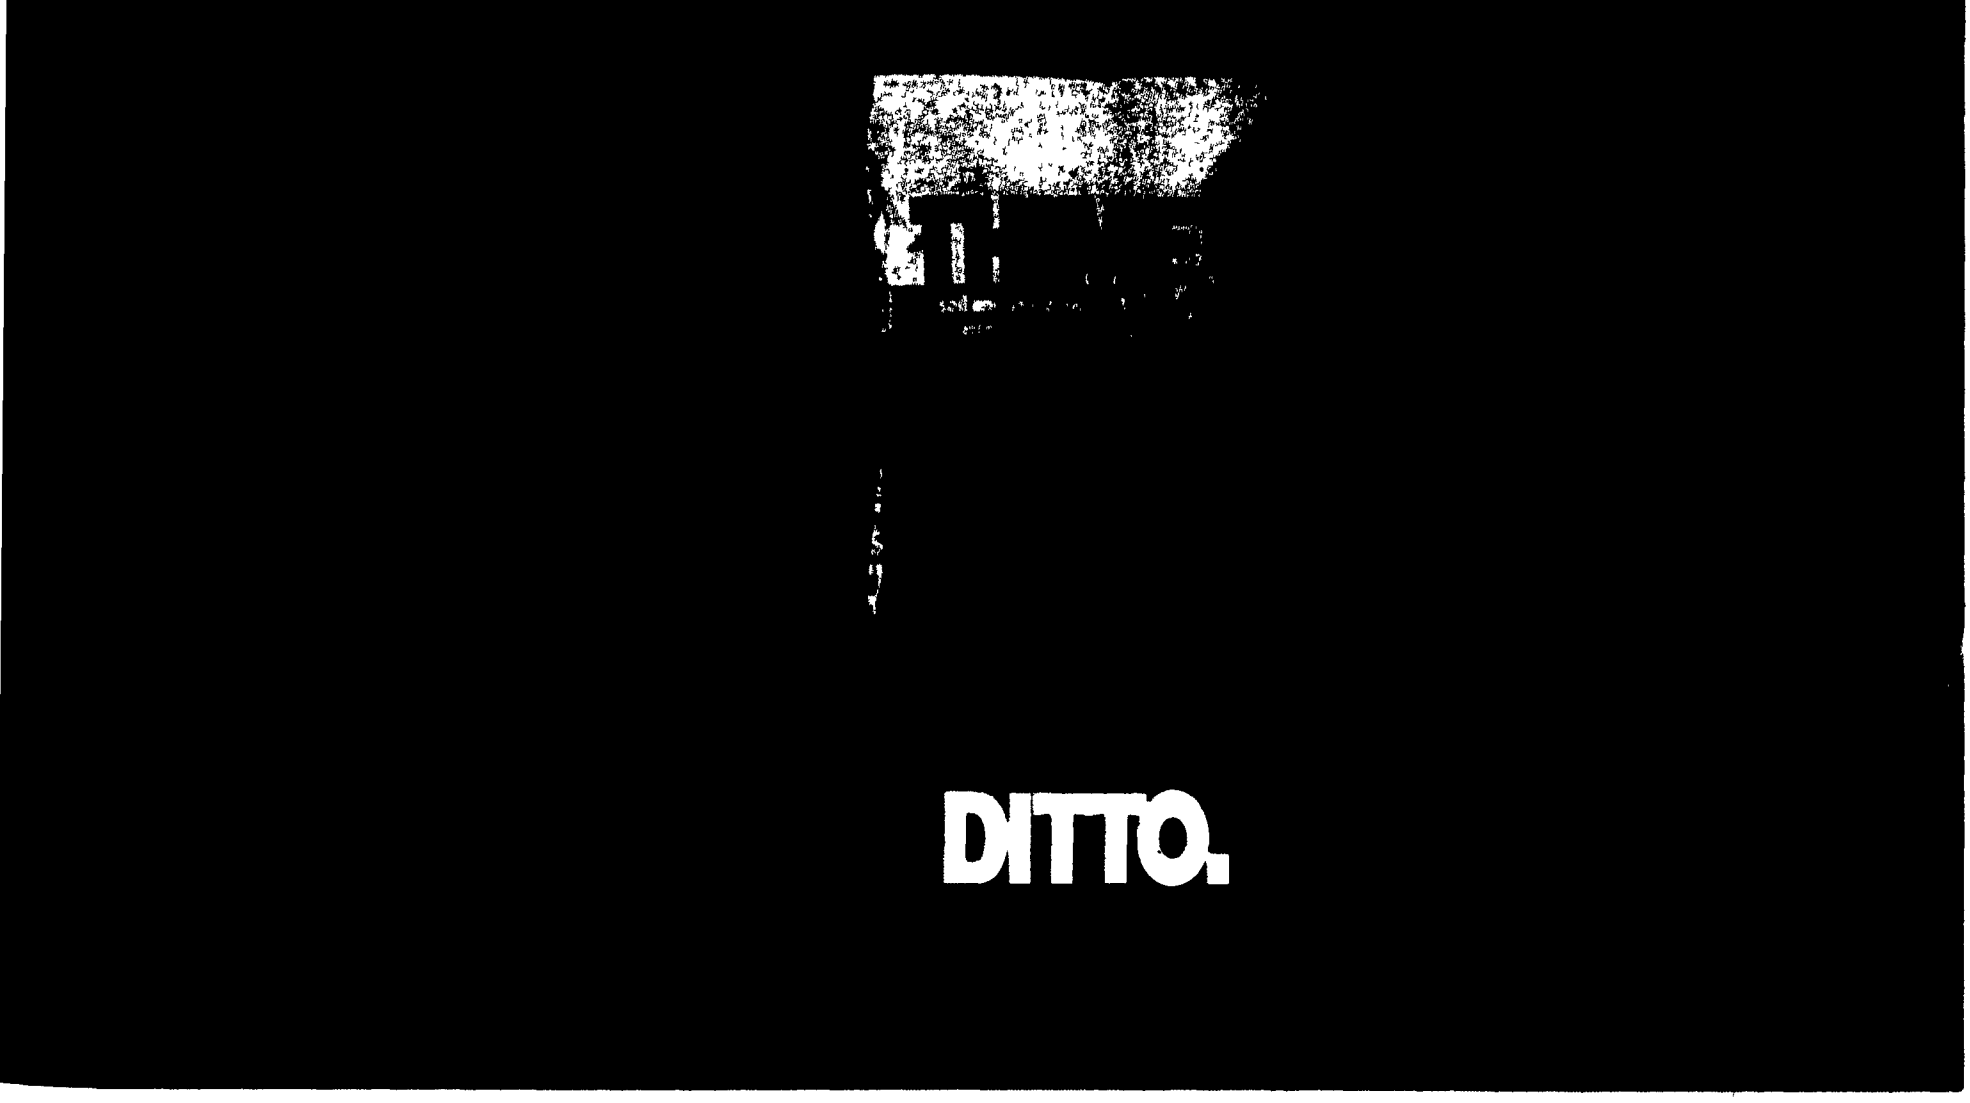
NOTHING IN THIS WORLD WORKS
AS HARD FOR SO LITTLE MONEY.



This insecticide doesn't just control rootworms. It controls costs. And it does a darn good job of both. Time and time again, university tests prove THIMET® 20-G soil and systemic insecticide is as effective as Lorsban[1] and Furadan[2].

In a nutshell, that means THIMET puts out a whole lot of effort for not a whole lot of money. Sound like anyone else you know?

For advice about using low odor THIMET, and for help with all your crop needs, see your local Cyanamid AgriCenter™ dealer.

THIMET 20-G and Furadan 15-G are Restricted Use Pesticides. Always read and follow label directions carefully.

Vegetable Growers Honor Contributions To N.J. Ag

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. — Rep. William Hughes (D-2nd Dist.) of Ocean City, Louis Galetto of Vineland and Stephen A. Garrison of Elmer are the 1991 recipients of the Vegetable Growers' Association of New Jersey's (VGANJ) annual awards for service to the state's vegetable industry.

The awards were presented by the group at its annual meeting in Atlantic City. The meeeting was held in cooperation with Rutgers Cooperative Extension, part of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station at Rutgers' Cook College. Award presentations were made by James Giamarese of East Brunswick, president of the VGANJ.

The congressman was honored as a longtime friend of agriculture. He was credited with helping to enact legislation for registering pesticides needed in vegetable production and for his efforts in having the federal government designate certain New Jersey farm lands as disaster areas, after floods and other emergencies, to enable farmers to obtain low-interest loans.

Hughes was also cited for his dedication to "preserving small family farms, expanding agricultural markets, and protecting agricultural lands."

Galette, who grew up on his family's vegetable farm in Vineland, was honored as an "example of New Jersey agricultural leadership at its best."

A former recipient of the "Outstanding Young Farmer Award" presented by the Vineland Chamber of Commerce, he was also honored for his participation in many activities related to agriculture.

He has served as a member of the Cumberland County Board of Agriculture, the New Jersey Marketing Co-Op, the Vineland Chamber of Commerce, and as director of the Vineland Product Auction. He was also active in the State Department of Agriculture's "Jersey Fresh" program to promote the sale of New Jersey vegetables.

Garrison, a Rutgers Cooperative Extension specialist in vegetable crops, was honored for his longtime research contributions in tomato culture, including fruit ripening, direct seeding, fertilization, and bed formation. He was cited for important work in the use of plastics in vegetable production and in the education of growers in the use of biodegradable mulches.

Garrison was also honored for pioneering the use of growth regulators for uniform ripening of processing tomatoes and for research in asparagus culture and physiology.

In recent years, he has served in the important posts of program coordinator of the three-day annual meeting of the VGANJ and editor of "Commercial Vegetable Production Recommendations," used by vegetable growers in five mid-Atlantic states, including New Jersey.

FPPF Polar Power

Keeps Your Diesel Running In The Worst Winter Cold!

Fuel filters, separators do nothing to keep diesel fuel from the waxing or gelling that blocks up and clogs fuel lines and filters.

FPPF Polar Power contains FPPF's Fuel Power and FPPF's Polarized Diesel Fuel Flow Improver, the industry's leaders. It will keep your diesel running in the worst winter cold: lowering the pour-point, totally dispersing water, eliminating gum/varnish...outperforming all other additives and at lower cost.

It's the right time to apply lime

Lime application during the winter allows the limestone time to react and gives you the advantage of rich, pH-balanced soil for your spring planting. Winter ground conditions also reduce soil compaction and rutting during spreading.

Researchers Discuss Future Of Vegetable Disease Control

GREENSBORO, N.C.— The future availability and use of fungicides for vegetable disease control was the focus of discussions at a recent meeting hosted by Ciba-Geigy.

More than 15 researchers from across the United States and Central America met to discuss the challenges of vegetable disease control in coming years. The group agreed that the EBDC (Ethylene bisdithiocarbamate) issue and resistance would be key factors, as well as biological controls.

The possible ban of certain fungicides is a concern for all vegetable growers. Dr. Vince Morton, manager of phytopathology and biological research at the Ciba-Geigy Agricultural Division headquarters in Greensboro, N.C., summarizes the group's conclusions.

"Public opinion is a driving force we must contend with. The potential ban of certain products greatly will impact the efficiency of disease control programs. With fewer products to integrate into a production program, we can expect greater problems with resistance," said Morton.

Resistance already is an issue for some growers. The researchers agreed it will become even more important if some fungicide option are taken off the market.

"It's important that we protect the continued use of our available fungicides," said Steve Koike, plant pathologist/farm advisor, University of California, Salinas. "Right now, our best guess for resistance management is product rotation and crop rotation. Mixing product also may help prevent resistance development. Use of resistant varieties is especially important."

They also believe it is important to follow preventive disease control programs rather than curative programs. "The most efficient way to avoid resistance is to prevent diseases from establishing in the first place," said Dr. Richard Raid, assistant professor of plant pathology, University of Florida. "Curative uses of products can greatly increase the chance of resistance."

Biological controls were discussed as alternatives, but most agree that research is still needed before biologicals become a viable option.

"Biologicals take time to establish in the soil," said Dr. Stephen Johnston, extension plant pathologist, Rutgers Research and Development Center, Bridgeton, N.J. "The microenvironment must be conducive to the biological control agent. We can't just formulate an agent, spread it on the soil and expect it to work. This is where the research is needed."

Other researchers and industry professionals at the meeting where Dr. Gus Molina, Chiquita Brands, Honduras, Central America; Dr. Robert Baldwin, VPI Research Station; Dr. James Kantzes, University of Maryland; Dr. Jose Amador and Dr. Marvin Miller, Weslaco, TX; Jesus Valencia, University of California; Dean Remick, A. Duda & Sons, Belle Glade, FL; Dr. Danny Gay, vegetable disease specialist, Tifton, GA; Dr. Charles Patterson, Wes Watkins Ag Research Extension Center, Lane, OK; Dr. Franklin Laemmlen, Imperial County Cooperative Extension Service, Holtville, CA; John Guerard, Kern County Cooperative Extension Service, Bakersfield, CA; Dr. Margaret McGrath, Cornell University, Riverhead, N.Y.; and Bob Mulroney, University of Delaware, Newark.

White Oak Hires Nutrition Specialist

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.)— Jorge Estrada has been named dairy nutrition specialist for White Oak Mills.

White Oak Mills is a supplier of total feeds, feed ingredients, animal health, and pet needs to customers throughout Southcentral Pennsylvania.

John Wagner, president of White Oak Mills, stated that "the new position was created due the increased demand for White Oak's dairy feeds and dairy services."

Jorge, a native of Guatamala, came to the United States in June of 1987 in search of a specialized degree. In 1990, Jorge graduated from Kansas State University with a master's degree in dairy cattle nutrition.

Jorge's position will include the programming or formulating of feeds. He will also be working on updating the nutritional requirements and nutritional values on dairy cattle feeds currently being produced at White Oak Mills.

Product development is another area that Jorge will be focusing on. Jorge said a new feed is in the planning stage and will come out within the next six months.

Quality control and quality assurance of the dairy feeds being produced is an important part of his position.

Jorge Estrada

Jorge said that probably the most important function of his job will be to assist the dairy farmers that White Oak serves by doing a lot of consulting on an individual basis to help the dairyman make decisions regarding their herd.

based on information supplied from the customer, Jorge will be able to make feeding recommendations for each dairyman.

Extension Holds Classes For Small-Scale, Part-Time Farmers

ROBERT E. LEIBY AND
DAVID L. DUNBAR
Lehigh Co. Cooperative
Extension Office

If you have some land, extra time, and a special interest in at least one agricultural enterprise, you may want to participate in the "Small-Scale, Part-Time Farming" Series being offered by the Lehigh County Extension Office from late February through April.

All sessions, except the field trip on Saturday, April 27, will be at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays, February 26 through April 23 at the Lehigh County Agricultural Center, Room 108, Dorney Park Road, Allentown.

Subjects will include soil basics, plant nutrition, pest control, fruit and vegetable culture, preserving home-grown foods, managing agronomic crops and farm animals, ornamental horticulture, Christmas trees, financial considerations, and marketing farm products.

The course registration fee is $25 per person or $30 per couple (two persons from the same household). The fee covers printed materials, one Penn State soil testing kit, demonstration expenses, field trip expenses, and refreshments. Registrations are limited and will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

If you have "farming fever," the course will help you sort-out personal and/or family goals and reasons for wanting to farm. Your goals might range from making money to saving money to reducing losses to enriching family life to developing a personal hobby.

The series will also help you evaluate and compare various farm enterprises. Perhaps, most importantly, it will provide information to help you manage your enterprise(s) successfully.

For a brochure, call the Lehigh County Extension Office, (215) 391-9840.

Tractor Safety Training

Because of unique hazards associated with the operation of farm tractors and other farm equipment, the U.S. Department of Labor has established a safety training program for 14- and 15-year-old tractor operators who will be working for pay on farms away from home. In the Lehigh Valley, this training is also offered to all others who want it.

This year's course will be held on Thursday at the following times and places:

- 7:30 p.m., February 28, Lehigh County Agricultural Center (Dorney Park Road, between Dorney Park and Cedarbrook).
- 7:30 p.m., March 7, Lehigh County Agricultural Center.
- 7:30 p.m., March 14, Lehigh Ag Equipment, Chapmans.
- 7:30 p.m., March 21, Lehigh County Agricultural Center.
- 7:30 p.m., March 28, Lehigh County Agricultural Center.
- 5:30 p.m., April 4, Lehigh Ag Equipment, Chapmans.

The course will stress safety and will provide instruction on tractor instruments and controls, maintenance and safety checks, starting and stopping procedures, power take-off, and hydraulic systems and hitches.

Participants who successfully complete written and driving examinations at the end of the course will receive certificates. No pre-registration is needed, but attendance at all sessions is important. Each student will need a study guide which costs $4.50. Phone (215) 391-9840 for more information.

Garden Center Conference

The 1991 Garden Center Conference will address topics of interest to garden center owners and employees. These topics will include insect and disease control, tree identification, pruning, pricing, stress reduction, sales tax, extending the marketing season, surviving the recession, wildflowers and water gardening. Pesticide applicator update credits will be offered.

The conference will be held Wednesday and Thursday, February 27 and 28 at the Wilson World Hotel, Morgantown (Chester County).

Request a conference agenda and registration form from your county extension office. In Lehigh County, phone (215) 391-9840.

- Cryolite registration update and how cryolite works.
- Colorado potato beetle and a new pest — melon aphid.
- Integrated management for potato insects.
- Potato variety information.
- Pesticide usage reporting -- complying with the new law.

A panel of local growers will discuss sunburn reduction strategies, and there will be a brief meeting of the Lehigh Valley Potato Growers Association.

Pesticide applicator training credits will be offered.

Lunch will cost $8. Phone your reservations in to the Lehigh County Extension Office at (215) 391-9840 before March 5. Pay at the door.

Dairies Of Distinction

If you're proud of the appearance of your dairy farm, consider applying for the Dairy of Distinction Award. The award's purpose is to recognize and encourage dairy farmers who have attractive farmsteads and to enhance the public image of the dairy industry.

Applications must be submitted by April 15. Forms may be obtained from county extension offices.

Up to 10 southeast Pennsylvania farms will be chosen to receive the award in 1991. Award recipients will be honored at a regional dinner in June and at Ag Progress Days later in the summer. Award winners will also receive an attractive Dairy of Distinction road sign.

Awards are based on neatness, level of maintenance, and other factors controlled by farm residents. The judges score each farm from an adjacent public road or, when the farmstead is not visible from the road, from the farm lane.

Tractor Costs

Tractors are a high-cost item in a farmer's machinery inventory. How a tractor is used and how much it is used affects the total hourly cost, but the fixed (or ownership) costs must be paid regardless of how much the machine is used.

Ownership costs are depreciation, interest, insurance, and shelter. Variable (or operating) costs depend on tractor size, annual use, age of tractor, fuel price and the operation being performed. Operating costs are repairs, fuel, lubricants, maintenance and labor.

Donald Daum and David Keener, both of Penn State's Agricultural Engineering Department, recently prepared a fact sheet to help farmers determine tractor costs. This fact sheet provides an estimate of the average total costs (fixed plus variable) of a two-wheel drive farm tractor for the original owner. The accompanying table lists hourly costs for both diesel- and gasoline-powered tractors.

The table data, based on a rate per $1,000 of new purchase price, can be used to determine the estimated costs for two-wheel drive farm tractors over 20 horsepower. The value is determined by using the table to represent the average cost per hour of use over the expected years of ownership for the tractor.

Feeding Show Steers

Your steer should be fed to produce an ideal end product — the carcass. The ideal carcass will weigh between 600 to 800 pounds, it will be Choice quality grade, and have a Yield Grade of 2 or 3.

Most steers will have a dressing percentage of 58 to 62. If a 1000-pound steer has a dressing percentage of 60, it will produce a carcass which weighs 600 pounds (1000 x .60 = 600). However, a 1,350-pound steer with a 62 percent dress will weigh 837 pounds — well above the ideal.

The quality grade is determined by age or maturity of the steer and marbling (flecks of fat in the meat). Your steers should all be young enough that maturity is no problem. Most breeds will require at least 0.4 to 0.5 inches of fat cover over the 12th rib for them to grade Choice.

Yield Grade is determined by the amount of fat or waste, the size of the rib eye muscle, and the carcass weight.

• Fat thickness over the rib eye muscle determines preliminary yield grades.

Fat Over Rib Eye (Inches)	Preliminary Yield (Grade)
.2	2.5
.4	3.0
.6	3.5
.8	4.0
1.0	4.5

• Rib Eye area is measured at the 12th rib. Heavily muscled steers have a larger rib eye area and a more desirable yield grade with higher cutability.

• Carcass weight affects rib eye area. With 500-pound carcasses, we expect about 2 square inches of rib eye per 100 pounds of carcass weight. With 800 pound carcasses, we only expect about 1.7 square inches per 100 pounds of carcass weight.

Breeds and individual steers within breeds differ in their mature size. The potential mature size determines at what weight the steer should grade low to average choice — a desirable quality grade.

We break all cattle into seven frame sizes. This is based upon the weight they can be expected to grade low choice.

Frame Size	Live Weight At Low Choice
1	750-850
2	850-950
3	950-1050
4	1050-1150
5	1150-1250
6	1250-1350
7	Over 1350

British beef breeds will usually range from frame size score 3 to 5. The large European continental breeds will be frame size score 4 to 7; the cross of the smaller and larger breeds will be frame score 3 to 6.

Measuring steers for hip height (measure from top of loin at hip area to the ground) will help estimate the final desirable weight.

Hip Height Chart in Inches--Steers

Month Of Age	Frame Scores 1	2	3	4	5	6	7
5	34	36	38	40	42	44	46
6	35	37	39	40	43	45	47
7	35.5	37.5	39.5	41.5	43.5	45.5	47.5
8	36.5	38.5	40.5	42.5	44.5	46.5	48.5
9	37.5	39.5	41.5	43.5	45.5	47.5	49.5
10	38.5	40.5	42.5	44.5	46.5	48.5	50.5
11	39	41	43	45	47	49	51
12	40	42	44	46	48	50	52
13	41	43.5	45.5	47.5	49.5	51.5	53.5
15	42	44	46	48	50	52	54

Using the information presented so far, you can determine the final desirable weight of a steer. You can also see that the most desirable steers have a frame score 3 through 6.

Always remember that the most economical gains are the fastest gains. You should never have your steer at the desired weight two to three months before your show.

To determine the desired final weight, subtract the present or beginning weight and divide by the number of days between. This will give you the necessary daily gain. (Example: 1150 lb.-500 lb. = 650 divided by 290 days = 2.24 lbs.)

A. Daily rations that will produce daily gains of 1.8 to 2.2 pounds for steers weighing 500 to 700 pounds.

Toxoplasmosis — An Economic Problem For Sheep Owners

DENVER, Colo. — One area where sheep producers can drastically improve the overall health and financial standing of their flocks is through the religious practice of toxoplasmosis control methods, said Dr. J.P. Dubey, a speaker at the American Sheep Industry Convention in Long Beach January 20.

"Toxoplasmosis is everywhere. But that's understandable when you look at how resistant the disease is and how easily it's spread," said Dubey. Cats are the main carrier, and that's a monumental problem in itself. "Cats are everywhere and diagnostic tests have revealed that at least one-third of all cats in the U.S. carry toxoplasmosi oocysts," said Dubey.

The disease is spread to sheep when their food, water, or grazing areas come in contact with cat feces. Once in the sheep's system, it becomes the number one cause of spontaneous abortions. "For this reason, the toxoplasmosis disease is an economic issue for producers," said Dubey.

Although it's impossible to totally eliminate toxoplasmosis, there are steps you can take to cut down on the frequency and range of contamination. Dubey's number one rule is keep cats out of feed barns and feed areas. Other steps you can take in reducing the spread of toxoplasmosis include the immediate disposal of cat feces — the disease-causing organism "comes alive" after a 24-hour period.

If a sheep becomes infected and a spontaneous abortion results, wear gloves while handling dead lambs and afterbirth — the disease is transmissible to humans. The effects vary widely from flu-like symptoms to miscarriages for pregnant women and birth defects for unborn children.

Dubey said you should also submit dead lambs and afterbirth for diagnosis. Use exposed ewes for future breeding — they are now immune to the disease's effects after the initial experience. Bury or burn dead animals — do not leave them for the birds to eat, this with further spread the disease when a cat ingests an infected bird.

Dubey had one last thing to say about the disease. "Let's not blame cats. I'm not advocating that we get rid of them." The disease is actually spread by birds, rabbits, and small rodents female cats often bring back to their kittens.

And for that reason, Dubey said, control the number of cats you have on your place, especially female cats allowed to breed Dubey also advocates neutering and spaying of cats to better maintain a constant adult population.

Soybean Farmers Voice Views About Research

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — U.S. soybean farmers believe they need varieties with greater yield potential and resistance to pests. They also want agricultural chemicals that reduce insect and weed populations and are safe to the environment.

These are just two findings in a recent survey conducted by the American Soybean Association (ASA) AND ICI Americas. Ten percent of ASA's 34,000 members responded to the poll.

Dr. Keith Smith, ASA director of research, said the survey was conducted "to find the direction soybean farmers want to take their reaserch program in the years ahead. Farmers' investment in research will increase when collections begin this summer on the new nationwide Soybean Promotion and Research Checkoff (SPARC). These survey results give us a roadmap to make project funding decisions that are most likely to result in lowered production costs and increased profit opportunities."

The survey showed farmers believe expanding breeding programs and weed control studies provide the best chances to increase yields. Pest control, fertilization, and crop rotation studies carried more potential than planting and harvesting operations and refining tillage practices.

Soybean farmers challenged breeders to concentrate on developing higher-yielding varieties with disease resistance. They rated nematode and insect resistance as lower priorities in breeding programs. Smith said this indicates not all farmers have economically significant nematode or insect problems. A real surprise, he said, was the common suggestion more effort go into projects to reduce lodging and seed shatter. Most breeders believe these problems were addressed several years ago and occur infrequently in contemporary varieties.

The survey also showed farmers wanted more information on marketing alternatives, variety selection, fertility management decisions, and control of weeds, diseases, insects, and nematodes. When asked to rate sources of information they placed farm publications, research and extension publications and personal contact with specialists, field day tours, farm suppliers, friends, and neighbors at the top.

"Our charge is to use these survey results to implement the programs farmers say they need to increase profits," Smith said. "Then we need to make sure we get the information generated from these projects back to the farmers so they can put it to use."

Extension Honors Volunteers Of Distinction

WARREN (Warren Co.) — Warren County Cooperative Extension recently honored Pam Donaldson of Akeley, Peter Block of Sugar Grove, and Raymond Goetz of Warren with "Volunteer of Distinction Awards" at their annual meeting.

According to Sanford Smith, Warren County extension agent, the Volunteer Of Distinction Awards are presented annually to individuals who make substantial contributions of time and energy to the educational mission of cooperative extension during the preceding calendar year.

Peter Block was cited for his involvement in numerous 1990 extension activities. Block serves as president of The Warren County Farmers Association and he is a member of the newly formed Warren County Ag/Forestry Interest Council. He assisted in the planning and execution of the county's Dairy Day Program, and he participated in a dairy heifer cost analysis research project.

Block also helped organized and provided leadership at two agricultural security area meetings, and provided assistance on the educational bus tour organized this year to look at the deer damage issue on farms and in forests around the county.

Raymond Goetz has been a volunteer in the Lyme Disease Awareness Program conducted by cooperative extension. He has served as a presenter at numerous meetings reaching more than 2,100 individuals, and he has assisted countless number of individuals over the telephone.

Goetz has focused his time and energy to educating the public on the facts about lyme disease and precautions for avoiding the disease. Formal evaluations conducted after the talks that Goetz has given have indicated a tremendous increase in knowledge gained by the audience.

Pam Donaldson, the third award recipient, is a member of the 4-H Development Council Board, where she served as secretary this past year. She also sits on the Awards and Recognition Committee of the Development Council.

Donaldson and her husband, Mike, participated in the dairy heifer cost analysis research project that extension conducted this year. They helped to provide critical input for the success of this project.

Lastly, Donaldson served as a coach for the Warren County 4-H Dairy Bowl Team, which trains youth to compete with their knowledge in dairy management.

Panel Sees Opportunity For Animal Ag

The audience was made up of U.S. and Canadian Harvestore system dealers and their employes in attendance at the annual meeting of A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., headquartered here.

The high-powered panel included experts in every area of livestock and dairy farming, and was moderated by Max Armstrong, associate farm services director at WGN Continental Broadcasting, Chicago. The panelists were: Bill Fleming, Editor, National Hog Farmer" magazine; John Huston, president, National Live Stock and Meat Board; Steve Larson, senior associate editor, "Hoard's Dairyman" magazine; and Harvey Mack, water quality program director at the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

Starting off the discussion, Fleming addressed the long-range prospects for pork producers, and particularly the ability of family operations to compete with large-scale corporate farms. He concluded that the farmer-feeder has many advantages.

"The grower has lower feed costs, a real edge," he said. "Another edge is the fact that we are in an era when the environment will dictate a lot of hog farm management. Think of the impact of putting 20,000 sows and a quarter million hogs in one spot? What do you do with the waste? The crop farmer can make it work and save fertilizer."

Fleming also pointed out that disease can be a serious problem in large scale hog units, and speculated about the potential impact of the animal rights movement on such operations. He asked his audience to imagine 20,000 sows being kept in straw bedding.

"Family farmers are competitive if they work at it," Fleming said.

Huston described the Meat Board's beef promotion advertising campaign, which he said has returned 1¢ toi 2.9¢ per pound of beef sold in the U.S., or $10 to $29 more farm income per 1,000-pound animal. He added that beef industry efforts to reduce trimmable fat and increase the proportion of lean is helping win back consumers.

"We must listen to 250 million consumers," he said, describing how the Meat Board tracks issues such as animal welfare, food safety, diet and health, biotechnology, and the environment on behalf of ranchers and feeders.

"In many respects," he said, "We can say 'Beef is Back'."

Dairy industry journalist Larson acknowledged "some clouds on the horizon" for milk producers, but presented a generally positive outlook. Despite a drop in milk prices late in 1990, the year ended with record dairy income, and he said he expects prices to rise again later this year. He added that the financial strength of dairy farmers is good, "in fact, very good," and that many marginal producers have left the business.

"About 25 percent more dairy farmers are in a favorable financial position than five years ago, and the proportion of vulnerable farmers is down from 20 percent to just 11 percent of all milk producers," he said.

He made the point that dairy farmers have become more businesslike, asking "Will it pay for me?" before making capital expenditures. He predicted that dairymen will be willing to buy big ticket items that can contribute to their bottom line.

"I think it's safe to say that TMR's (total mixed rations) are here to stay. There was tremendous interest in them at the World Dairy Expo this fall. The interest is almost epidemic. That's the wave in stall barn and free stall setups alike," he said.

Larson also predicted growing interest in manure handling, pointing out that more than half of the milk producers in major dairy states haul manure daily. "More stringent regulations, nutrient use and time constraints are going to create more interest in manure storage and groundwater concerns are going to make us take a second look at popular earthern basins, especially with some soil conditions," he said.

"There are fewer dairy farmers, but they're smarter, more aggressive and more sophisticated than ever and, more than ever, they plan to be in the dairy business for years to come. So, dairying still looks good to us, and we think it will be good for you, too," the Hoard's editor said.

Mack, who administers water quality programs for the U.S., alerted the audience to coming changes in regulation of non-point pollution sources and described demonstration projects that have provided a baseline for future programs.

"A problem today is the concentration of large numbers of animal units," he said. "Manure becomes a problem. We always looked at manure as a waste — now we look at it as an opportunity, a by-product of agriculture that can be used and recycled."

Moderator Armstrong also recognized the environment as a major farm issue, pointing out that "In the 1990 farm bill, environmentalists for the first time became players in the process."

Check To See If The Price Is Right

DEKALB, Ill. — If you're ready to take the financial plunge and purchase your seed for 1991, wait a minute. Before you pull out your checkbook, try conducting a simple exercise that could pay off for you in real dollars and cents at the end of the season.

"The idea is to determine whether the value (yield) of the seed you plan to buy is worth the price," said Dick Bohling, manager of agronomic services for DEKALB Plant Genetics. "The hybrid you're considering may be $20 cheaper per bag than the competitor's, but it might also yield 5 bushels less per acre. If that's the case, you'll lose money at harvest."

Bohling offers this exercise as a method you can use to determine the difference in value between two or more hybrids.

For the sake of the example, consider that the farmer grows 300 acres of corn. Of course, when you work through the example, you should plug in your own acreage.

Product A
Seed cost per bag: $55
Expected avg. yield/acre: 150

Product B
Seed cost per bag: $75
Expected avg. yield/acre: 155

Now, follow these steps:

1) Determine the difference in cost between Product A and B.
Product B $75
Product A -$55
$20 is the difference in seed cost

2) Determine the number of bags needed to plant 300 acres. Most bags of seed corn plant at least 3.2 acres/bag. So, 300 divided by 3.2 equals approximately 94 bags of seed (based on 80,000 kernels per bag divided by 25,000 plants per acre).

3) Figure the difference in cost between Product A and Product B for 94 bags of seed corn.
Product A 94 bags X $55 = $5,170
Product B 94 bags X $75 = $7,050
Difference in cost = $1,880

4) Calculate the anticipated difference in yield between Product A and Product B on 300 acres of corn.
Product A 150 bu/acre X 300 acres = 45,000 total bu.
Product B 155 bu/acre X 300 acres = 46,500 total bu.
Difference in yield = 1,500 total bu.

5) Determine the market value of the additional 1,500 bushels of corn you get from Product B.
1,500 X $2/bu market value = $3,000

6) Subtract the cost difference between Product A and B ($1,880) from the additional market value of Product B.
Product B additional market value $3,000
Cost difference between products -$1,880
$1,120 added income

Bohling said that the $1,120 represents the additional income you would receive by buying and planting Product B.

"When you can look at the additional income you'll gain by investing in a better quality seed, that increased cost upfront makes a whole lot more sense," he said.

Besides the yield aspects of value, the DEKALB agronomist said that farmers need to consider some of the other benefits they receive.

"Things like drydown, standability, resistance to disease and insects and drought tolerance also need to play an important role in your decision-making process," Bohling said. "These factors can impact final yield outcome, so I encourage farmers to consider the entire package of traits a hybrid offers." In addition, he said that access to company agronomists and management newsletters enhance a hybrid's value.

"It just comes down to getting the best seed value for the money you invest," he said. "Ultimately, that means you put more money in your pocket at the end of the season."

Firm Attends Auctioneers Convention

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Recently, C. Sherman Allen and Richard Burrows, from the firm of C. Sherman Allen, Auctioneer and Associates, attended the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Convention, held here.

This year's seminar topics were on marketing and advertising, selling coins, agriculture and commercial and industrial auctions, plus numerous other topics shared by various speakers.

Wayne Stewart, the National Auctioneers Association president shared his knowledge of the real estate methods of auctioneering. Sherman also proved his talents by entering the bid calling contest and placing 6 in a field of 23.

While Sherman and Richard were in Harrisburg, they attended the Pennsylvania Farm Show and learned some new ideas that are being utilized by the agricultural industry.

Sherman also attended the Ohio Auctioneers Convention in Dublin, Ohio. Various topics were brought before all of the auctioneers, teaching them new ideas and other aspects of the Auctioneering profession. For your free consultation, call (814) 382-2922 or 800-282-2922.

1991 BARN PAINTING

Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed.)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed. The best again is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas.
2. MAKING A NEW START spray on brush in painting on the renewed surface or resurfaced wood siding. The above mentioned AIM of coating thickness can prevent future peeling and resurfacing cost & effort. Simple, old fashioned brushing does most of the trick. This film will let moisture breathe through it. Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10 years of more. Southern exposures usually wear faster.

FROM SHORE TO SHORE EVERYTHING'S COMING UP ASGROW !

Scott Taulker, Farm Manager, Boonecroft Farms of Douglasville, PA grows soybeans, not just any soybeans, Asgrow Brand Soybeans. Boonecroft is serious about growing the very best they can grow; with 600 acres committed to soybean production, seed selection is a very important decision. A3935, A3322, and A3205 carry the bulk of the load. Last year 200 acres of A3935 averaged 65 bushels per acre.

Scott has observed over the last few years that Asgrow varieties set the pace on Boonecroft Farms for yield and standability when compared to any competitive variety.

He finds, "Asgrow beans stand excellent - didn't have a down Asgrow variety on the farm - other nationaland regional brand varieties were flat. I'm going to plant allAsgrow beans in 1991." He concludes, "I'll never plant any variety other than Asgrow, double crop - Asgrow has the hardiness to come thru in dry no-till conditions."

Pa. Apple, Peach Production Increases

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— Pennsylvania's 1990 commercial apple production is estimated at 520 million pounds, an increase of 63 percent from the 1989 crop of 320 million pounds, the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS) reported recently.

The value of the apple production (based on first utilization) was set at $57.2 million.

Last year's peach crop totaled 76 million pounds, up 17 percent from the 1989 peach crop. PASS placed the value of utilized peach production at $22 million.

Pear production in the state totaled 3,300 tons for the year, 40 percent below the previous year. Utilized production of 3,200 tons was valued at $1.1 million.

Sweet cherry production in 1990 was 50 tons, compared with 700 tons in 1989. Utilized production of 50 tons was valued at $81,000.

The tart cherry crop totaled 3.5 million pounds, down 42 pounds from the previous year. The 1990 price and value will be published by PASS on July 9, 1991.

Many cherry growers lost their entire 1990 crop to frost.

Last year's grape production of 53,000 tons was 12 percent less than the 1989 production. Utilized production was valued at $15.1 million.

Nationally, the 1990 apple crop totaled 9.5 billion pounds, down 4 percent from 1989. Washington State -- the leading producer -- reported 4.7 billion pounds, 6 percent below the previous year.

Ag 'Misunderstood,' Says USDA Official

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Despite the fact that agriculture "can, and will, work to insure a more environmentally friendly world," Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Jack Parnell expressed concern today about "the misunderstanding and the growing mistrust of our industry."

"We are underappreciated for what we are, what we do, and what we contribute to this great nation," he told the 62nd annual meeting of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC).

"There are those who, for a variety of reasons, would inadvertently tear down and damage (by quoting half-truths and pseudoscience) the largest, most productive economic engine in the world — agriculture," he said.

Parnell, whose name has been mentioned as a potential secretary of agriculture, said the damage from such comments is not limited to agriculture but could affect "the way of life we have come to expect" because agriculture is "to a large degree what makes the American way of life possible."

He challenged American agriculture to meet the test of continuing to provide a high standard of living and maintaining the quality of life.

"Our test is going to be how well we maintain the balance, how well we live within our resource base, and how well we provide the resources to fuel an advanced, sophisticated, technical society without destroying our basic wealth — the land, water and soil," he said.

Parnell challenged cooperatives and others in agriculture to "spend more effort telling the rest of America about the good things we do to help maintain a healthy environment."

Noting that concern about the environment is growing, he said agriculture should not wait for a "more bureaucratic, one-size-fits-all maze of regulations" but rather "do the right thing and unleash the creativity and intellect of agriculture to address those concerns before stifling regulations are put into place."

In addition to enviromental challenges, Parnell said agriculture faces challenges posed by the war in the Persian Gulf and the international trade negotiations.

One of the biggest challenges in world trade is competition from the European Community (EC) in export markets, he said, noting that the EC has "placed numerous stumbling blocks on our road to continued prosperity. They have shackled us with massive export subsidies. They, and other countries, have misused health and safety regulations to keep our products out of their markets."

Parnell called for support for a new trade agreement to make world markets a "level playing field" rather than "the dumping ground of irresponsible and uncontrollable European surpluses."

Foundation Membership Tops 2,100

BELLA VISTA, Ark. — Membership in the International J.I. Case Heritage Foundation surpassed 2,100 this fall and is still climbing. This may make the organization the largest group in the world to be focused on the preservation of historical material and old machinery, as well as the development of educational programs related to one line of vintage agricultural equipment.

The Case Foundation foresees continuing growth on the horizon during the next two years as it approaches the 150th anniversary of the J.I. Case Line in 1992. The roots of the Foundation's sector of the ag-heritage movement were planted by Jerome Increase Case, who developed the modern threshing machine and established his farm equipment manufacturing business at Racine, Wisconsin, in 1842.

Although Case died in 1891 at a time when he was known worldwide as the "Threshing Machine King" and his company had become the worldwide leader in the production of threshing machines and agricultural steam engines, the J.I. Case Company thrives today as a major manufacturer of ag-equipment — the Case-IH Line — and is still based in Racine.

"Our contacts at the various ag-heritage reunions in North America and even overseas have yielded a continuing surge of interest in the work of Foundation and the historical material being shared through our quarterly, 64-page newsletter, 'Heritage Eagle'," Helen Case Brigham, a great granddaughter of J.I. Case and Secretary-Treasurer of the Foundation, said in the aftermath of her 10,000 mill trek visiting events in the United States and Canada in the summer and early fall of 1990.

"We look forward to seeing many long-time friends and making many new friends as the Foundation heads toward its 5th annual international J.I. Case Heritage Exposition this year in conjunction with one of North America's oldest and largest ag-heritage events, the Midwest Old Threshers Reunion at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa," she said.

This event wilwl be followed in 1992 by a 150th anniversary Case Heritage Expo to be held in conjunction with the Western Minnesota Steam Threshers' Reunion at Rollag. Both the 1991 and 1992 Case Expos are scheduled to run over several days, including the Labor Day Weekend.

Annual membership dues in the Case Heritage Foundation cost $15 for individuals and $20 for family, and information about the organization may be obtained by writing or calling Secretary Helen Case Brigham, at P.O. Box 5128, Bella Vista, AK 72714-0128, (501) 855-0312.

Recession Likely To Be Shallow, Brief

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Contrasted with the recession of 1981-82, the current economic slowdown more than likely will look more like a "shallow, brief slowdown," said Irving R. Levine, senior economics correspondent for NBC News.

Levine, addressing the 62nd annual convention of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCPC) here today, outlined at least five economic characteristics to mitigate the effects of a slowdown that were not present before the last recession.

First, business inventories are far lower. A decade ago, businesses worried about inflation and built up large inventories in anticipation of price increases and were caught with heavy backlogs when consumer spending declined; in recent months, he said, "there has been a lot of caution on restocking."

Second, more people are working. "When the last recession started, unemployment was 7.5 percent; by contrast, the last quarter's unemployment rate was 5.2 percent," he said, meaning there is relatively more spending power today than a decade ago.

Third, Levine cited the "lean and mean" factor. "Many corporations have spent the last several years becoming more efficient and more productive, getting 'lean and mean,' and thus are in a better position to withstand recession," he said.

Fourth, the inflation rate (consumer price index) currently is 6.1 percent, about half of the double-digit rate of inflation leading into the 1981-82 slump, he said. Savings are not being eroded in value to the same extent.

Fifth, interest rates are far lower. Levine recalled how the Federal Reserve Board in the late 1970s was more worried about inflation than recession and reacted by pushing interest rates to record levels, but noted that this recession is beginning with interest rates declining.

Levine noted, however, that several problems continue to hang over the economic horizon, among them the uncertain length and cost of the Persian Gulf war; the heavy debt load carried by government, corporations and consumers; the savings and loan and banking crisis, the cost of which has not been fully understood; the increasing federal budget deficit, which carries the danger that continued heavy federal borrowing will eventually drive up interest rates; and the tax increases in the 1990 deficit reduction act which, he said, come at "precisely the wrong time" because they reduce consumer spending power when the economy is slowing down.

The international trade picture also is uncertain, he said, expressing concern that the European Community's effect to create a single market of 320 million people by the end of next year may result in more barriers to trade.

Patton Enticer Grand Angus Bull At National Western

DENVER, Colo. — This was the most successful National Western Stock Show ever for American Breeders Service (ABS). According to Keith VanderVelde, ABS manager-beef programs. ABS-sired offspring and sires won many championships.

The highlight of this year's show was Patton Enticer, an Angus bull owned by ABS from Steve Weaver, Illinois and Susan Patton, Indiana, winning grand champion bull at the Angus show. "A Denver championship is as good as it gets!" said Weaver.

Judge Dr. John Edwards selected Enticer as grand champion bull. According to Edwards, Enticer is a very complete bull, extremely sound in his skeleton, with plenty of muscle working through his top and in his quarter, smoothly laid through his shoulder, and a well-balanced bull. "This bull closely fit my idea of the championship type I was looking for. He was an outstanding bull in terms of completeness," said Edwards.

Also in the Angus breed, another bull leased by ABS, 29AN1407 Hoff HI FLYER SC 7134, was second in his class.

A new polled South Devon bull which ABS just purchased earned reserve grand champion bull in the South Devon Show. 29DS0001 HHH REBEL 34Y is also owned by Dar Lyn Cattle Company from Sauk Rapids, Minn.

Other show highlights for ABS include:

• 29SM0282 Highwayman, a Single Nick Doubletime son, sired the grand champion pen of three of which the lead off bull, R&R Magician, was top seller in the 1991 Denver National Simmental Sale at $7,000. Another Highwayman son was reserve senior champion bull. According to Steve Reimer, breeder of Highwayman, the bull's true test was when Reimer's customers had their first calf crop from their Highwayman sons last year, and those customers came back to Reimer indicating how pleased they were with the bull's calving ease and consistency of the calves phenotype and performance.

• The Simmental bull, 29SM0219 Generation III, sired the grand champion Simmental steer.

• In the Hereford show, 29HH0818 335F sired the champion early spring bull calf, K&B Impact 0154 1ET owned by K&B Herefords, Onida, South Dakota, and the first place class three female, K&B Starlet 0101, also owned by K&B Herefords.

• 29GV0041 XZR Jaguar 999Y was second in his class to the reserve grand champion bull in the Gelvieh show.

• A 29GV0035 Rolls Roych son was first place in class 22 of the bull show.

"We had a lot of success at this year's National Western Livestock Show," said VanderVelde. "But more importantly, we feel these sires are producing offspring that fit not only the showring, but in many cases, the commercial producer as well."

Hey! Folks

If your cows are slipping and falling, it ain't my fault because I have a machine called a Scabbler that will fix that concrete so your cows won't keep slipping all the time.

We've got service all around this section of the country, and I have a fellow just jumping to do your job mighty fast.

And that ain't all, our prices are right reasonable, and if you're a tightwad we'll let you do the job yourself if you've got over 500 square feet. It can save you right smart a money.

So call me on my nickel at 800-692-0123. If I'm not by the phone, some real live person will take your number, and I'll try to get back to you real soon. Usually somebody is awake in this outfit, so you just call any time day or night. But, please mind the Lord, and don't call on Sunday.

Just one more thing. We fellows make our living doing this kind of work, and we've got children to feed and bills. That's our side of it, but you've got such things too. A lot of people tell us that this Scabbling saves a whole lot more than it costs. So go ahead and do it. It'll put shoes on everybody's feet.

Be looking to hear from you folks right soon.

LEADERSHIP AT WORK

1990 Profits Up At Harvestore

DEKALB, Ill.— Profits during 1990 were up substantially at A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., with headquarters here. The announcement was made by James C. Schaap, president, at the company's recent annual meeting of personnel from Harvestore system dealers in the U.S. and Canada.

"The sales results made 1990 the fourth consecutive year of profitable operation for Harvestore Products," Schaap said. "Sales of automated feeding equipment were particularly strong. The combined efforts of our dealers and their employees produced a whopping 30 percent increase in automation product sales."

The company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of A. O. Smith Corporation, has successfully completed a major restructuring program initiated four years ago following the agricultural recession and is now well positioned to remain competitive through the years ahead, he added.

Harvestore Products Chairman Donald L. Dunaway pointed out that 1990 sales were up by 59 percent compared with 1986 results. "Profits have gone from big red to big black at Harvestore in these five years," he said.

"More than just shipments and profits have changed since 1986," he said. "So has the agg product line. New products introduced since 1986 accounted for a significant percent of new Harvestore ag sales through the first 10 months of this year."

Dunaway announced that on the basis of this strong showing, the A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. Board of Directors has approved a $5.5 million capital budget at Harvestore Products for the nest three years. The funds will be spent for state-of-the-art new machine tooling, to upgrade manufacturing processes and to support information and quality control systems. The company manufactures feed and manure handling systems, automated feeding equipment, and systems of municipal and industrial water storage and waste handling.

FRESH COWS STALLING OUT???

Now There Is Something You Can Do About It!!!

Purina Freshener Pak Starts Cows Right.

Fresh cows go off of feed for a number of reasons: freshening problems, mastitis, forage changes, too much grain, ketosis and just plain stress. That's why Purina has come out with a product designed with this key problem in mind.

Dairy Freshener Pak is designed to not only stimulate your fresh cow's appetite, but it also helps her maintain a proper immune response.

HERE IS WHY

Dairy Freshener Pak contains these valuable ingredients in a palatable 4 ounces/day feeding rate:

Niacin - This slows fat metabolism and fights ketosis.

Yeast - Live Sacchromyces Cerevisae works to improve ruminal fermentation and stimulate appetite.

Vitamin - B_{12} Stimulates appetite and helps to correct low milk fat.

Vitamin - A & D Extra vitamins for periods of low feed intake.

Vitamin - E & Selenium Essential in the immune function of the body and helps to maintain structure and function of muscles.
